It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

PREFACE OF THE GENERAL EDITOR AND TRANSLATOR.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY has undertaken the publication of a HARVARD ORIENTAL SERIES. The primary object of this Series, as conceived by the two friends most concerned in its establishment, is an historical one, — the elucidation of the history of religions, more especially, of those of India.

The central point of interest in the history of India is the long development of the religious thought and life of the Hindus,—a race akin, by ties of blood and language, to our own Anglo-Saxon stock. The value of the study of religions is coming to be recognized more and more every day. The study tends to broaden and strengthen and universalize the bases of religion,—a result of practical and immediate benefit. Works which promote this study stand first in the plans of the Oriental Series; and they are especially timely now, when so much of the widespread interest in Buddhism and other Oriental systems is misdirected by half-knowledge, or by downright error concerning them. We may add that such works supply the material for the helpful constructive criticism of the foundations of religious belief, to offset the all too abounding destructive criticism of the day.

But to any one acquainted with the ways of the progress of science, it will be evident that the purposes of this Series are not to be achieved wholly by the direct means of publishing books upon the religions of India. The indirect means to its end must be the publication also of works concerning Indian literature and history and antiquities in their manifold diversities of time and of system (Vedic, Brahmanical, Jaina, and Buddhist), and in their considerable diversities of language (Vedic, Sanskrit, Prākrit, and Pāli).

Hosted by Google

The work now presented to the world of scholars is the first critical edition of the only Prākrit drama extant, the Karpūra-mañjarī of Rāja-çekhara, who flourished about 900 A.D. The sacred scriptures of the Jaina religion are written in Prākrit. And, considering the extreme dearth of books for students of that tongue, it is hoped that this volume, in connection with Jacobi's Handbook, may prove highly serviceable as an introduction to the language of that very ancient religion.<sup>1</sup>

"A critical edition of the Karpūra-mañjarī is an urgent necessity for the advancement of Prākrit studies." Thus wrote Pischel in 1876, in the preface to his Hemachandra, p. xii. For the realization of his long-deferred hope, we have at last to thank one of his own pupils, Dr. Konow, whose work, as I trust, will clearly show the training in rigorous philological method which he has received at the hands of his eminent master.

The interest of this play is largely philological; 2 but, as is elsewhere shown,3 it is not without its importance for the history of the Indian It abounds in material which may well engage the attention of the student of antiquities 4 and of folk-lore. 5 And its allusions to matters of geography or of the calendar, to facts of natural history or to popular beliefs concerning those facts, 6 challenge the widest erudition of the expositor. It presents questions of broader literary interest, such, for example, as concern the degree to which Rajaçekhara is indebted for motifs or for modes of expression to his predecessors, Kālidāsa, Bhavabhūti, Dandin, Bāna, and Bhartrhari. Its literary merit is, on the whole, The plot is scanty. And the playwright knows little or nothing of the development or depiction of character. Much of its fun is such as is proper to the cheapest vaudeville; so, for example, the parrot incident that is lugged in at iv. 24. The long-drawn discussion of love at iii. 10-19 is invested with a singular negative interest by reason of its sad lack of all nobility of conception.

- <sup>8</sup> See p. 196.
- <sup>4</sup> For example, the merry-makings at the Banyan festival, iv. 10-18; palace-life, i. 36;
- iv. 96 ff.; the Magician's homage to the Dreadful Goddess, iv. 19.
- <sup>5</sup> E.g., rain-drops transformed into pearls, iii. 3<sup>14</sup>, note; mirage, ii. 40<sup>5</sup>.
- <sup>6</sup> Cp. i. 18<sup>15</sup>, 20<sup>a</sup>, ii. 50<sup>c</sup>, ii. 50<sup>a</sup>, iv. 18<sup>36</sup>. Botanical allusions passim.

The entrance of the Magician (at i. 218) is signalized by several ribald stanzas which throw a good deal of light on certain pathological phases in the evolution of religion, such as have repeated themselves over and over again in the history of the most varied peoples. To study these phases from a point of widest scope is an essential condition for an intelligent diagnosis of all such vagaries, whether exhibited in the fervors of an American camp-meeting or of a Hindu temple-precinct.

The literary merit of a piece like this, however, is not, in my opinion, to be summed up in any brief and disparaging dictum.1 The play is surely redeemed from sweeping condemnation by the swing scene (ii. 30-40). Here, specifically in stanzas 30-32, the author shows himself a consummate master, not only of imitative language, but also of metrical forms. And the Sanskrit student must be dull indeed who is not charmed by the liquid music and smoothly swinging rhythm of stanza 30; while the stanzas 33-40, although contravening some of the canons of Occidental taste, are really remarkable for the ingenuity and beauty of their conceits. The King's verses of admiration upon the bursting into blossom of the açoka tree (ii. 47) need no apologist. descriptive stanzas (as of sunset, evening, or moonrise, ii. 50, i. 35-36, iii. 25) deserve high praise for their vividness and genuinely poetic sense of the fairest aspects of nature. And some of the "enamored verses" 2 will bear the test of Occidental criticism, — their tenderness and beauty and dignity unimpeached. The contrasts between the love-lorn solemnity of the King and the mocking badinage of his Jester<sup>3</sup> show a command of the shadings of expression that is by no means contemptible.

The Text and the Critical Apparatus.—I need add little to what is said by Dr. Konow, pages xxiii—xxvi, about this part of the work. I am confident that students will appreciate the pains I have taken to have the typography convenient, especially that of the various readings. I regret that these last are so copious; but the exceptional nature of the text must excuse their fulness.

Method of Citation. — The verse-portions are cited by act and stanza and line, the line being indicated by a, b, c, or d. The prose clauses between any two stanzas are numbered consecutively with Arabic numerals, and are cited by the number of the act with that of the preceding stanza and that of the clause. Thus iv. 19<sup>67</sup> is the last clause between iv. 19 and iv. 20. Similarly ii. 0<sup>5</sup> is used to indicate the fifth of the prose clauses preceding stanza 1 of act ii. It is thus apparent at a glance whether any given citation refers to a passage of prose or of verse.

A simple and sufficient means of citation is absolutely indispensable for any text of mingled verse and prose that is of consequence enough to be studied and cited at all. The editor who fails to provide such means is guilty of flagrant neglect of plain duty and of gross disregard for the time and convenience of students and of his colleagues. By way of punishment he may count upon the seriously circumscribed usefulness of his book and the silent maledictions of those who are forced to use it. Let me here call renewed attention to Ernst Leumann's "Request to the future editors of dramas and post-Vedic prose texts of the Indian literature," commending it to most thoughtful consideration.

The Glossarial Index. — To the Prākrit forms of this text I believe that the Index will prove a very accurate and complete concordance. The words of the stage-directions are in Sanskrit and are not included. The English definitions may, I fear, seem inadequate by reason of brevity. It is therefore well to mention that the reader must supplement the definition of any given Prākrit word by a study of the senses of its Sanskrit counterpart, or by reference to Pischel's edition of Hemachandra's Prākrit Grammar and Dictionary, where these are cited. Failing these books, it is hoped that the Translation will serve as an entirely adequate complement to the Index.

quasi adjectives) and  $mil\bar{a}na$  (on account of the splitting of the ml-group) are set in their alphabetic places and not under str and nam and  $ml\bar{a}$ . I trust that the occasional hints in my notes will reduce to a minimum any practical inconveniences resulting from the arrangement of the Index.

The Translation. — It is a part of the fundamental plans of this Series that none of the texts published in it shall be without a translation. The Series does not aim to consult the interests of Sanskrit students exclusively. For better, for worse, this part of the plan is at all events in accord with the dictates of absolute frankness. The wisdom of the Wise Men of the East is to be estimated by Occidental readers with entire fairness—nothing less, nothing more. And for this reason we may neither withhold its excellencies nor cloak its defects. I am, moreover, strongly persuaded that Indian studies would have exerted much larger influence upon the intellectual life of our day, and would even have made more rapid progress, if the masters of Indology had devoted more of their time to the work of translation and popular exposition. The new recruits for this field must be drawn from the circle of those interested. To enlarge that circle is therefore indispensable. Moreover, the comparative study of literature is now a recognized discipline with clear aims and zealous votaries. And to such students also this translation makes its appeal.

After the Text and Index were completed, I requested Dr. Konow to make a translation; and to my request he acceded with the utmost kindness and promptness. But upon this matter, his own remarks, p. xxii, may be consulted. The play is very difficult to translate. The metaphors, be it for their boldness or their accumulation, are at times most intractable. And often the point of a stanza or phrase requires for its reproduction in English such a command of delicate nuances of expression as cannot be expected of one to whom English is not vernacular. The revising of Dr. Konow's rendering proved to be not feasible. And therefore, after trying and failing to find an American who was both willing and able to translate the piece, I set myself most reluctantly to the delightful and interesting work of making a new version.

Most reluctantly, — because it involved a delay of weeks in the progress of the labor of issuing the works of my two departed friends, the Atharva-Veda of Professor Whitney and the Visuddhi-Magga of Henry Clarke Warren. This delay has been a sore grief to me, although tempered by the feeling that these Prākrit studies would at any rate inure to the benefit of my equipment for the completion of Mr. Warren's work.

The translation here presented is accordingly an essentially independent one, of my own making. A good many of the best stanzas I have rendered in metrical form. That I have not so rendered the rest may be set down in part to their intrinsic inferiority, and in part to the extreme pressure under which the keen sense of the above-mentioned delay caused me to do the work. The marked diversities of tone and style <sup>1</sup> I have endeavored faithfully to reproduce in the tone and style of my English.<sup>2</sup> The translator must be able to feel the atmosphere of each of the varying scenes and to adapt his version to their subtile changes.

Almost at the outset it appeared that the translation, unless provided with a running comment, would necessarily be obscure in many points even to the Sanskritist. I hope that no one will find these notes unacceptable. That this portion of the volume is intended in part for non-Indianists, is the reason for writing the ch-sound in proper names with ch (instead of the usual c) and for giving such notes as that on the Asuras at ii.  $31^{b}$ .

Scant as the action or stage-business of this play may be, it is the interpreter's duty to make it intelligible to the otherwise unaided student. In the introductory paragraphs, therefore, pages 213–222, I have done my best to make clear the sequence of the inferential as well as of the explicit parts of the action, and likewise the place and time of each element thereof.

One little detail perhaps needs a word from the prefacer, to wit, the version of piya-vaassa as 'old man.' The German hoch = 'high,' and Abend-zeit = 'even-tide.' So Prākrit piya = 'dear,' and vaassa = 'friend.'

Hosted by Google

 $<sup>^1</sup>$  Well illustrated at ii.  $40^2$  ff. Or compare i.  $16^1$  ff. with i.  $18^1$  ff.

But it is hardly less grotesquely incongruous to render piya-vaassa by 'dear friend' than to render Hochzeit by 'high tide.' The connotation of the colloquial "old man," as used even by very young men to one another, with all its suggestions of jovial good-fellowship, shows for itself how fatally misleading a wooden literalness may be. We all know that a green black-berry is red.

There are some things in this play which are repellent to a mind that is bred to the large variety of wholesome interests<sup>2</sup> that characterize our best modern life. Instead of making the offensive ideas conspicuous by the thin veil of an occasional Latin phrase, I have judged it better to give them in English, simply toning down their more drastic features.

Wer den Dichter will verstehen Muss in Dichters Lande gehen.

Never was the truth of this couplet brought home to me with more force than in the making of this translation. My own sojourn in India was, alas, too short to absolve me from dependence upon books. I was therefore glad to have the help of the native scholiast, Vāsudeva. No other scholia were accessible to me. And I gratefully record my indebtedness to Roxburgh's Flora Indica; and to several of the systematic Sanskrit treatises on plants and minerals, mentioned below, p. 177; and, last, not least, to my venerable friend, Böhtlingk. I am glad to bear the shame of not having realized earlier the profit to be had from his Hemachandra as an aid to the study of Sanskrit synonymy, if by this confession any are led to take to heart the excellent words of three and fifty years ago with which he closes his preface:

benutzen, nach wie vor Alles bei Seite liegen lassen, was auf diesem Gebiete erscheint.

It is fitting, in this fourth volume of the Series (the first to contain a preface from the General Editor), to acknowledge the twofold indebtedness of Harvard University to an alumnus, Dr. Fitzedward Hall, of the class of 1846. He has, on the one hand, honored his Alma Mater by his achievements in Oriental as well as in English philology; and, on the other, he has made to the Library of the University a gift which is unique. With pride of nativity and with loyalty to his college unimpaired by years of absence, he has given to it his rare and early Indian printed books, and — what is more — his precious collection of Sanskrit manuscripts. These manuscripts, with some five hundred purchased by me in Western India, constitute the largest and most valuable collection of the kind in America. It is my fervent hope that they may be of much service in realizing the plans of this Series, not only directly, but also by way of stimulus to Oriental research.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY, March 31, 1900.

Postscript. — July 8, 1900. In the meantime, I have submitted the proof-sheets of the entire translation to Dr. Konow, and he has returned them all with many useful suggestions of improvement or correction. For these it gives me great pleasure to make public acknowledgment of my sincere thanks.

¹ Students of English, considering the part he has borne in the production of the great "Oxford English Dictionary," and the marvellous learning thereby attested, might well enough be excused for not knowing that he had, long before, attained distinction as an Indianist. The first Sanskrit texts ever published by an American were his editions of Ātmabodh and Tattvabodh (Mirzapore, 1852). And his early writings on Indian philosophy, dramaturgy, epigraphy, etc., are still cited with deference by the best authorities of to-day.

PREFACE BY THE EDITOR OF THIS TEXT.

TWENTY-FOUR years have passed since Professor Pischel, in the preface to his edition of Hemacandra's Prākrit grammar, declared a critical edition of the Karpūramañjarī to be a necessity for the advancement of Prākrit studies. Rājaçekhara has been highly esteemed for his proficiency in the Prākrits, and it was to be hoped that a careful edition of his only Prākrit play might throw some light upon the linguistic history of India. But unfortunately, the materials then available proved to be insufficient. Since that time new manuscripts have been found, and some years ago Professor Pischel proposed to me to undertake the work, and at the same time he kindly put at my disposal the collations which he had formerly made with the view of editing the play himself. Though regretting that the edition should not proceed from his master's hand, I thankfully accepted his proposal, as he declared it impossible to find the leisure necessary for the work himself.

I have myself collated only the manuscripts NRSTUW. For ABCP, I used the collations made by Professor Pischel; and Dr. Lüders kindly collated O for me.

In the notes I have quoted all truly various readings. I leave unmentioned the ya-cruti and the dental n in the Jaina mss.; whereas, in the readings of STU, I have always transcribed the dot + consonant as double consonant. I also pass by all evident blunders in silence. The anunāsika is generally indicated by the same sign as the anusvāra; and this fact must be remembered in using the critical notes.

The chief aim of this edition then is a linguistic one. But besides, I have also been guided by another consideration. I often had to regret that no chrestomathy of the Prākrits of the plays exists, and it was my hope that the Karpūramañjarī might be used as such one. This consideration has also, to some extent, influenced my work. Thus I have, in some places, introduced the peculiar forms of the two dialects, even against the reading of all manuscripts. Further, the vocabulary is composed with the aim to serve students learning Prākrit. To study those dialects it is, naturally, necessary to know Sanskrit, and I therefore always refer to the corresponding Sanskrit form, where this is possible. I have not made any attempt to give an etymological index, nor have I intended to furnish a vocabulary which might be sufficient without knowledge of Sanskrit.

From the same point of view I did not think it convenient to add a translation. And I was also convinced that it should be impossible to me to translate such an intricate text satisfactorily, as long as English was not more familiar to me. On the other hand the general editor, from quite another point of view, thought it necessary to add a translation. Upon his request I therefore made an attempt to render the text in English. But I soon felt how unsatisfactory my work must be, and what I sent Professor Lanman can hardly be called more than a rude paraphrase. I was therefore very glad to hear that he would work out a translation himself.

My best thanks are due to those who have, in various ways, aided me in the work, to Professor H. Jacobi, Dr. H. Lüders, and Dr. A. Stein; to the government of Madras for the courtesy and kindness with which it forwarded new materials to me; but above all to Professors Pischel and Lanman. To the rich knowledge and kind benevolence of the former I never appealed in vain, and though overloaded with other works, he has kindly read the proofs of text and vocabulary. And the kind interest which Professor Lanman has taken in my work, and the unselfish assistance which he has rendered me, cannot, in any respect, be measured from his prefatory remarks.

CRITICAL ACCOUNT OF THE MANUSCRIPTS.

The Text. — This edition of the text of the Karpūra-mañjarī is based upon the following manuscripts:

- A. Jaina ms., 8 leaves, with 9-13 lines on each page; 9½ inches by 4½ inches. Contains javanikāntara i. See Bhandarkar, Report on the search for Sanskrit mss. in the Bombay Presidency during 1882-83, Bombay, 1884, p. 156, no. 418. The colophon reads: iti çrīkharatāṇavabhogaṇadinamaṇiçrījīvasāgarasūriçiṣyavācanācāryaviracitāyām karpūramamjarīmahānāṭikāyām prathamam javanikāmtaram vivṛttam idam || çrī || rājanpure likhitam || rājanpure likhitam ||. Vācanācārya must be the author of a commentary on the Karpūramañjarī. Of this commentary a few traces are left. An incorrect ms. Aspirates are doubled; nd is often substituted for nt. Codex A is therefore possibly copied from a South Indian original. Cp. Pischel, Nachrichten, Göttingen, 1873, 206 ff.
- B. Jaina ms., 8 leaves, with 15 lines on each side;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  inches by  $4\frac{1}{2}$  inches. Prākrit text, Sanskrit translation, and some glosses. Contains javanikāntara i., the beginning of ii., as far as hidaāvajjam (ii. 1³), and the end from sā rayaṇamayī (iv. 1965). See Kielhorn, Report on the search for Sanskrit mss. in the Bombay Presidency during 1880–81, Bombay, 1881, p. 83, no. 22. The colophon reads: iti çrīkarpūramamjarīnāṭikā kasya [!] samāptā. sam. 1600 varṣe çrīmahimanagare.
- C. Jaina ms., 11 leaves, with 8 lines on each page;  $9\frac{3}{4}$  inches by  $4\frac{1}{2}$  inches. Fol. 3 is wanting. Contains javanikāntara ii. See Bhandarkar, l.c., p. 156, no. 419. The colophon reads: iti çrīkhugatāṇanabhogaṇa-çrījinasāgarasūriçiṣyavācanācāryaviracitāyām karppūramamjaryyām dvitīyam javanikāmtaram vṛttam  $\|$  çrī  $\|$  ciṭhṭhadu edam likhidam dāva diṇeso diyo mahio  $\|$  ehi payaṭṭadu samto saccam saccam kuṇamto vva  $\|$  1  $\|$  rāyapuraṭhṭhideṇa udīyajādisirorattasirinarasimhasūṇujādeṇa likhidam jjeva  $\|$  Kappūramamjarīnāḍaam. Codex C has the same peculiarities as A, and seems to be a continuation of that ms.
- N. A modern Nāgarī ms., 16 leaves text, 13 leaves translation, with 15 lines on each page; 13 inches by  $8\frac{1}{4}$  inches. The water-mark has the date 1859. Several lacunas. Conclusion of the text wanting. See Weber, Verzeichniss der Sanskrit- und Prākrit-handschriften der Königlichen Bibliothek in Berlin, Berlin, 1886, no. 1558. The doubling of the aspirates and the occasional writing of nd for nt point to a South Indian origin; and forms such as dimnna for dimbha and a few instances of ya-çruti (or writing of an intervocalic y in cases of secondary hiatus, as in rayaṇa for raaṇa) show influence from Jaina mss.

- 0. A modern Nāgarī ms., 21 leaves, with 18 lines on each page;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  inches by  $9\frac{1}{2}$  inches. Prākrit text with some glosses. Sometimes corrections in the margin. In a few places defective. The ms. was copied after the year 1830. See Aufrecht, Catalogue of the Bodleian mss., p.  $146^b$ , no. 313.
- P. Copy from a Jaina ms., 46 leaves, with 15 lines on each page, 11½ inches by 5½ inches. Complete text and translation. Modern and very incorrect. See Kielhorn, l.c., p. 83, no. 23. After each javanikāntara is the following colophon: iti çrīmatsūryavamçodbhavasahigilakulāvatamsaçrīmatprayāga (i. and ii., prayoga) dāsāmgajaçrīpremarājaviracite karpūrakusumanāmni karpūramamjarībhāṣye . . . yavanikāmtaram samāptam. Ends: çubham bhavatu || samvat 1931 prathamaāṣāḍhaçuklapakṣe tithāu ṣaṣṭyām çanīvāre likhitam idam vyāsagopīdāsātmajena || malākhyanāmnā || çrījayaçīlanagare ||.
- R. Copy of the ms. no. 417 of the Raghunatha temple library. See Stein, Catalogue of the Sanskrit manuscripts in the Raghunatha temple library of His Highness the Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir, Bombay, 1894, p. 77. I owe the possession of the transcript to the kindness of Dr. Stein, who had his assistant, pandit Sahajabhaṭṭa, make it for me. Incorrect; some lacunas; conclusion wanting. Text, with the commentary of Vāsudeva.
- S. Copy of the Tanjore ms., no. 10634, prepared for me through the liberality of the government of Madras. Text with some lacunas. See Burnell, Classified index to the Sanskrit mss. in the palace at Tanjore, London, 1880, p. 168<sup>a</sup>. Grantha letters.
- T. Copy of the Tanjore ms., no. 5253, made for Professor Pischel at the request of the late Dr. Burnell. Complete text, with some lacunas. Very incorrect. See Burnell, l.c.
- U. Copy of the Tanjore ms., no. 10633°, Grantha, prepared for my use. Text with Sanskrit version. Some lacunas. See Burnell, l.c.
- W. Jaina ms., 21 leaves, with 13–14 lines on each page,  $10\frac{1}{2}$  inches by  $4\frac{1}{2}$  inches. Complete text, with marginal paraphrase. See Weber, no. 1557. The colophon reads: samattā kappūramamjarī nāma nāḍikā mahākaiņo sirirāyasehassa kadā . . . samvat 1520 varṣe çāke. The groups th and ddh are, as a rule, not to be distinguished in this ms.

Commentaries. — Furthermore, I have used the following commentaries: Vāsudeva's gloss in the Raghunatha temple ms. and in the edition of our play in the Kāvyamālā.

- K. The commentary of Kṛṣṇasūnu in a transcript of the Tanjore ms., no. 10633<sup>b</sup>, belonging to Professor Pischel (see Burnell, l.c.). A new copy was given me by the government of Madras together with S and U.
- J. Pītāmbara's Jalpatiratnamañjarī (Kielhorn, l.c., p. 65, no. 242), collated by Professor Pischel. This is a different work from that contained in the corrupt mss. described by Weber, l.c., nos. 1559, 1560.

Among these mss. we can distinguish two distinct groups: a South Indian group, comprising STU; and a Jaina-group, to which belong ABCPW.

STU agree in most particulars and must be traced back to a common source. The doubling of a consonant is indicated by a dot before the consonant; lingual l is substituted for dental l; etc. Moreover, where the discrepancies between the manuscripts are very considerable, STU have, generally speaking, the same reading. Thus e.g. i. 6, 7, 8<sup>3</sup>, 9, 10, 14<sup>2</sup>, 18<sup>13</sup>, 20<sup>1,2</sup>, 22<sup>a</sup>, 32<sup>1</sup>; ii. 29<sup>c</sup>, 34<sup>a</sup>, 41<sup>5</sup>; iii. 4<sup>1,5</sup>, 5<sup>2</sup>, 8<sup>a</sup>, 20<sup>3</sup>, 22<sup>8</sup>; iv. 1<sup>5</sup>, 9<sup>5 ff</sup>, 18<sup>25 ff</sup>, 20<sup>9</sup>, etc. And in the South Indian group, STU, the conclusion (which is entirely missing in the Jaina group) is different from that in NO (R is incomplete).

Burnell was of opinion that T was copied from S. But in iv. 24, T and U agree, as against S. See also i.  $20^{30}$ ,  $21^b$ ,  $30^a$ ,  $33^d$ ; ii.  $41^9$ ,  $42^3$ ; iii.  $1^d$ ,  $3^{8,9}$ ,  $4^{a,5,8,9}$ , etc. It must therefore be concluded that T is copied from U, perhaps with corrections from S (cp. ii.  $11^1$ ,  $16^b$ ,  $41^{9^{f}}$ ; iii.  $22^9$ , etc.). The commentary of Kṛṣṇasūnu agrees with this group; and in the final stanza, with S.

The Jaina mss. are characterized by some common blunders and omissions. Cp. rīdīāu, i.  $1^a$ ; further, i. 7,  $19^7$ ,  $20^{11}$ ; iii.  $4^1$ , etc. Moreover, the complete absence of the conclusion in all these mss. is too extraordinary to be a mere accident. In many readings also, this group differs from the other mss. Cp. i.  $9^{a,b}$ ,  $15^d$ ; ii.  $11^b$ ,  $48^b$ ; iii.  $1^b$ , iv.  $2^{10}$ ,  $6^d$ , etc.

Among the Jaina mss., B and W are relatively old. B is very corrupt; W is much better. Both are North Indian mss. B was copied in Mahim (in the Rohtak District) and bought for government in Bikaner. The origin of W is not known.

A and C are attributed in their colophons (which mention the lost commentary) to Vācanācārya, the pupil of Jinasāgara, "the sun in the sky of Kharatāṇa." "Jinasāgara was the first high-priest of a new branch of the Kharatara sect, which was established in 1630 A.D.," says Bhandarkar, l.c., p. 44. Cp. Klatt, Indian Antiquary, xi. 250, and Specimen of a literary-bibliographical Jaina-onomasticon, Leipzig, 1882, p. 39. A and C were copied in Rājanpur, Punjab, perhaps from a South Indian original. See above; cp. also the reading gauttāṇā in A, i. 19<sup>5</sup>.

P is a modern transcript, copied and bought in Jesalmir, from a Jaina ms. It is perhaps in some places influenced by the South Indian group (cp. i. 12<sup>8</sup>; ii. 45<sup>b</sup>, etc.); but it is clearly shown to belong to the Jaina group by the agreements mentioned above, p. xxv.

The remaining mss., NOR, are all quite modern. They generally agree with the Jaina group, as against STU; cp. i.  $18^{8, 9, 13}$ ,  $20^{1, 2}$ ,  $22^a$ , etc., and consider, above all, the blunder which they have in common at ii.  $28^c$ . They therefore seem to be derived from the same source as the Jaina mss. On the other hand they have so many common blunders and various readings that they must be classed apart; cp. i.  $8^b$ ,  $9^b$ ,  $10^b$ ,  $15^b$ ,  $18^{10, 19}$ ,  $20^7$ ,  $34^8$ ; ii.  $1^3$ ,  $6^{19}$ ,  $29^a$ , etc. In the first act, N shows a nearer connection with R, as at i. 7, 8,  $12^8$ ,  $13^1$ ,  $15^a$ ,  $16^{1, 3}$ ,  $20^{34}$ ,  $32^2$ ,  $34^b$ ,  $25^c$ , etc. Both N and R have the aspirates doubled in the South Indian way.

O and R are much more closely connected; cp. the critical notes to i.  $4^1$ . Some common blunders, which are not mentioned in the critical notes, point in the same direction: such are joeham instead of jonham, i.  $1^a$ ; nihittagā- instead of -gga-, i.  $4^c$ ; esya instead of ettha, i.  $12^b$ ; lagohim instead of laggehim, i.  $16^a$ ; the very frequent writing of d instead of tt, etc. Many other readings are common characteristics of O and R: see i.  $4^{10}$ ,  $5^5$ ,  $9^b$ ; ii.  $0^5$ ,  $12^b$ ,  $25^b$ ,  $29^a$ ,  $31^d$ ,  $42^{23,27}$ ; iii.  $1^b$ ,  $22^{5,6}$ ; iv.  $9^{5\pi}$ , etc.

NOR also sometimes differ from each other. Especially we find not seldom that N agrees with the South Indian group (cp. i.  $4^{d,2,17}$ ; ii.  $31^d$ ; iii.  $20^{11}$ ; iv.  $20^{11}$ , etc.) and OR with W (e.g., ii.  $45^b$ ; iii.  $16^c$ ; iv.  $9^{b,8}$ ,  $17^a$ ,  $18^{38}$ ,  $20^4$ , etc.). But still NOR must be classed together.

The manuscripts of the Karpūramañjarī must therefore be classed according to the following diagram:

2. Rājacekhara's Life.

Earlier Opinions as to Rājaçekhara's Date. — The name of Rājaçekhara has been known to Indian scholars ever since the beginning of our century. Extracts from two of his works were published by the late H. H. Wilson. That critic also tried to fix as his date the end of the eleventh or the beginning of the twelfth century A.D.

Aufrecht, in his treatise on the Çārngadharapaddhati, collected the different verses ascribed in that anthology to the name of Rājaçekhara and expressed himself (p. 77) to the effect that, in his opinion, the poet was the immediate predecessor of Jayadeva.

Anundoram Borooah is of opinion that the tradition according to which Rājaçekhara is said to have been a contemporary of Çamkara should be trusted, and that, accordingly, "we can safely fix the seventh century as his probable date."

I pass by the opinion of F. Max Müller that Rājaçekhara lived in the fourteenth century, as being founded on a confusion of our poet with a younger Rājaçekhara who wrote the Prabandhakoça, about 1347 A.D. (see p. 196).

The different allusions made by the poet himself in his works were discussed by Pischel, who came to the conclusion that Rājaçekhara must have lived at the end of the tenth or the beginning of the eleventh century.

Peterson and Durgāprasāda assure us that Rājaçekhara's real date is the middle of the eighth century; which, according to them, is shown by the fact that Kṣīrasvāmin, who was the teacher of Jayasimha of Kashmir (A.D. 750), quotes a verse from the Viddhaçālabhañjikā, and that the king Mahendrapāla, to whom Rājaçekhara himself refers as being a pupil of his own, was reigning in 761 A.D.

Vaman Shivram Apte, in discussing these various views, comes to the conclusion that Rājaçekhara lived between the end of the seventh and the middle of the tenth century, most probably about the end of the eighth, because he quotes Bhavabhūti and is himself quoted in the Daçarūpa.

Durgāprasāda and Paraba place our poet between 884 and 959 A.D.

Rājaçekhara's Relations to Mahendrapāla, and to the Latter's Son, Mahīpāla. — Rājaçekhara, in all his four extant plays, declares himself to be the spiritual teacher of a king Mahendrapāla or Nirbhayarāja. Cp. Viddh. i. 6 (ed. Ārte), Raghukulatilako Mahendrapālaḥ sakalakalānilayaḥ sa yasya çiṣyaḥ; Karp. i. 5, Mahindavālassa ko a gurū; i. 9, Ņibbhararāassa taha uvajjhāo; Bālar. i. 5, Nirbhayaguruḥ; Bālabh. i. 11, devo yasya Mahendrapālanṛpatiḥ çiṣyo Raghugrāmanīḥ.

Aufrecht had declared Mahendrapāla and Nirbhaya to be one and the same person, and their identity was proved by Pischel, p. 1221. Nirbhaya, accordingly, is a biruda or ὄνομα πανηγυρικόν of Mahendrapāla. The mss. of the Karpūramañjarī are in favor of the form Nibbhara (only the Jaina mss. read Nibbhaya), and Nirbhaya may be a false Sanskrit translation of this name.

Mahendrapāla's son was Mahīpāla, the paramount sovereign of Āryāvarta, i.e., according to Bālar. vi. 52¹ (p. 170.6, ed. Govinda), the country to the north of the Narmadā. Cp. Bālabh. i. 7¹ (p. 2. 16, ed. Cappeller), tena (Mahīpāladevena) ca RaghuvamçamuktāmaṇinĀryāvartamahārājādhirājena çrīNirbhayanarendranandanenārādhitāḥ sabhāsadaḥ. Cp. C. Mabel Duff's Chronology of India, p. 296 and 82 ff.

Rājaçekhara lived about 900 A.D. — Now Fleet has shown that this Mahīpāla must be identified with the king Mahīpāla of the Asni inscription, dated Vikrama samvat 974—A.D. 917, and has thus proved that Rājaçekhara lived at the beginning of the tenth century A.D. As pointed out by Pischel and Fleet, the Bālabhārata was performed in Mahodaya, and Mahodaya is another name of Kānyakubja (Bālar. x. 87¹, 89° = p. 306. 6, 15), with which town Mahendrapāla and Mahīpāla are connected in the Siyadoni inscription. See Kielhorn, p. 170 f. For Mahendrapāla we have the dates 903—4 and 907—8. Fleet was not aware of the fact that Mahendrapāla must be another son or a grandson of Nirbhayanarendra, whose real name, according to him, was Mahiṣapāla. But this form of the word is rather suspicious, and the published photograph of the Asni inscription is in favor of Mahindrapāla, as pointed out by Kielhorn, p. 171¹6. As for this form, see Bühler, Epigraphia Indica, i. 244.

Kielhorn's summing up of the names of the four sovereigns of Mahodaya or Kānyakubja or Kanauj, as presented to us by the Siyadoni inscription, together with their known dates, may here be repeated for the reader's convenience from Epigraphia Indica, i. 171:

- 1. Bhoja, A.D. 862, 876, and 882.
- 2. Mahendrapāla or Nirbhayanarendra or Mahiṣapāla, A.D. 903 and 907; pupil of the poet Rājaçekhara.
- 3. His son Ksitipāla or Mahīpāla or Herambapāla, A.D. 917; patron of Rājacekhara.
  - 4. His son Devapāla, A.D. 948.

Fleet, Indian Antiquary, xv. 105 ff., has edited an inscription from Dighwa-Dubauli, of the Mahārāja Mahendrapāla of Mahodaya, dated Harṣa samvat 155=A.D. 761-2. As shown by Fleet, xvi. 175 ff., this feudatory Mahārāja must be quite a different person from the pupil of Rājaçekhara, but may possibly have been one of his ancestors. Peterson and Durgāprasāda confounded both, and thus arrived at the false date mentioned above.

The historical facts being thus finally established, it is no longer necessary to comment upon other suggestions or conjectures respecting the poet's date. Nor can any authority be attributed to the traditional account that Rājaçekhara was a contemporary of Çamkarācārya. This opinion is founded on the Çamkaradigvijaya, a work which is, in every respect, very untrustworthy. The same must be said about the South Indian tradition according to which Rājaçekhara was king of Malabar, his real name being Kulaçekhara Perumāl. This king, according to the Keralotpatti or Keralaviçeṣamāhātmya lived in 322 A.D. (!) See Apte, p. 13, note.

Rājaçekhara's Personal History. A Yāyāvara Brahman, of the Çāiva Sect. — Rājaçekhara gives more details about himself and his family than most Indian authors. According to Bālar. i. 6<sup>b</sup>, 13<sup>d</sup>; Viddh. i. 5<sup>2</sup>, he belonged to a Yāyāvara family. Hall, p. 14, note, translates yāyāvara with 'maintainer of a sacrificial hearth'; and Nārāyaṇa Dīkṣita, in his commentary on Viddh. i. 5<sup>2</sup>, quotes Devala to show that yāyāvara means a kind of gṛhastha: dvividho gṛhastho yāyāvaraḥ çālīnaç ca, 'there are two kinds of gṛhastha, the yāyāvara and the çālīna.' But probably yāyāvara is the name of the family. The Yāyāvaras were brahmans. Apte, p. 18, justly remarks that Rājaçekhara must also be presumed to have been a brahman because he is said to be an incarnation of Bhavabhūti and because it is not becoming for a kṣatriya to be a guru or upādhyāya. On the other hand, Rājaçekhara's wife, Avantisundarī, is called, at Karp. i. 11<sup>a</sup>, "The crestgarland of the Chauhan family," and was accordingly a Rajput princess. [Conjectures about her name in Pischel's Prākrit-grammatik, p. 39–40.]

Rājaçekhara seems to have been a Çāiva. This, as pointed out by Apte, p. 19, is rendered probable by the introductory stanzas to his works. Thus two of the four introductory stanzas in the Karpūramañjarī are in praise of Çiva and Pārvatī, as are also Viddh. i. 3 and Bālabh. i. 1, 2; whereas, in the Bālarāmāyaṇa, the abstract deity "vāṇīnām gumpha" is extolled. But he cannot have been a bigot; for in the third āçvāsa of the Yaçastilakacampū we are told that he, like many other poets, when occasion arose, did honor to the religion of the Jains. See Peterson, A second report, 1884, p. 45 f.

Rājaçekhara's Place of Origin the Western Deccan. — Rājaçekhara's family seems to originate from Mahārāṣṭra, that is (cp. Bālar. x. 73¹ f², p. 302. 18 ff.), from Vidarbha and Kuntala. His great-grandfather, Akālajalada, is called, in the Bālar. i. 13¹, p. 9. 1, Mahārāṣṭracūḍāmaṇi, 'a crest-jewel of Mahārāṣṭra.' Nārāyaṇa Dīkṣita, in the introduction to his commentary on the Viddhaçālabhañjikā, tells us that Rājaçekhara in the Bālarāmāyaṇa declares himself to be from Mahārāṣṭra, and that he made use of the language of that country to a great extent. And in the colophon to the Benares edition of the Karpūramañjarī, the poet is styled Mahārāṣṭracūḍāmaṇi 'a crest-jewel of Mahārāṣṭra.' On the other hand, in the Sūktimuktāvali, Rājaçekhara's ancestor, Surānanda, is called Cedimaṇḍalamaṇḍanam, 'an ornament of the country of the Cedis.'

Apte has pointed out that our poet is especially acquainted with Southern customs and places and often alludes to Southern rivers, such as Kāverī, Tāmraparṇī, Narmadā, etc. He knows "the black cheeks, the pure smile, and the teeth rubbed white with the rind of betel, of the Draviḍa women, the curling ringlets of Karnatic maidens, the pleasure-seeking propensities of Lāṭa," etc. See Apte, p. 20 f. In the Āucityavi-cāracarcā, v. 27, a stanza by Rājaçekhara is quoted which does not occur in any of his known works:

karņātīdaçanāūkitah çitamahārāṣṭrīkaṭākṣāhatah prāuḍhāndhrīstanapīḍitah praṇayinībhrūbhañgavitrāsitah | lāṭībāhuviveṣṭitaç ca malayastrītarjanītarjitah so 'yam samprati Rājaçekharakavir Vārāṇasīm vānchati ||

'Marked by the teeth of the Karṇāṭa maidens, hurt by the sharp glances of the Mahārāṣṭra women, pressed by the voluptuous breasts of the Āndhrīs, frightened by the frown of his beloved friend, embraced by the arms of the Lāṭa maidens, menaced by the fore-finger of the women from Malaya, the poet Rājaṣcekhara nowadays is longing for Benares.' As the stanza is given by Kṣemendra, the Rājaṣcekhara here mentioned is presumably no other than our poet. The countries that are named range from Cambay to Comorin, and justify little more than the conjecture that Rājaṣcekhara was from the Western Deccan. And as we find him in the position of court-poet at Kanauj, far to the north, we must suppose that he, like Bilhaṇa, left his native country to seek wealth and fame at foreign courts.

Rājaçekhara at the Court of Kanauj. — Rājaçekhara seems to have been very proud of his position as the guru of king Mahendrapāla, and he mentions this fact in all his plays. In the Sūktimuktāvali we find a stanza by a pupil (antevāsin) of Rājaçekhara, beginning āgaskāriņi kāiṭabhapramathane. It would of course be impossible to tell whether this antevāsin was the king Mahendrapāla.

The poet's connection with the court of Kanauj seems to have continued on into the reign of Mahendrapāla's son and successor, Mahīpāla; for it was at the request of the latter that the Bālabhārata was represented. But we do not know how long Rājaçekhara remained at Mahīpāla's court.

Rājaçekhara at the Court of Cedi. — Rājaçekhara seems also to have had some connection with the Cedi princes. His name occurs in verse 85 of the Bilhari inscription of the rulers of Cedi, published by Kielhorn in the Epigraphia Indica, i. 251 ff. The verse runs:

suçliştabandhaghatanā vismitakavīrājaçekharastutyā | āstām iyam ākalpam kṛtiç ca kīrtiç ca pūrvvā ca ||

'May this composition, the several parts of which are well-joined, and which would deserve praise even from the wonder-struck poet Rājaçekhara, last to the end of the world, as well as the preceding eulogy.' (Kielhorn.) The reference to our poet in a Cedi inscription gains somewhat in its significance from a stanza in the Sūktimuktāvali, which is attributed to the name of Rājaçekhara, and which may perhaps be of interest in this connection:

nadīnām Mekalasutā nṛpāṇām Raṇavigrahaḥ | kavīnām ca Surānandaç Cedimaṇḍalamaṇḍanam ||

'The Narmadā among rivers, Raṇavigraha among kings, and Surānanda among poets adorn the country of the Cedis.' This verse seems to be written in praise of Raṇavigraha, and if that be the case, it cannot belong to the younger Rājaçekhara. As shown by Fleet, Raṇavigraha is a biruda of the Cedi prince Çamkaragaṇa, who lived about the middle of the tenth century. We may therefore, perhaps, conclude that Rājaçekhara at some time of his life had connection with the Cedi court.

Rājaçekhara's Ancestry. — Some details about Rājaçekhara's ancestry are given in his works. His father was a high minister, mahāmantrin (Bālar. i. 7<sup>2</sup>; Bālabh. i. 8<sup>18</sup>), Durduka (Bālar. i. 13<sup>1</sup>), or Duhika (Viddh. i. 5<sup>2</sup>); and his mother's name was Çīlavatī (Bālar. i. 13<sup>1</sup>). Poetical skill appears to have been traditional in the family. In a well-known stanza, Bālar. i. 13, we read:

sa mūrtto yatrāsīd guņagaņa ivākālajaladaḥ Surānandaḥ so 'pi cravaņapuṭapeyena vacasā | na cānye gaṇyante Tarala-Kavirāja-prabhṛtayo mahābhāgas tasminn ayam ajani yāyāvarakule ||

'This illustrious man (Rājaçekhara) was born in the Yāyāvara family; to which belonged Akālajalada, like a host of virtues incarnate; and Surānanda, whose words are worthy of being drunk in by the ears; not to speak of others, such as Tarala and Kavirāja.' See Aufrecht, p. 77. Pischel, p. 1223, gives a slightly different translation, and remarks that the verse does not prove that Tarala and Kavirāja belonged to Rājaçekhara's family.

But in a stanza, given by Peterson in his Second Report, p. 59, and probably written by the younger Rājaçekhara, it is expressly stated that Tarala was a yāyāvara.

Akālajalada was the great-grandfather of Rājaçekhara: see Bālar. i. 13¹; Viddh. i. 5³; Aufrecht, p. 4. Stanza 777 of Çārāgadhara's Paddhati is attributed to Akālajalada; and as his name is ingeniously woven into the stanza, with a double or hidden meaning (see Aufrecht, p. 4), we can hardly doubt the correctness of the attribution. The Subhāṣitāvali contains the same stanza, as no. 843; and here it is attributed to a "Southerner," dākṣiṇātya.¹ But whether this Southern poet, Akālajalada, the author of the stanza, is identical with the ancestor of Rājaçekhara is not yet proved. According to a stanza ascribed to Rājaçekhara in the Sūktimuktāvali, the dramatist Kādambarīrāma plagiarized from Akālajalada and thereby achieved fame as an excellent writer. See Peterson's introduction to the Subhāṣitāvali, p. 102.

Surānanda must also have been a poet, as may be inferred from the epithets given to him by Rājaçekhara, in the Raṇavigraha stanza (above, p. 182), and as is directly stated in the stanza just quoted (p. 182).

Tarala's name occurs in a stanza which, in the Sūktimuktāvali and the Harihārāvali, is given under Rājaçekhara's name:

Yāyāvarakulaçrener hārayaṣṭeç ca maṇḍanam | suvarṇabandharuciras Taralas taralo yathā ∥

'As the central gem, brilliant with golden setting, adorns the necklace, thus Tarala, illustrious on account of his Suvarnabandha, adorns the Yāyāvara family.' Suvarnabandha, with its double meaning, seems to contain an allusion to some work of Tarala.

As for Kavirāja, this must mean a different person from the author of the Rāghavapāṇḍavīya, if indeed the word is here used as a proper name. It is, of course, often merely a honorific title, and is applied to various poets. Thus Rājaçekhara himself, according to Karp. i. 9<sup>a</sup>, was successively called bālakavi and kavirāja; and, at Viddh. i. 5<sup>2</sup>, he calls himself Kavirājaçekhara—cp. Bilhari inscription, p. 182. See Pischel, Die Hofdichter, p. 37.

3. Rājaçekhara's Extant Writings.

Four plays are extant which are ascribed to  $R\bar{a}$  jaçekhara. Their names are as follows:

- 1. Karpūra-mañjarī.
- 2. Viddha-çālabhañjikā, or 'The Statue.'
- 3. Bāla-rāmāyaņa.
- 4. Bāla-bhārata or Pracanda-pāndava.

Karpūra-mañjarī [= Camphor-cluster]. — This is, in my opinion, the oldest of our poet's plays: see below. It is called a Saṭṭaka. This word is said, at i. 6, to mean a kind of Nāṭikā where the praveçakas and viṣkambhakas are wanting. The Sāhityadarpaṇa (no. 542) adds that it is written entirely in Prākrit; that the "marvellous flavor" (adbhuta rasa) prevails in it; that its acts are named javanikā; and that it, in other particulars, is like the Nāṭikā; further (no. 429), that the title of a Saṭṭaka, as well as that of a Nāṭikā, is to be taken from the name of the heroine. And the Karpūramañjarī and the Ratnāvalī are cited as titles exemplifying the rule.

The Karpūramañjarī contains four acts called javanikāntara. It tells us how the king Caṇḍapāla marries Karpūramañjarī, the daughter of the Kuntala king, and thus becomes a paramount sovereign. The jealousy of the queen, and the machinations that bring the king and the heroine together, form the plot of the play. The adbhuta rasa is represented by the sorcerer Bhāiravānanda and his tricks. See Apte, p. 22 f.; Lévi, p. 249 f.

That the Karpūramañjarī is the oldest of Rājaçekhara's known plays I am inclined to infer from the circumstance that it was not, like the other plays, acted at the request of the king, but by the wish of the poet's wife Avantisundarī.

The Karpūramañjarī was edited for the first time by Vāmanācārya in The Pandit, 1866–72. Then follows the edition by Durgāprasāda and Paraba, 1887.

I have seen two paraphrases of the Karpūramañjarī in modern vernaculars. The first is a Hindī translation by the well-known poet Hariçcandra (cp. Grierson, The modern vernacular literature of Hindustan, Calcutta, 1889, no. 581), and was printed in the year 1883. The other is a Marāṭhī translation, Bombay, 1890. See the chronological list under 1883 and 1890.

Of the existing commentaries, the best known is that of Vasudeva, which Durgāprasāda and Paraba have subjoined in their edition. It is hardly more than a Sanskrit paraphrase, and is of relatively small value. Much better is the South Indian commentary of Kṛṣṇasūnu. Pītāmbara's Jalpatiratnamañjarī is also of some use. The commentary of Dharmadāsa is known to me by name only. It is quoted by Durgāprasāda and Paraba in their edition of the play. For further information, see the critical account of the mss., p. xxiii ff.

Viddha-çālabhañjikā. — The next production of our poet seems to have been the Viddha-çālabhañjikā or The Statue. This is a Nāṭikā in four acts, and the author seems, in several points, to have imitated the Ratnāvalī. In one passage (iv. 1<sup>19</sup> = p. 113. 12 ff. in the edition of Ārte) the plays of Çrīharṣa are perhaps directly alluded to. The plot is quite similar to that of the Karpūramañjarī. The King Candravarman of Lāṭa has no son. He therefore tries to pass off as a boy his only daughter Mṛgān̄kāvalī, and sends her under the name of Mṛgān̄kavarman to the Queen of King Vidyādharamalla.

In the first act, Vidyādharamalla tells the Vidūsaka that he has, in a dream, seen a beautiful girl; but that, as he tried to catch her, she escaped, leaving her necklace. This was, as we learn in the third act, no dream, but an actual fact brought about by the contrivings of the King's minister, who knew who the disguised "boy" in the Queen's apartment An attendant persuades "the boy" to enter the King's sleepingroom, telling her that she would there meet the god of love. A seer had already foretold that whoever should take Mṛgānkāvalī to wife would become a universal emperor. And on this account the minister desired to bring it about that his royal master and Mṛgānkāvalī should fall in love with each other. Afterwards, the King sees in the garden some maidens amusing themselves at swinging, and among them recognizes the face he saw in his dream. He is now thoroughly enamored. In a pleasure house he beholds a picture and a statue of Mṛgānkāvalī, and puts the necklace on the statue. At last he gets a glance of the girl herself, but she immediately disappears.

In the second act, after some irrelevant incidents, the King again beholds his beloved, and learns that she is, in her turn, enamored of him.

In the third act, after a long dialogue, and a trick played by the Vidūṣaka upon the Queen's confidante Mekhalā, we find the King and the Heroine together in the garden. But their meeting is brought to a sudden end by the announcement of the approach of the Queen.

In the fourth act, the Vidūṣaka and his wife appear on the stage, the latter, asleep. In her sleep, she discloses the fact that the Queen is intending to make the King marry Mṛgāākavarman in the disguise of a woman, in order to get her revenge for the trick played upon Mekhalā. Further on, the wedding takes place; and now a messenger comes from Candravarman to announce that his master has got a son, and that the supposed Mṛgāākavarman is in fact the daughter of Candravarman.

A good résumé of the play is given by Wilson, ii. 354-60. See also Apte, p. 24; Lévi, p. 245. Apte passes judgment on the literary merit of the play at p. 28.

The play was represented at the request of çrīyuvarājadeva (i. 54), that is, according to Wilson, the heir-apparent, probably at his installation in the joint administration of the government. The heir-apparent must be Mahīpāla. But, as shown above (p. 181), there is some evidence that Rājaçekhara was connected with the Cedi princes. It is therefore possible that Yuvarājadeva may be one of the Cedi princes, either Keyūravarṣa Yuvarājadeva I., who reigned about the middle of the tenth century, or Yuvarājadeva II., who was a contemporary of king Vākpati of Mālava. See Kielhorn, Epigraphia Indica, ii. 304; and cp. C. Mabel Duff, Chronology of India, p. 293.

The Viddhaçālabhañjikā was edited by Vāmanācārya (1866–71), Jīvānanda Vidyāsāgara (1873 and 1883), and Bhāskar Rāmchandra Ārte (1886). Ārte has subjoined the commentary of Nārāyaṇa Dīkṣita, the son of Rañganātha Dīkṣita and a pupil of Dāmodara. Nārāyaṇa was a native of Mahārāṣṭra; according to Aufrecht, he lived in the eighteenth century.

Bāla-rāmāyaṇa. — This is a Nāṭaka in ten acts. Of all Indian dramas it is probably the greatest in bulk. The prologue alone, as Apte observes, is as long as an act, and each act has the bulk of a Nāṭikā like the Ratnāvalī. The number of stanzas is 741. It is hard to see how so lengthy a play could well have been brought out upon the stage. And the author himself seems to have felt this difficulty; for he says (at i. 12): "If some wise critic should find it to be a fault of this Bālarāmāyaṇa that it is too long, that acute critic should be asked whether or not some virtue is to be found in the diction. And if this be the case, well then, let him read and enjoy my six compositions." It is here of no importance whether the prologue is a later addition to the play, as is made probable by Pischel, p. 1227. On the other hand, we may conclude from the words of i. 1² that the play was really represented at the request of the king Mahendrapāla.

piece. Such a treatment is in prospect from the pen of Mr. Montgomery Schuyler, Jr., a pupil of my friend, Professor Jackson of Columbia University.—C. R. L.]

The Bālarāmāyaṇa relates the whole history of Rāma from Sītā's svayamvara to the slaying of Rāvaṇa and the return to Ayodhyā after Sītā had passed through the ordeal of fire. Rāvaṇa is from the very beginning represented as the jealous rival of Rāma and as taking a part in the svayamvara; and his love and longing play a much more prominent rôle than his ferocity and cruelty. The banishment of Rāma is, in the Bālarāmāyaṇa, brought about by Çūrpaṇakhā and other demons under the disguise of Daçaratha and Kāikeyī.

A full analysis of the play is hardly called for. It would involve a repetition of well-known incidents. The reader may consult Lévi, p. 272 ff.; Apte, p. 31 ff.; and Baumgartner, Das Rāmāyaṇa und die Rāma-literatur der Inder, Freiburg im Breisgau, 1894, p. 126.

As for his sources, the poet seems to give some hints concerning them in the stanza at Bālar. i. 16 and Bālabh. i. 12, which is ascribed to Dāivajña:

babhūva Valmīkabhavaḥ purā kavis tataḥ prapede bhuvi Bhartṛmeṇṭhatām | sthitaḥ punar yo Bhavabhūtirekhayā sa vartate samprati Rājaçekharaḥ ||

'He who in former days was the poet sprung from the ant-hill (Vālmīki) and subsequently assumed on earth the form of Bhartṛmenṭha and who again appeared in the person of Bhavabhūti, the same is now Rājaçekhara.'

That our poet is largely indebted to the works of Vālmīki and Bhavabhūti is clearly shown by Apte. For the most part he drew upon the Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki; and where he deviated, "he clearly imitated Bhavabhūti; and there are unmistakable signs that he had the Mahávíracharita before him at the time of writing this play [cp. e.g. Bālar. x. 65 and Mahāv. i. 55]. . . . In the sixth act, he follows Bhavabhūti in exculpating Daçaratha's wife. . . . The scene of Lanka and Alaka is a clear imitation of Bhavabhūti etc." See Apte, p. 37, 38. Lévi (p. 292 f.) speaks of Rājaçekhara's relation to Bhavabhūti, and shows (Appendice, p. 37) that the former occasionally imitated Kālidāsa.

Bhartṛmenṭha is less known. Cp. Peterson and Durgāprasāda, Introduction, p. 92; Bühler, Detailed report of a tour in search of Sanskrit mss., Bombay, 1877, p. 42; Aufrecht, ZDMG. 36. 368; Lévi, p. 183. Bhartṛmenṭha seems also to be called Hastipaka, which word is equivalent to Menṭha. His kāvya, Hayagrīvavadha, is known from the Rājataranginī and from quotations. Now I think that Lévi was right in inferring from the verse before us that Bhartṛmenṭha has, in some way or other, treated the history of Rāma. But I cannot deem Lévi's supposition (Appendice, p. 47), that the work in which Bhartṛmenṭha did so may be the Bhaṭṭikāvya, to be a probable one. The same opinion that Lévi held, had been previously expressed by Borooah, p. 20.

Burnell's opinion of the Bālarāmāyaṇa is that "it has nothing remarkable about it but its prosy length." See Classified Index, p. 169. But it must be admitted that there are several passages of great lyrical beauty in it, and that the poet's mastery of the several languages is better shown in the Bālarāmāyaṇa than in any other of his plays.

The Bālarāmāyaṇa was edited by Govinda Deva, Benares, 1869, and by Jīvānanda, Calcutta, 1884. No complete commentary is known to exist.

Bāla-bhārata. — Rājaçekhara's last work is the Bāla-bhārata, or, as it is sometimes called, the Pracaṇḍa-pāṇḍava. Both names are used in the play itself: see i. 8<sup>b</sup> and <sup>4</sup>. It is a Nāṭaka (see text, i. 8); and as such, it ought to contain at least five acts. In fact, however, it has only two. It seems accordingly to be incomplete, and was very likely "projected on the same plan as the Bāla-rāmāyaṇa" (Apte, p. 39).

As the poet himself tells us, the Bāla-bhārata is founded on the Mahā-bhārata. See i. 4, where Rājaçekhara implores Vyāsa to grant him the help of his muse. The play has three stanzas taken directly from the Mahā-bhārata. These are: i. 18 = MBh. i. 62.53 = 2333; ii. 5 = MBh. i. 1.111 = 109 or v. 29.53 = 861; and ii. 6 = 1.110 = 108 or v. 29.52 = 860.

In the first act, the svayamvara of Drāupadī is described. In the second act we learn how Yudhiṣṭhira lost everything in gambling; how Duḥṣāsana dragged Drāupadī by the hair of the head; and how at last the Pāṇḍavas depart to the forest.

For an account of the contents, see Apte, p. 40-41. See also Wilson, ii. 361. "The story is not very interestingly told; ... but the verses are smooth and flowing," says Apte.

The play was represented at Mahodaya (Kanauj) before Mahīpāla, then paramount sovereign over Āryāvarta, and it appears to have been the last work of our poet.

The Bāla-bhārata was edited by Cappeller, Strassburg, 1885. See A. Weber's notice of the edition in Indische Studien, xviii. 481–3. It was also edited by Durgāprasād and Parab, Bombay, 1887, in the Kāvya-mālā. In this latter edition, after stanza i. 32, only the chāyā of the Prākrit passages is given.

4. Lost Works and the Anthologies.

A Tradition of More than Four Works. — Rājaçekhara speaks of "our six works" at Bālar. i. 12, as we saw, p. 186. Four of these have been discussed. Of the other two we have at present no knowledge. If we may trust the statement made at Karp. i. 9, that the poet had already achieved eminence when he wrote the Karpūramañjarī, it may be that these other two works preceded the Karpūramañjarī and were his earliest productions. And it is of course possible that they are still extant under some other author-name (such, for instance, as Candra-cūḍa), equivalent in meaning to "Rājaçekhara," but quite unlike it in form.

Fragments in the Anthologies. — The Anthologies give a considerable number of stanzas which they ascribe to Rājaçekhara. It may be that some of these are taken from "these other two works." And it is worth while to assemble them here, either as a help for future students in the identification of the two works, if they are still extant; or else as fragments, if they are lost.

My collections are made from two anthologies: the Paddhati of Çārī-gadhara, and the Subhāṣitāvali of Vallabhadeva. It is convenient to have their dates given here. Çārī-gadhara's work was written about 1363 A.D. (Grierson, Modern Vernacular Literature of Hindustan, p. 6). Vallabhadeva flourished probably between 1400 and 1450 A.D. (Bühler, Kunstpoesie, p. 71). I give first the twenty-five pratīkas of the twenty-four stanzas which I have identified as parts of Rājaçekhara's four known plays; and then those of the ten stanzas which I have not been able to trace in Rājaçekhara's writings.

The few stanzas from Vallabhadeva's collection are marked "Val."; the rest are from Çārngadhara's. In order to avoid "overrunning" of lines, I abbreviate Viddh. by V.; Bāla-r. by R.; Bāla-bh. by Bh.; and Karp. by K.

Anthology-stanzas (24) identified in Rājaçekhara's Writings. — We will first examine the stanzas given by the Anthologies with or without explicit statement of authorship, and traceable to the writings of our poet.

The following eleven are ascribed by the Anthologist to Rājaçekhara, either expressly by name, or else by reference to one of his plays, and are found in his writings:

3659. taramgaya drço. = V. iii. 27; R. iii. 25; Bh. i. 31.
3750. nirvyājā dayite. = R. iv. 44.
3757. abhyutthānam upāgate. = R. iv. 43.
3837. dhatte paākajinītale. = V. i. 43.
3928. vaktracrījita-. = V. ii. 11.

3936. vahneh çaktir. = R. v. 35.

Val. 322. udanvacchinnā. = R. i. 8. See Bhartrhari, and below, p. 190.

Val. 1411. dāhombhaḥ. = V. ii. 21. Cp. K. ii. 29.

Val. 2223. bhindānaḥ sundarīṇām. = V. i. 12. See below.

Val. 2281 = Val. 3446. lokottaram caritam. = R. ii. 51.

Val. 2282. = pṛthvi sthirā bhava. = R. i. 48.

The following eleven, accredited by the anthologist, Çārāgadhara, to "Somebody" (Kasyacit, or the like), that is, given as anonymous verses, are found in Rājaçekhara's writings:

1099. yasya vajramaner bhede. = R. iii. 66.

3077. kulagurur abalānām. "kasyāpi." = V. i. 1.

3282. padbhyām muktās. = Bh. i. 28.

3373. tad vaktram yadi. = V. i. 14; R. ii. 17.

3516. upaprākārāgram. = V. i. 31.

3591. sāirandhrīkarakrsta-. = V. ii. 23.

3719. vrajaty aparavāridhim. = V. iv. 1.

[3722. (= Val. 2223, above.) bhindāno māninīnām. = V. i. 12.]

3816. ye dolākelikārā $\dot{h}$ . = V. i. 27; cp. R. x. 55.

3912. celā $\tilde{n}$ calena. = V. ii. 9.

3929. amandamani-. = V. ii. 6.

The stanza drçā dagdham is given as an anonymous one by Vallabhadeva, no. 1309; while Çārāgadhara (no. 3078) ascribes it to Kṣemendra (about 1037 A.D.!). As a matter of fact, it is found more than a century earlier, at Viddh. i. 2. (See also Sprüche.)

Three of Rājaçekhara's stanzas occur in one recension or another of the Çatakas of Bhartrhari (about 650 A.D.?). Did our dramatist take them from his predecessor? or were they taken from Rājaçekhara by some later redactor of the Çatakas and added thereto (as was the case with Kālidāsa's anāghrātam puṣpam)? Apte discusses the question at p. 52 and deems the latter alternative the more likely. Vallabhadeva ascribes the first to Rājaçekhara, see above. For detailed references, see Sprüche, where all three are given. The stanzas are:

Bālar. i. 8, udanvacchinnā bhūḥ (see above);

Bālar. iii. 17, sthitih punye 'ranye;

Bālar. vii. 40, vahati bhuvanaçrenīm.

Anthology-Stanzas (10), "of Rājaçekhara," not yet traced.—There remain a few stanzas which the anthologies ascribe to Rājaçekhara, but which have not yet been traced by me to any of his known works. They are:

85. tam vande padmasadmānam.

251. nūnam dugdhābdhi. (See Indische Sprüche, 3806.)

3423. āhāre viratiķ. (Sprüche, 1079.) = Val. 3485, as anonymous.

Val. 2563. indor laksma.

Val. 3046. dātur vāridharasya.

174. trayo 'gnayas trayo vedāḥ.

188. Bhāso Rāmila-Somilāu.

189. aho prabhāvo vāgdevyāh.

190. Sarasvatīpavitrāņām.

The first of these ten looks like the introductory stanza of some lost work. The Rājaçekhara to whom the last four are ascribed is, I opine, the younger Rājaçekhara, of later date than our dramatist (see p. 196).

5. Rājaçekhara and the Prākrit Literature.

The Literary Prākrits and the Real Vernaculars. — Rājaçekhara's writings would probably be of less importance to us if we were better informed about the history of Prākrit literature. But on this subject our knowledge is exceedingly limited. The word Prākrit itself has different meanings. Thus in modern Indian books, we find it used in the sense of vernacular; but its general use is to designate the literary dialects described by the Prākrit grammarians. These dialects were not real vernaculars, and are clearly distinguished from them by native writers, the literary dialects being called Prākrits, while the spoken vernaculars are called Apabhranças or Deçībhāṣās.

The Prākrits are, of course, developed from Apabhranças, and the first beginnings of Prākrit literature must therefore be traced back to the old literature in the vernaculars; but this task still lies beyond the reach of our abilities. From a comparative analysis of the ancient literary remains of India, it must be concluded that, from the earliest times, there were many stanzas current among the people, relating old legends and traditional tales, and that many of those stanzas were current in the old vernaculars. Most of them are probably incorporated in the great Indian epics, and our principal knowledge of them must be derived from those sources. Such stanzas are alluded to and quoted as early as in the time of the Brāhmanas; and several Vedic hymns must be reckoned to that branch of literature. But this question is connected with the history of Indian literature in general and cannot be discussed here. Our present inquiries must be restricted to the poetical literature in Prākrit proper, and I must therefore leave out of account the large Pāli literature, which has a history of its own, and also the literature of the Jainas, though this sect has exerted the preponderating influence upon the development of Prākrit literature in general. Thus most of the authors who have written on Prākrit grammar and lexicography are Jainas. And the circumstance that the Jainas chose the Māhārāṣṭrī for their literary compositions, contributed greatly to the development of that language for literary uses.

On the other hand, the Jainas cannot be supposed to have written in a language not before used in literature, and modern inquiries point to the conclusion that a large poetical literature existed in Prākrit, though only a small portion of it has come down to us. The reason for this fact is not very hard to find. The golden age of Prākrit literature falls in the time before the Sanskrit literature had reached its classical perfection. The great gap in the history of that literature, between the end of the epic period and the epoch which Max Müller called the renaissance of Sanskrit literature, has proved to be partly an illusion, and we now know that Sanskrit literature dates much farther back than was formerly supposed. But its fuller development at the hands of the great mediæval poets of India absorbed all the interest of the educated classes, and to this day the systematic searches for mss. in India have often had Sanskrit literature chiefly in view.

Early Prākrit Lyrics. — The oldest poetry of India is contained in the Vedic hymns and belongs to the religious branch of lyrics. In later times, we find this branch of literature represented by the poems of the different Indian sects, the religious catakas, the stotras, and stutis. A good deal of this literature is written in Prākrit, but must be treated in connection with the religious history of India, especially that of the Jains. It is in the secular lyrics that the Indian literature has reached its highest perfection. This literature has not produced many complete works, but is generally contained in numerous detached verses, each giving a little genre-picture of Indian life. Most of these verses are erotic, and are generally admired by the critics.

Hāla's "Seven Centuries."—Such verses were, in early times, collected into anthologies, often called çatakas or centuries. The most ancient extant anthology that we know is the Sattasaī or the "Seven Centuries" of Hāla. This work is entirely written in Māhārāṣṭrī Prākrit, and we have no knowledge of the existence of any work, of that kind and of equal age, written in Sanskrit. Hāla is another name of Sātavāhana, a name which often occurs in the Andhrabhṛtya dynasty. Hāla was probably not himself the compiler of the Sattasaī, but only the compiler's patron. The time of his life cannot be fixed with certainty, but he probably belongs to the first centuries of our era, and he must have lived a long time before Bāṇa, who, in his Harṣacarita, Introduction, verse 13, praises the Sattasaī. In Hāla's anthology, the author's name is quoted after many of the verses, and from this fact we may conclude that Prākrit lyrics have a history which goes back to a time long before Hāla. Unfortunately we do not know anything but the names of some of these poets. Nor are we much better informed as to the later development of this branch of Prākrit literature.

Jayavallabha's Vajjālagga.—Bhaṇḍarkar, Report for 1883-84, p. 17, notices a second anthology, the Vajjālagga, composed by the Çvetāmbara Jain, Jayavallabha. I cannot, from the materials at my disposal, fix his time; but the commentary of Ratnadeva is dated in the year 1393, which must, according to Bhaṇḍarkar, be of the Vikrama era, and the same scholar has found verses from the Gauḍavaho in the collection. The name Vajjālagga is derived from the systematic arrangement in vrajyās or chapters, each treating a different subject. There are 48 such chapters, which are enumerated in 5 gāthās. The total number of verses is 704; and, judging by the specimen given by Bhaṇḍarkar, the Vajjālagga must be much like to the Sattasaī. For the form of the title, cp. Bhaṇḍarkar, l.c., p. 324, comm. on stanza 4; and HD. 7. 17. The language is the Māhārāstrī.

I am not aware of the existence of other poetical anthologies in Prākrit.

Ānandavardhana's Visamabāṇalīlā. — Ānandavardhana, who, according to the Rājatarangiṇi, v. 34, obtained fame under the king Avantivarman of Kashmir (855–84), wrote a Prākrit poem, the Visamabāṇalīlā. We know this work from quotations in the author's rhetorical work, the Dhvanyāloka. These quotations seem to show that the Visamabāṇalīlā was also an anthology, probably written for the use of poets (kavivyutpattaye, Dhvanyāloka, iv. 7).

Ānandavardhana quotes verses in Apabhrança and may have composed his anthology also in Apabhrança. The quotations by Hemacandra must be taken from some such work, but we do not know anything more about it, and the Apabhrança literature lies outside of our subject. Nor can I here dwell on works such as the Rṣabhapancaçika of Dhanapala (tenth century), because it belongs to the religious literature of the Jains.

Guṇāḍhya's Bṛhatkathā. — The lyrical Prākrit literature is, for the most part, written in Māhārāṣṭrī. But the first name which occurs in the poetical Prākrit literature, is connected with another dialect, the Pāiçācī.

The poet Guṇāḍhya is said to have written his Bṛhatkathā in that language. Guṇāḍhya is commonly supposed to have lived in the first centuries of our era. See Bühler, Report, p. 47. The Bṛhatkathā was not an original work of Guṇāḍhya, but a compilation of folk-tales then current, such as the Pañcatantra and the Vetālapañcavincati, which collections are, to this day, widely spread in the modern vernaculars of India. The work itself has not been found, but we know it pretty well from the two translations, one by Kṣemendra, the Bṛhatkathāmañjarī, and the other by Somadeva, the Kathāsaritsāgara. According to the testimony of those authors and of Daṇḍin, it was written in the Pāiçācī language. This dialect is described by Hemacandra in his Prākrit grammar, iv. 303 ff., and it is probable that Hemacandra made actual use of a copy of the Bṛhatkathā. See Pischel, De Grammaticis Prācriticis, Vratislaviae, 1874, p. 33. Bühler, also, when in India, was told that manuscripts of the work were still extant.

The Pāiçācī seems to be more closely connected with the really spoken vernaculars of ancient India than is any other literary Prākrit. And that branch of literature which is represented by the Bṛhatkathā must always have been popular. In some of the Sanskrit collections of folk-tales we also find verses in the old vernaculars, the Apabhraṅças. But the history of this literature is too closely connected with the general literary and linguistic history of India to be dealt with here, and we shall only state the fact that the earliest collection of folk-tales of which we have certain knowledge was written in Prākrit.

In the Mahākāvya, on the other hand, the priority must unquestionably be assigned to the Sanskrit literature. Aside from the Rāmāyaṇa, no Prākrit kāvya can claim an antiquity equal to that of the Buddhacarita of Açvaghoṣa.

Prākrit Kāvyas. Rāvaṇa-vaha. — The oldest Prākrit kāvya is the Setubandha. This poem, whose Prākrit name is Rāvaṇavaha or Dahamuhavaha, contains in 15 Sargas the story of Rāma, from the starting of the monkey army to the slaying of Rāvaṇa. It was formerly ascribed to Kālidāsa; so by the commentator Rāmadāsa, who lived under the emperor Akbar. And also in the colophons the name of Kālidāsa occurs. But tradition generally ascribes the poem to Pravarasena. Thus Bāṇa does, in the Harṣacarita, Introduction, verse 14, and Kṣemendra, in the Aucityavicāracarcā, verse 16. According to Rāvaṇavaha, i. 9, the work seems to have been completed at the request of a king by some poet. Pravarasena was therefore probably a king. We know four kings by that name. As the Rāvaṇavaha is mentioned by Daṇḍin and Bāṇa, it cannot be later than the sixth century. Tradition seems to point to one of the two Kashmirian kings of that name. The poem was perhaps written on the occasion of the building of a great bridge over the Vitastā or Jehlam by Pravarasena II. See Rājataranginī, iii. 354. This king is now commonly placed in the sixth century after Christ.

It is likely that Pravarasena was not himself the author, but that the work was merely dedicated to him. We cannot ascertain who the real author was. But it is not probable that we have to do with a work by Kālidāsa. The excessive use of compounds is not in accord with Kālidāsa's style; and it would be difficult to understand why Bāṇa and Kṣemendra did not ascribe the work to Kālidāsa, if it were really written by him.

Bappai-rāa's Gauḍa-vaha. — Another Prākrit kāvya is the Gauḍavaha of Bappai-rāa, written about 750 A.D. and in celebration of the poet's patron, king Yaçovarman of Kanauj. This poem seems to have come down to us in mutilated form. The different parts of it are very loosely connected, and the theme itself, the slaying of the Gauḍa king, is hardly more than vaguely alluded to. The king Yaçovarman was subjugated by the king Lalitāditya of Kashmir (about 726 A.D.), and Bappairāa therefore was a contemporary of Bhavabhūti. See Rājataranginī, iv. 144. His Sanskrit name is Vākpatirājā, probably a translation of the Prākrit name.

Ānandavardhana, in his Dhvanyāloka, quotes verses from a third Prākrit kāvya, the Harivijaya of Sarvasena, which work is not otherwise known.

Rājaçekhara is not known to have written other works than dramas.

Prākrit Drama: Saṭṭakas. — The Indian drama seems to have its root partly in Sanskrit, partly in Prākrit literature. The one play which is written in Prākrit exclusively is the Karpūramañjarī. But we are, I think, right in concluding from the definition of the word saṭṭaka, given in the work itself, that the Karpūramañjarī was not the first composition of its kind. And the word saṭṭaka occurs, in the form sāḍaka, as early as on the Bharhut stūpa. The quotation from Tagore, given by Lévi, ii. 5, may help us to understand the origin of the saṭṭaka. In most characteristics it agrees with the Nāṭikā, but was perhaps classed separately, not only because it was written entirely in Prākrit, but also because a distinct kind of dancing was used in it.

Karpūra-mañjarī the only Saṭṭaka Extant. — At all events, Rājaçe-khara's work is the only extant pure Prākrit drama; and his chief importance in the history of Prākrit literature lies in the fact that he has given to us a unique specimen of a kind of literature which has perhaps a history of its own.

This Play Important for the History of the Drama.—The Karpūramañjarī is also of importance for the history of the Indian drama in general. To judge from some indications in the rhetorical literature, we must suppose that, in early times, a sthāpaka (as well as the sūtradhāra) had something to do with the arrangement of the play. But in most of the known plays, the sthāpaka has disappeared. In his recension of Lévi's book, Le théâtre Indien, in the Göttingische Gelehrte Anzeigen, 1891, p. 361, Pischel has suggested that this fact is owing to a reformation by Bhāsa (cp. Pischel, ibidem, 1883, p. 1234).

In the Karpūramañjarī we still find the sthāpaka in action. Most of the mss., it is true, have substituted the more usual word sūtradhāra for sthāpaka, where the latter occurs; but it clearly appears from the whole arrangement of the introduction that this proceeding is false. In i. 12³, we learn that the "ajjo" is busy with his wife in the tiring-room. There is no question that the word ajja or ārya in this passage means the sūtradhāra. It therefore follows that the sūtradhāra was not on the stage between the end of the nāndī and that of the prastāvanā. We must accordingly conclude that those manuscripts are right which represent a sthāpaka as coming on the stage immediately after the nāndī.

It may also be noted here that this same passage, i. 123, clearly shows that the female rôles were sometimes played by female actors.

The nāndī itself is of interest in the Karpūramañjarī, because verses are recited after it. This is a curious fact. We find the same again in the Pārvatīpariṇayanāṭaka. (Pischel, l.c., p. 360.) The Karpūramañjarī, accordingly, may be consulted with profit by the student of the general history of the Indian drama; and it is not unlikely that the Saṭṭaka has on this point preserved traces of a more ancient stage of development in this branch of literature.

6. Other Poets mentioned by Rajaçekhara.

Several Other Poets are occasionally mentioned in the Writings of Rājaçekhara. — Many of the memorial verses which occur in the anthologies, and are ascribed to him, were most probably not written by our poet. Some of them are, according to the Harihārāvali, taken from the "Bhojaprabandha of Rājaçekhara." It is, accordingly, probable that they are extracts from the Prabandhakoça of the younger Rājaçekhara, which was written in 1347. Most of those verses are collected in alphabetical arrangement, after the name of the poets mentioned, in the introduction to the edition of the Karpūramañjarī in the Kāvyamālā. In this place I can only take notice of the poets alluded to in Rājaçekhara's plays.

Hariuddha, Nandiuddha, Poṭṭisa, and Hāla are mentioned as poets at Karp. i. 20<sup>20</sup>. The Tanjore mss. of this passage, however, have, instead, the names Haribamhasiddhi (?), Oddīsa, Pālittaa, Campaarāa, and Mallasehara. With reference to these names, see Pischel, Göttingische Gelehrte Anzeigen, 1891, p. 365.

Aparājita is mentioned at Karp. i. 8³, as a poet contemporary with Rājaçekhara, and as speaking in terms of highest praise of the merits and achievements of Rājaçekhara. In the Tanjore mss., Aparājita bears the surname Babbararāa. He is said to be the author of a Mṛgānkalekhākathā. This work is not otherwise known, but was probably a composition founded on a tale like that of Kathāsaritsāgara 65. 221 ff. Stanzas by Bhaṭṭāparājita occur as no. 1024 of the Subhāṣitāvali (see also the Introduction thereto, p. 103) and in the Padyāvali.

Çamkaravarman or Kṛṣṇaçamkaraçarman was another contemporary poet. His name is mentioned in the first form at Bālar. i. 16<sup>2</sup>; and in the second at Viddh. i. 6<sup>1</sup>. He is called sabhya in the Bālarāmāyaṇa, and goṣṭhīgariṣṭha in the Viddhaçālabhañjikā; but he is not otherwise known. A Çamkaravarman occurs among the poets of the Sūktimuktāvali.

Dāivajña is mentioned at Bālar. i. 15<sup>2</sup> and Bālabh. i. 11<sup>1</sup>. This may be a proper name and refer to some contemporary poet. Or it may be a simple appellative, to be rendered by 'fortune-teller' (so Fleet, p. 176).

7. Mentions of Rājaçekhara in the Literature.

By Vasukalpa, Abhinanda, and Somadeva. — According to Aufrecht in the Catalogus catalogorum, p. 502, Rājaçekhara is mentioned in the Sūktimuktāvali as a contemporary poet by Vasukalpa and Abhinanda. We do not know anything about Vasukalpa, but we have two poets named Abhinanda. The one is known as the author of a kāvya, the Rāmacarita, and was the son of Çatānanda. The other was called Gāuḍābhinanda, and was a son of Jayanta Vṛttikāra. His great-great-grandfather lived under king Muktāpīḍa Lalitāditya of Kashmir, whose accession, according to Bühler, cannot have taken place before 724. Gāuḍābhinanda must therefore have lived about the middle of the ninth century. He is known as the author of the Kādambarīkathāsāra and of the Yogavāsiṣṭhasāra. Bühler, Indian Antiquary, ii. 102 ff., thought the two Abhinandas to be one and the same. On that point, cp. Durgāprasāda and Paraba, Kāvyamālā, Part ii. 50. Abhinanda is also quoted, Suvṛttatilaka iii. 16, 29.

Rājaçekhara's name is further mentioned in Somadeva's Yaçastilaka-campū. According to the colophon, this work was written çaka 882 = A.D. 960. As mentioned above, we are told in the third āçvāsa that Rājaçekhara occasionally pays honor to the religion of the Jains. As far as I can see, these words cannot apply to the known works of the poet.

In the Daçarūpa and the Sarasvatī-kaṇṭhābharaṇa. — The Daçarūpa quotes Karp. i. 23 (iii. 14 = p. 117 in Hall's edition), Viddh. i. 31 (iv. 50 = p. 182), and Bālar. iv. 60 (ii. 2 = p. 62). The last passage is said to be taken from the Hanumannāṭaka — see Jīvānanda's ed., ii. 14.

From the Sarasvatī-kaṇṭhābharaṇa (ed. by Anundoram Borooah, Calcutta, 1883), I have noted the following quotations: Bālar. i. 42 (p. 224); Bālar. iii. 25 = Viddh. iii. 27 = Bālabh. i. 31 (p. 214); Bālar. v. 8 = Viddh. iii. 2 (p. 315); Bālar. vi. 19 (p. 81); Bālar. vi. 34 (p. 26); Karp. i. 1 (p. 138); Karp. i. 19 (p. 348); Karp. i. 25 (p. 348); Karp. ii. 11 (p. 108); Karp. ii. 42 (p. 194); Viddh. i. 3 (p. 149); Viddh. i. 8 = Bālabh. i. 9 (p. 67); Viddh. i. 14 = Bālar. ii. 17 (p. 215); Viddh. i. 15 (p. 179); Viddh. i. 19 (p. 367); Viddh. i. 20 (p. 72); Viddh. i. 31 (p. 223); Viddh. iii. 5 (p. 104 and 214); Viddh. iii. 14 (p. 72). Cp. Colonel G. A. Jacob, Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society, 1897, p. 304 ff.

In Works of Kṣemendra. — Kṣemendra, also, in several of his works gives references from Rājaçekhara's plays. In the Āucityavicāracarcā, we find Bālar. i. 39 (v. 13); ii. 20 (v. 20); iv. 1 (v. 36); v. 11 (v. 14); x. 41 (v. 12); Bālabh. ii. 11 (v. 12); Karp. i. 18 (v. 18); and likewise the following stanzas which I cannot trace: eitācakram candraḥ (v. 15); strīṇām madhye (v. 16); Karṇātīdaçanānkitaḥ (v. 27). In the Kavikaṇṭhābharaṇa only one stanza by Rājaçekhara is quoted (nakhadalitaharidrāgranthigāure, 5. 1), and this one is not from his known works. In the Suvṛttatilaka, iii. 35, Rājaçekhara is praised for his ability in the Çārdūlavikrīḍita metre; and from his works the following two passages are given, namely, Viddh. i. 30 (at ii. 23) and Bālar. i. 63 (at ii. 41).

In the Kāvya-prakāça, Prākṛta-pingala, etc. — The Kāvya-prakāça also contains a number of citations from Rājaçekhara. Thus we find there Karp. i. 19, 20; ii. 4, 9; Viddh. i. 2; etc. (cp. Jacob, l.c., 1898, pp. 294, 303, 305, 313). Further quotations from Rājaçekhara, and mentions of him, are found in the Prākṛtapingala (Karp. i. 4, 20, 22, 23, 26; ii. 5); Gaṇaratnamahodadhi (see Pischel, p. 1223); Hemacandra's Prākrit grammar (see Pischel, l.c.); Mankha's Çrikaṇṭhacarita (xxv. 74); Abhinavagupta (see Jacob, l.c., 1897, p. 297); Ruyyaka (see Jacob, l.c., 1897, p. 307); and in later works, such as the Kuvalayānanda, the Sāhityadarpaṇa, and Mārkaṇḍeya's Prākrit grammar; also in Kāleyakutūhala.

A special interest has been attached to the quotation in Kṣīrasvāmin's commentary on Amara i. 84, where, in speaking of the form gonasa, he quotes Viddh. i. 3 to show that the form gonāsa also is used in the same sense. Kṣīrasvāmin further quotes Viddh. i. 11 to show that tāraka is neuter as well as feminine. Cp. Apte, p. 6. Peterson identified the commentator Kṣīrasvāmin with Kṣīra, who is mentioned, Rājatar. iv. 489, as the tutor of king Jayāpīḍa; and thus he came to the conclusion that Rājaçekhara was much older than we now know him to be. Aufrecht on the other hand had already stated (ZDMG. 28. 104) that Kṣīrasvāmin must have lived in the eleventh century, since he quotes Bhoja and is himself quoted by Vardhamāna.

8. Rājaçekhara's Prākrit.

Rājaçekhara was, to use Apte's words, "a poet of great learning and much information." The poet himself seems to be very proud of his linguistic skill, as he directly calls himself sarvabhāsāvicaksana (Bālar. i. 101) or savvabhāsācadura (Karp. i. 71). Bālar. i. 11, he mentions the different languages used in literary compositions: Sanskrit, Prākrit, Apabhrança, and Bhūtabhāsā. As far as we know, he himself wrote only in Sanskrit and Prākrit. It would be out of place here to discuss his knowledge of Sanskrit. It must suffice to state that he shows a great proficiency in that language. I must here be contented to examine his Prākrit. The Prākrits of the plays, it must be remembered, were no really spoken vernaculars; but rather, essentially literary fictions founded on the vernaculars. They were perpetually influenced, not only by the Sanskrit, but also by the spoken languages. Most of the so-called decī-words must be derived from this last source. Cp. S. P. Pandit's note to Dhruva's article on the Rise of the Drama, Transactions of the Ninth International Congress of Orientalists, i. 313.

Çāurasenī and Māhārāṣṭrī. — These are the only Prākrit dialects which occur in the writings of Rājaçekhara. Herein, therefore, he has not evinced a breadth of linguistic knowledge comparable with that of the author of the Mṛcchakaṭikā.

[Addition by the General Editor. — In order that this volume may be of service to students of Prākrit in America, to whom, for the most part, no help from a teacher and no elementary books will be accessible, I am constrained to make the following Addition. For a good general account of Prākrit, see Jacobi's article, "Prākrit Languages," in Johnson's Universal Cyclopædia.

The Çāurasenī is used as the conversational dialect, that is, in the prose passages; while the Māhārāṣṭrī is regularly used in the stanzas. Upon this point the beginner should consult Jacobi, Introduction, §§ 9, 10. The chief distinctive peculiarities of the Çāurasenī are succinctly stated by Jacobi, pages LXX-LXXII. These the learner should study. I am convinced that the best basis for a clear understanding of the differences between the two dialects is afforded by some concrete examples. I have therefore thought it worth while to devote a little space to a collection of some of the doublets which actually occur in this play. In the first column is given the Sanskrit form; in the second, its Çāurasenī counterpart; and in the third, the Māhārāṣṭrī form.

Çāurasenī-Māhārāṣṭrī Doublets used in this Play. —

By the help of this table it will be easy to form a clear idea of the extent to which the manuscripts, as we have them, conform to the prescriptions of the native grammarians or disregard them.]

Rare and Provincial Words.—The most striking feature of Rājaçe-khara's Prākrits is his abundant use of rare and provincial words. We give some instances from the Karpūramañjarī:

ubbimbira	cangima-	tarațți	bhasala	bakkara
olaggāviā	cațți-	tasara	bhutthalla 1	vacchoma
olla	campia	timisa	bhulla	vacchomī

galibailla	thakku ra	bola	langima-	etc.
canga	dhilla	bolei	latthaa
cangattana	ņiei	bhamaratență	lumbī

In Rājaçekhara's other works, also, many such words occur. Most of them are explained in the Prākrit grammars and lexicons; some of them have equivalents only in modern vernaculars.

[The student who uses diligently the smaller St. Petersburg Lexicon in the reading of this play cannot fail to be struck by the frequency with which the writings of Rājaçekhara, notably the Bālar., have furnished to Böhtlingk his first authentication of many words. The starred kālā-kṣarika is supported by i. 18¹. The word dhāṭī (cp. ii. 46) is one of four synonyms for 'sudden attack' (prapāta, abhyavaskanda, dhāṭī, abhyā-sādana, see Hemachandra, 800), for not one of which, in this sense, had a quotation been hitherto adduced, save a single one from Sāyaṇa (BR. v. 1524).—C. R. L.]

Marāṭhīcisms. — Marāṭhī words are used on a large scale by Rājaçe-khara, according to Nārāyaṇa Dīkshita and Apte. And indeed, on the whole, our poet seems to be largely indebted to the vernaculars. Forms such as kaṇḍāriūṇa, caṭṭi-, tasara, pakkhāujja, etc., are known only from modern dialects, and a form like dhilla represents a more advanced stage of phonetic development than the literary Prākrits in general. Compare Pischel on Hemacandra i. 89. I cannot here enter into the question concerning Rājaçekhara's relation to the spoken vernaculars, from want of sufficient materials.

The Poet sometimes confused his Two Dialects.—I must be content to touch upon the following question: Was Rājaçekhara able to distinguish correctly the two Prākrit dialects which he used in his plays? The question is difficult on account of the miserable condition of the mss. The Indian editions cannot be trusted; and the Prākrit passages in the critically edited Bālabhārata are not extensive enough to be made the basis of the inquiry. Moreover, a mere glance at the various readings suffices to show that, in most instances, the text has been restored conjecturally.

There remains the Karpūramañjarī. The mss. of this work are by no means correct nor consistent in their readings. Words such as ratna, sarasvatī, iha, manoratha, mithuna, etc., are constantly written raaṇa, sarassaī, iha, manoraha, mihuṇa, in the prose as well as in the verses. And at i. 20<sup>13</sup>, the form raaṇa in the Çāurasenī is also supported by Kṛṣṇasūnu, who gives the two translations ratna and racana. On the other hand, in all mss., we find forms like idam in verses (e.g. iv. 2<sup>a</sup>). But generally some of the mss. have the correct form. It is therefore necessary to examine critically the practice of Rājaçekhara, and to test his forms upon the touchstone of the native grammarians where they give distinct rules for dialectic usage.

Rājaçekhara's Usage tested by Mārkaṇḍeya's Prākrit Grammar.— Mārkaṇḍeya, in his Prākṛtasarvasva, gives a fuller description of the Çāurasenī than the other grammarians; and I shall try in the following paragraphs to show how some of his rules are practised by Rājaçekhara. I quote Mārkaṇḍeya after the ms. Wilson 158<sup>b</sup> in the Bodleyana (Aufrecht no. 412). The chapter on the Çāurasenī begins fol. 51<sup>a</sup> and contains nine prakaraṇas.

In the fourth prakaraņa we find a sūtra, kṣaṇakṣīrasadṛkṣāṇāṁ cchaḥ na syāt, 'cch should not be substituted [for kṣ] in kṣaṇa, kṣīra, sadṛkṣa.' In accordance with this rule I have adopted the reading sārikkha in iv. 1930, 53, 59.

According to a sūtra in the third prakarana, I should not be substituted for y in yaṣṭi (yaṣṭyām laç ca na syāt). But at Karp. ii. 622 and iv. 1964, all mss. read latthī. Cp. Pischel on Hemacandra 1. 247, where several instances of latthī are quoted from the Çāurasenī. It is not without interest that all these quotations are taken from Rājaçekhara's writings.

Mārk. vi. has the sūtra, ata uttarasya n̄er e syāt . . . idudbhyām uttarasya n̄er mmi vā syāt, 'in words ending in -a, -e is substituted for the affix of the locative singular; in words ending in -i and -u, -mmi may be substituted.' But in the Karpūramañjarī we find the following instances of -mmi in a-themes: majjhammi i. 8³, kuharammi iii. 207.

Another sūtra in the same prakaraņa runs thus: do nāsaḥ | do eva syāt . . . ād ataḥ kvacid | ato nāser āt syāt kvacit, 'for the ablative sing. only the affix do is substituted. . . . In words ending in -a sometimes ā is substituted.' Accordingly the forms ending in -himto ought not to be used in the Çāurasenī. Still in the Karpūramanjarī, forms occur such as pāmarāhimto i. 20<sup>29</sup>; tumhāhimto ii. 29<sup>12</sup>; candāhimto ii. 29<sup>13</sup>, jalāhimto iii. 3<sup>18</sup>, tumhārisāhimto iv. 2<sup>10</sup>.

In the nominative sing, masc, of the pronoun etad, Mārkaṇḍeya forbids the use of the form esa in the Çāurasenī: na esa etadaḥ | sunā etada esa na syāt. This rule is in accordance with the general practice in all critical editions. But at Karp, i. 4<sup>10</sup> and ii. 27<sup>1</sup> and iv. 20<sup>11</sup>, all mss. read esa, instead of the correct eso.

As for the verbal inflexion, the form ghettūna in the Çāurasenī, i. 123, is of interest compared with the regular genhia, iv. 19<sup>18, 39, 57</sup>.

Of less importance is the use of the dhātvādeça mu $n = j\tilde{n}$ ā in prose. Cp. Pischel on Hemacandra iv. 7, etc.

These instances point to the conclusion that Rājaçekhara's linguistic skill was not so remarkable as he likes to tell us. For some important questions in Prākrit phonology and inflexion, his writings are of no importance. I shall only mention two cases.

The question whether we have to assume a cerebral l for the Prākrits is as dubious as before. The South Indian mss. of the Karpūramañjarī always have cerebral l, the others generally l.

Nor is the use of the Anunāsika elucidated by these manuscripts. The very probable supposition that in the nom. plur. neutr. and instr. plur. the Anunāsika must be used when the final syllable is short, is neither strengthened nor weakened by the mss. Most of them write the Anusvāra or nothing. Only R sometimes uses the Anunāsika, but very irregularly, to denote a long as well as a short syllable, and U in one place (iii. 16) has the Anunāsika correctly.

After all we must therefore state that Rājaçekhara is more important for our knowledge of the Prākrit lexicography than of the phonology and inflexion.

Possible Inference as to Obsolescence of Said Dialects. — Finally, from the fact that Rājaçekhara, "who knew all languages" (i. 71), did not correctly distinguish the different Prākrits, we may infer that the living knowledge of those dialects was, at that time, considerably diminished. This supposition is not disproved by the fact that Somadeva, the author of the Lalitavigraharājanāṭaka (Kielhorn, Indian Antiquary, xx. 201 ff.; Göttinger Nachrichten, 1893, 552) writes a Prākrit which is in close accordance with the rules of Hemacandra. Hemacandra's grammar is dedicated to king Jayasimha of Anhilvād (1094–1143), and is therefore older than the Lalitavigraharājanātaka, which was written in Sāmbhar, 1153. The late Dr. Bühler, some years ago, drew my attention to the close connection between the courts of Anhilvad and Sambhar. (Cp. also Gazetteer of the Bombay Presidency, Vol. i., Part i., 179 ff.) And it is quite probable that Jayasimha sent copies of Hemacandra's grammar to Sāmbhar. If such is the case, the fact would sufficiently account for the correct Prākrit in Somadeva's work.

9. Rājaçekhara's Literary Characteristics.

Pischel's Estimate of the Poet. — Pischel has given a brief statement, p. 1227 f., which it may be well to reprint: Rājaçekhara war ein Meister des Wortes und seine Dramen sind überaus wichtig für die Kenntnis des Sanskrit und noch mehr des Präkrit. Seine Verse sind elegant und fliessend und selbst in dem entsetzlich langweiligen Bālarāmāyaṇa wird man manche Scene wegen des Wohllauts der Verse, wegen der Sprichwörter und der Anspielungen auf Sitten und Gebräuche nicht ohne Interesse und Genuss lesen. Aber als Dramatiker steht Rājaçekhara nicht hoch. Im Bālarāmāyaṇa erweist er sich als starken Nachahmer<sup>1</sup> des Kālidāsa und Bhavabhūti, in der Viddhaçālabhañjikā und der Karpūramañjarī als Nachahmer des Dichters der unter Çrīharşa's Namen gehenden Stücke, ohne dessen Witz zu erreichen. Nur im 2. und 3. Akte der Viddh. sind zwei launige Scenen eingelegt, deren Grundzüge man aber unschwer in der ersten Scene des 3. Aktes des Nāgānanda erkennt. Eine unglaubliche Geschmacklosigkeit ist die Scene im 5. Akt des Balar. (p. 119 ff.), wo die künstliche Sītā und Sindūrikā mit den Drosseln im Munde, die Sanskrit und Prākrit sprechen, auftreten.

Apte also discusses our poet's literary characteristics at length, pages 41-44. [The poet's works ought, as I think, to be translated and inter-be, I am persuaded, a fruitful one. The açoka scene of our present play recalls that of the 3, act of Mālavikā.—C. R. L.

preted by some Western scholar before a judgment is passed upon them which the Occident may fairly accept. See my notes to ii. 30, 31, 32. Native judgment sometimes goes too far in condemnation; and it often goes too far in praise. Of the latter error, the following stanza (attributed to a certain "highly cultured Çamkaravarman," at Bālar. i. 17 = Viddh. i. 7) is an example:

pātum çrotrarasāyanam, racayitum vācah satām sammatā, vyutpattim paramām avāptum, avadhim labdhum rasasrotasah, | bhoktum svādu phalam ca jīvitataror, yady asti te kāutukam, tad bhrātah çṛṇu Rājaçekharakaveh sūktīh sudhāsyandinīh — C. R. L.]

The Poet's Skill in Metres. — Rājaçekhara's masterly command of the more elaborate metres is one of his most notable characteristics. He especially excelled in Sragdharā and (as has indeed been pointed out by the Indian critic, Kṣemendra, p. 198: cp. p. 209, where the metres of the present play are given) in Çārdūlavikrīdita. Our poet's metrical skill is by no means restricted to Sanskrit; in Prākrit versification also he has shown a really remarkable power. His predecessors usually contented themselves with an occasional Anuṣṭubh or Āryā in the Prākrit portions of their plays; while Rājaçekhara (as Apte observes, p. 44) has given us nearly forty Prākrit stanzas in the highly artificial Çārdūlavikrīdita alone (they number 33). This is a matter of no mean importance to the student of Indian metres. See below, p. 206; and cp. Stenzler's metrical notes, published after his death, ZDMG. xliv. 1–82.

Rime. — Rime forms an essential element of versification in the poetry of the modern Indian vernaculars, and also in Prākrit; but not in Sanskrit. Where rime occurs in Sanskrit poetry, as, for instance, in that of Jayadeva, we may assume that the influence of the vernacular or of Prākrit poetry has been at work. It is of interest to note that Rājaçekhara makes occasional use of rime. Instances are: Viddh. i. 4, 5; iii. 8; Karp. iii. 29, 30, 31. [It may be added that two of the Magician's ribald songs, i. 22, 23, are full of internal rimes. So ii. 11.— Rime, Antya-anuprāsa, is freely used, for example, in the Gīta-govinda and Moha-mudgara. Cp. Sāhitya-darpaṇa, no. 637; Ch. P. Brown, Sanskrit Prosody, p. 21; Pischel, H., p. 208.— C. R. L.]

Proverbial Expressions. — Another prominent literary characteristic of Rājaçekhara is his fondness for the use of proverbial expressions. [In our present play, I have noted saws or proverbs or proverbial expressions at the following places: i.  $18^{10, 13, 18}$ ; ii.  $1^2$ ; iii.  $6^b$ ; iv.  $18^{8, 27}$ ;  $20^3$ ; and perhaps

ii.  $26^d$ ,  $29^{11}$ , and iv.  $20^{12}$ (?) ought to be added. Apte has collected a good many on p. 45 of his essay.

The Indian form of "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" may be mentioned, since our poet gives it at Viddh. i. 22<sup>2</sup>: it reads, "Better a partridge to-day than a pea-hen to-morrow," varam takkālovanadā tittirī na una diahantaridā morī. A far older form of the saw is given by Vātsyāyana, in the Kāmasūtra, p. 19<sup>7</sup>, ed. Bombay, who, in a most interesting carpe-diem-argument, says, "Better a dove to-day than a peacock to-morrow," varam adya kapotaḥ çvo mayūrāt. In Manwaring's Marāṭhī Proverbs, no. 516, we find "Why do you want a mirror in which to see your bracelet?" From i. 18<sup>10</sup> it appears that the saying is at least a thousand years old.

Colonel George A. Jacob informs me that he has a "Handful of Popular Maxims current in Sanskrit Literature" now (Feb., 1900) in press in Bombay.—C. R. L.]

Rājaçekhara Repeats Himself. — Cappeller has already drawn attention (p. vi f.) to the fact that Rājaçekhara frequently repeats himself. These repetitions extend sometimes over a whole stanza, sometimes only over a part. I give the following list, which is not exhaustive:

Rājaçekhara's Favorite Metres.

1. Çārdūlavikrīdita; 2. Vasantatilaka; 3. Çloka; 4. Sragdharā. — In the Suvṛttatilaka, iii. 35, Kṣemendra praises Rājaçekhara for his ability in the Çārdūlavikrīdita; and this metre is, in fact, used to a great extent in his works. Thus I have noted 208 instances from the Bālarāmāyaṇa, 41 from the Bālabhārata, 36 from the Viddhaçālabhañjikā, and 24 from the Karpūramañjarī. The second place in frequency must be attributed to the Vasantatilaka, which metre occurs 159 times in the Bālar., 25 in the Bālabh., 11 in the Viddh., and 23 in the Karp. The third place in frequency is held by the Çloka. Of this there are 126 instances in the Bālar., 25 in the Bālabh., and 3 in the Viddh. To the Sragdharā belongs the fourth place, with 94 occurrences in the Bālar., 12 in the Bālabh., 10 in the Viddh., and 11 in the Karp.

5. Āryā; then Triṣṭubh; etc., etc.—Of other metres, the following occur more or less frequently:

$ar{ ext{A}} ext{ry}ar{ ext{a}}$	$Prthv\bar{i}$	Vaṅçastha
$\mathbf{U}$ pagīti	Praharșiņī	Vasantamālikā
Gīti	Mandākrāntā	Çālinī
Triṣṭubh	Mālinī	Çikharini
Drutavilambita	Rathoddhatā	Svāgatā
Puṣpitāgrā	Rucirā	Hariņī

To these must be added some very free Prākrit metres, such, for instance, as Viddh. i. 4, 5; ii. 7; iii. 8, and Karp. iii. 29, 30. The two stanzas last mentioned are of a form not known from other sources. The stanza iii. 29 forms the half of a Mātrāsamaka, but is shown by the rime to be intended as a complete stanza. Each pāda consists of 8 syllabic instants. The following stanza, iii. 30, is constructed on a similar scheme, each pāda containing 12 syllabic instants.

11. Metres of the Karpūra-manjari.

The Metres in the Order of Their Frequency.—In the Karpūramañjarī, the metres, listed in the order of their frequency, and each with the number of its occurrences, are given in the subjoined table. Under "Triṣṭubh" are included Indravajrā, Upendravajrā, and Upajāti.

shorts is permitted if a new word begin with the second syllable of that foot: e.g. i. 3, 8, 9; ii. 37, 48, 49. [Scene-groups. — There are four considerable passages in this play in which metres of the same kind are, so to say, "bunched," and in which, accordingly, the unity of thought of the passage is reflected in the unity of its metrical form. The passages are: in act ii., stanzas 12–22, eleven āryā stanzas, forming the "Tiring-scene"; again in act ii., stanzas 33–40, eight āryā stanzas, forming the "Swing-scene"; then in act iv., stanzas 10–18, nine stanzas of hendecasyllabics, being six triṣṭubh and three svāgatā stanzas, describing the Banyan festival scene. Finally, in act iii., the passage 9–17, consisting of nine vasantatilaka stanzas, forms the bulk of the "lengthy and vapid discussion of love."

It is worth noting that a Çārdūlavikrīdita serves as the initial stanza of the Prologue, of act i. proper (i. 13), of the love-scene in the first act (i. 26), of act ii., and of act iii.; see the Table, p. 209. The same metrical form is especially employed for the more elevated passages of description: for example, i. 16–18, the spring; i. 35, the evening; iii. 25, moonrise; iii. 27, the garden scene. And it is also used at the climax of some gravely emotional passages, as at iv. 9.—L.]

The Metres in the Order of Their Occurrence.—The following table (p. 209) gives the metres of the Karpūra-mañjarī in the order of their occurrence in the text. See also p. 289, note to iv. 19<sup>64</sup>.

1. Geography of the Play in General.

The geography of the play in general and the geographical allusions of the text demand some notice. The action of the play<sup>1</sup> is at the court of King Chaṇḍapāla, that is, in his palace and palace gardens. I do not know that this name designates an historical personage; but the poet plainly intended that we should imagine the general scene of the play to be in the Deccan (cp. "Here in the Deccan," i. 25<sup>5</sup>, 34<sup>8</sup>). Chaṇḍapāla addresses his queen as "daughter of the [a] sovereign of the Deccan," i. 12<sup>8</sup>. And the fact that the king of Kuntala and Chaṇḍapāla are represented as marrying aunt and niece (i. 34<sup>8</sup>) would lead us to imagine Chaṇḍapāla's "kingdom in the Deccan" as not far from that of his father-in-law (which is undefined) nor from that of Kuntala. Moreover, the allusions<sup>2</sup> of i. 15 and 17 (cp. 20) point with clearness to the Deccan or Southern India (cp. i. 36, note 3).

Kuntala seems to have included parts of the region that is drained by the upper Kistna and the Tungabhadra.<sup>3</sup> It covered what is now the southernmost part of the Bombay Presidency and of Haiderabad, and the northwest corner of Madras, with part of Mysore <sup>4</sup>—say the Districts of North Kanara, of Belgaum, and of Bellary; and perhaps it reached even farther east. The inscription of Kurugode <sup>5</sup> names as capital of Kuntala the town of Kurugode, which is fourteen miles from Bellary town, north and west.

Vidarbha seems to have reached from the Kistna north nearly to the Narbadā. It is included in Mahārāṣṭra.<sup>6</sup> And Kuntala seems also to have been so included.<sup>7</sup> This may throw light on the statement of the commentators (Konow, p. 160) about Vacchoma as capital of Kuntala.

Lāṭa designated, in the time of our poet, the region north of the lower Narbadā and east of the Gulf of Cambay, modern Broach or Central and Southern Gujarāt, Ptolemy's  $\Lambda a \rho \iota \kappa \dot{\eta}$ . See Epigraphia Indica, i. 274, iv.

- <sup>1</sup> The place where the play was first represented or brought out, may have been the court of Nirbhara: see i. 9 and p. 217.
- <sup>2</sup> The allusions to Bengal and Assam etc. (i. 14<sup>2</sup>) are not such as to yield data for geographical inferences.
- <sup>8</sup> See Duff, Chronology of India, under A.D. 973, and Borooah's Essay, § 145.
  - 4 Including the once important Banavasi,

Ptolemy's Baraovasei; cp. Ind. Ant. xiii. 367

- <sup>5</sup> Colebrooke's Essays, ii. [272], [273].
- 6 See Borooah, § 146-8; Bālar. x. 74.
- <sup>7</sup> According to passages in Bālar., which Borooah (note 3) does not specify. According to Daçakumāracharita, viii., p. 59, ed. Peterson, the Lords of Vanavāsin and of Kuntala seem to have been vassals of Vidarbha.

246; and Borooah's Essay, § 154. The statement of iv. 18<sup>28</sup>, "the wedding is set for here and today, while the bride is in the country of Lāṭa," indicates that Chaṇḍapāla's realm was not Lāṭa.¹ Another northern place is Kanauj, mentioned in the Jester's dream (iii. 5²) as if distant. I imagine Chaṇḍapāla's realm as south or southeast of Kuntala.

2. Hindu Seasons, Months, and Asterisms.

In the Prākrit text above, and in the sequel also, there is a considerable number of allusions to the Hindu seasons and months and asterisms. Convenient tables of the months, etc., are so rare in this country that I am confident that the American student will welcome the ensuing table.

Whitney's Sūryasiddhānta, Journal of American Oriental Society, vi. 414 and 468, may be consulted; also his essay on the Lunar Zodiac, Oriental and Linguistic Studies, i. 341 f. For the older division into three seasons, Hot, Wet, and Cold, which is still in popular use, see Bühler, Epigraphia Indica, ii. 262, and Manwaring's Marāṭhī Proverbs, no. 1279. Older month-names: Whitney, Journal, vi. 414; or Sewell and Dīkshita, Indian Calendar, p. 24. Very instructive is Part X (c) of Manwaring.

I abbreviate Pūrva, 'former,' by P.; Uttara, 'latter,' by U.; Phalgunī by Ph.; and Bhādrapadā by Bh. The 22d asterism is Abhijit: see note to i. 2031, and Whitney's Zodiac, p. 409.

3. Time-allusions of the Play and Time of the Action.

For the determination of the time of the action, we have one datum which is both certain and precise, that of the Banyan festival (act iv.). It synchronizes with the full moon of Jyāiṣṭha.—The second datum, that of the Swing festival of Gāurī (act ii.), if I have identified it aright, is no less certain and precise. The fourth day of that festival falls on the sixth lunar day of the bright half of Chāitra.—The third datum is drawn from the allusions to the beginning of spring (act i.). These are entirely certain. Whether we may take them as intending precision, is a question rather of common sense than of erudition.¹ The evidence is in favor of interpreting them precisely.

The action of the play, accordingly, covers a period of just two and one-half lunations: that is, all of Chāitra, all of Vāiçākha, and the light half of Jyāiṣṭha. The scene of the play being in the south, we may suppose the lunar months to be reckoned as from new moon to new moon, rather than as from full to full. There remains act iii. Its action takes place at a full moon: is it that of Chāitra or of Vāiçākha?

Act I. — The initial motif of the play proper is the advent of spring. The month is Chāitra, i.  $17^d$ ,  $18^d$ ; the frost is gone, i.  $14^a$ ; the Malabar winds, from the southwest, have set in, i.  $15^d$ ,  $16^{3,4}$ ,  $20^c$ ; the spring has begun, i.  $12^8$ ,  $14^2$ ,  $18^{14}$ , with all its beauties, i.  $16^3$ . — The act ends with evening, i. 35, and at least one night intervenes between acts i. and ii. And since the time of act ii. is the sixth of the bright fortnight of Chāitra, the latest date for act i. is the fifth of that fortnight.

But it appears, from act ii. 4,4 that a considerable number of days must have elapsed since act i. During that time, but not after the beginning of act ii.,5 King and Heroine have seen each other, ii. 42<sup>16, 17</sup>, and become deeply enamored. We can hardly make the interval less than five days, and would therefore set the time of act i. on the first of the bright fortnight of Chāitra. The duration of act i. is part of one day.

<sup>2</sup> The amā-anta system. In this, the bright fortnight (qukla), or fortnight of the waxing moon, comes first, and then the dark fortnight (kṛṣṇa), or that of the waning moon. See Ep. Ind., i. 404; or The Indian Calendar, p. 4. Thus: <>>.

Act II. — The time is still Madhu, ii. 621, or Chāitra, and the spring "is very gently coming on," ii. 15. The nights are still chilly, ii. 415. We read at ii. 295, "Today is the fourth day of the Swing festival." The allusions to the worship of Gāurī that accompanied the festival (see ii. 623, 25, ii. 296) indicate that the gāuryā dolotsava is intended (see note to ii. 623, and additional note thereto, on p. 289), and this begins on the third of the bright half of Chāitra. The date of act ii. is therefore the sixth of waxing Chāitra. —The act lasts part of one day. When the Swing scene ends, evening is near, ii. 413. The açoka scene is somewhat later in the same evening, for the Heroine has in the meantime been "exquisitely decorated," ii. 437.

Act III.—The action is on the evening of the night of a full moon, iii.  $25^a$ ,  $32^b$ , which must be that of either Chāitra or Vāiçākha. The allusions to punkahs and shower-baths, iii. 20, and to the "intense heat" (ghaṇa-ghamma, iii.  $20^3$ ), indicate that the hot weather (March to May, inclusive) is far advanced. I therefore deem the latter alternative the more probable one, and place the action of act iii. at the full moon of Vāiçākha. This date allows ample time for the Queen's jealousy (cp. p. 247, note 7, with p. 289, note to ii.  $41^9$ ) to drive her to the drastic measure of imprisoning the Heroine, and time for the construction of the subterranean passage (p. 219). And it still falls within the limits of spring (vasanta)—cp. the next paragraph.

Act IV. — The spring (mahu-samaa) has now gone, iv. 7<sup>d</sup>; the summer (gimha, iv. 1) is come, iv. 4<sup>c</sup>, 5<sup>d</sup>, 6<sup>d</sup>. The time of the action is explicitly defined, iv. 9<sup>18</sup>, as the "Banyan festival." This falls on the day of the full moon of Jyāiṣṭha, iv. 9<sup>18</sup> note. In substantial accordance herewith is the allusion, iv. 3<sup>a</sup>, to the length of the days, which reaches its maximum a little later; and so is the statement, iv. 18<sup>11</sup>, that the image of Gāurī was set up "on the fourteenth day just past," that is, the fourteenth of the light half of Jyāiṣṭha. — The action of the merry-making (p. 221, scene 3) runs over a part of the day-time. The wedding takes place in the evening, iv. 18<sup>7</sup>.

SYNOPTIC TABLE OF THE TIME OF THE ACTION.

Act	I.: beginning of spring, first of Chāitra, bright half	•	[Say March 15]
Act	II.: fourth day of Swing festival of Gāurī, sixth of Chāitra, ditto . Interval of about ten days + just one lunation.	•	[Say March 20]
Act	III.: full moon of Vāiçākha	•	[Say May 1].
Act	IV.: Banyan festival, full moon of Jyāistha		[Say June 1].

4. Synoptic Analysis of the Play.

The purpose of this synopsis is to make clear 1. the places or scenes of the action in detail, and 2. the details of the stage-business. Since the references to the text are given throughout, it will also serve 3. as a useful finding-table. For greater convenience, I have divided the synopsis into scenes, guided partly by the entrances and exits and partly by the places of the action, but without special reference to the canons of the native dramaturgy.

Several scenes are double or even multiple scenes: that is, the stage represents simultaneously the scene of the principal action and also the King in some place of observation or concealment near by (such are scenes 4 and 7 of act ii.: cp. note to iii. 34¹); or the stage is imagined to represent successively (as in act iii., scene 2, and act iv., scene 5) several places in which the players have to be, during the course of that scene. In the latter case, the place comes to the actor instead of the actor's going to the place. His going, however, is mimetically indicated by a "stepping about."

By "palace garden" or "palace," as used in the sequel, is meant of course the palace garden or palace of King Chaṇḍapāla.

PROLOGUE, I. 1 to I. 125.

During the prologue, the stage represents the play-house (or  $n\bar{a}tya$ - $c\bar{a}l\bar{a}$ , Lévi, p. 371) of the King for whom the play is enacted. The first performance may have been for King Nibbhara, i. 9, 11.

- Scene 1. Enters the Director  $(s\bar{u}tradh\bar{u}ra)$  and recites the benediction, i. 1-2. [Then exit.]
- Scene 2. Enters the Stage-manager (sthāpaka) and praises Çiva, i. 3-4, and describes the preparations for the play, i. 4<sup>2</sup>.
- Scene 3. Enters the Assistant (pāripārçvika) of the Stage-manager, i. 4<sup>14</sup>.

  They discuss the play, the author, why he writes in Prākrit, at whose instance the piece is given, and the gist of the plot, i. 4<sup>14</sup>–12<sup>3</sup>.

  Exeunt.

ACT I.

Scene 1 (the advent of spring): the palace garden. Enter King and Queen, with retinue, i. 12<sup>6</sup>. They congratulate each other on the arrival of spring, and describe the season in stanzas, i. 13-14.

Behind the stage, two Bards describe the beauties of spring, i. 15-16, and are followed in the same strain by the royal pair, i. 16<sup>3</sup>-18.

Scene 2 (comic intermezzo): place and actors as before. Jester and Vichakshanā quarrel, i. 18<sup>1</sup>. Retorts, sharp and coarse, follow; then rival - stanzas, i. 19-20; then threats, i. 20<sup>15</sup>. General laughter, i. 20<sup>35</sup>. Exit Jester, i. 20<sup>41</sup>.

- Scene 3 (the tipsy Magician): place and actors as before. Reënters Jester, i. 21<sup>1</sup>, announcing the Magician, who follows, i. 21<sup>8</sup>, tipsy, singing ribald songs. He offers to show a specimen of his powers to the King, i. 25<sup>1</sup>. The latter suggests that he produce on the stage a lovely girl. The wizard sets about it, i. 25<sup>10</sup>. Thereupon—
- Scene 4 (love scene): place and actors as before. Enters the Heroine, i. 25<sup>11</sup>. Rapturous stanzas from the King, i. 26–27. She gives the King a coquettish glance, i. 28<sup>9</sup>. He is deeply enamored, i. 29–34. She tells her story, i. 34<sup>8-21</sup>. The Queen asks that the Heroine may remain a fortnight, i. 34<sup>26</sup>, and conducts her to the gynæceum, i. 34<sup>28</sup>.

Behind the stage, two Bards in descriptive stanzas announce the evening, i. 35–36, and the King goes to prayer.

ACT II.

- Scene 1 (the love-sick King): the palace garden. Enter King and Porteress, ii. 0<sup>1</sup>. Enamored stanzas, ii. 1-6.
- Scene 2 (the billet-doux): place and actors as before. Enter Jester and Vichakshaṇā, ii. 6<sup>3</sup>. They discuss briefly the King's condition, ii. 6<sup>4-10</sup>, unheard by him.

They address the King, ii. 6<sup>12</sup>. It transpires that Viehakshaṇā bears a love-letter, ii. 6<sup>20</sup>, from the Heroine to the King. This the King reads, ii. 8. Stanzas from Viehakshaṇā, from her sister, and from the Jester, ii. 9–11.

The King asks, ii. 11<sup>2</sup>, what happened to the Heroine after the Queen conducted her (at i. 34<sup>38</sup>) to the gynæceum. Properly the replies form no new scene; but they have such dramatic unity that it is well to treat them as a scene.

Scene 3 (the tiring scene, a duo between Vichakshaṇā and King): place and actors as before. Introductory questions and answers, ii. 11<sup>2-6</sup>. In eleven half-stanzas, ii. 12-22, Vichakshaṇā describes how the Heroine was arrayed and adorned in the gynæceum. The King caps each half-stanza with one of his own, in which he interprets the description with some fanciful conceit. Exit Vichakshaṇā, ii. 29<sup>3</sup>.

It now transpires that she and the Jester have arranged that the Heroine shall swing in a swing set up before the idol of Pārvatī, and that the King shall have an opportunity to observe her from an arbor near by, ii. 29<sup>6-7</sup>. With the Jester, the King "makes as if entering" the Plantain Arbor, ii. 29<sup>14</sup>.

Scene 4 (the swing scene): the palace garden; the Heroine in the swing; King and Jester concealed in the Plantain Arbor. The King pours forth his soul in rapturous stanzas, ii. 30-32.

Then follows, in eight stanzas, ii. 33-40, the Jester's description of the Heroine's swinging. It is filled with pretty conceits and forms a pendant to the tiring scene.—The Heroine quits the swing, ii. 40<sup>2</sup>.

Scene 5 (serio-comic intermezzo): the gardens. The King at the Plantain Arbor laments her departure in tragic strains, and the Jester gives mocking response, ii. 40<sup>2</sup>-41. Evening approaches, ii. 41<sup>3</sup>; but night's coolness avails not to attemper the King's amorous fever, ii. 41<sup>5</sup>.

The Jester leaves the King "alone" on the Emerald Seat, ii. 416, and makes as if leaving the stage to get something to cool him off, ii. 417. The King continues his amorous plaint, ii. 42.

Scene 6 ("stage-traffick"): a part, near by, of the gardens. Reënters Vichak-shaṇā with refrigerants, ii. 42<sup>3</sup>. She and the Jester, ii. 43<sup>2</sup>, arrange it so that the King shall witness the coming açoka scene.

The King is imagined to secrete himself behind a shrub, ii. 43.

Scene 7 (the açoka scene): the garden. Enters the Heroine, ii. 437. She embraces a young amaranth, looks at a tilaka, and touches with the tip of her foot an açoka tree; whereupon all three burst into gorgeous bloom, ii. 4314–47.

King and Jester discuss the matter, ii. 471-492.

Behind the scene a Bard describes the evening, ii. 50. Exeunt all. See also p. 289, n. 2.

ACT III.

From iii. 349 we infer that, between the last act and this, jealousy has prompted the Queen to imprison the Heroine in some room in the Queen's section of the palace; and that, unknown to the Queen, a secret subterranean passage has been made from this room to the palace garden.

The room where the lovers meet (iii. 20<sup>12</sup>) and the lamp-incident occurs (iii. 22<sup>4</sup>) adjoins the prison room, as I think; for the lovers go from their meeting-room to the garden by the subterranean passage, and they must enter the passage from the prison room or near it. This meeting-room has a "back-door" entrance, perhaps from some obscure court-yard.

The prison room is an "inner room," close and sweat-provoking, iii. 22<sup>1</sup>. That it is near the Queen's I infer from iv. 19<sup>37-39</sup> and <sup>52-57</sup>.

Scene 1 (the King's vision): a place outside the palace (perhaps an obscure court-yard?) near the lovers' meeting-room. Enter King and Jester.

The King describes a vision in which he met the Heroine, iii. 2<sup>2</sup>-3.

To divert him, the Jester tells an elaborate counter-vision, iii. 3<sup>4</sup>-7.

The two engage in a lengthy and vapid discussion of love, iii. 8<sup>1</sup>-19.

From behind the stage they hear the enamored plaints of the Heroine, iii. 19<sup>2</sup>. The Jester indulges himself in much badinage with the King, iii. 20<sup>1</sup>. Both "make as if entering," by a "backdoor," the meeting-room, iii. 20<sup>12</sup>, that is, they "step about" by way of intimation to the spectators that they are entering it, though remaining, of course, on the stage.

Scene 2 (the lovers' meeting): [part 1] a room near the prison room (see above). Enters the Heroine, with her friend, to meet King and Jester, iii. 20<sup>13</sup>. The King takes the Heroine's hand, iii. 20<sup>25</sup>. She has just come from a close "inner-room," so the Jester fans her, and in so doing puts out the lamp, iii. 22<sup>1-4</sup>.

King and Heroine hand in hand,—the four now grope their way [part 2] through the prison room (? see above), and then [part 3] through the dark passage, iii. 22, to the gardens [part 4].

Scene 3 (the moonrise scene): the palace garden. A continuation of the last part of the foregoing scene. Stanzas of admiration and delight from the King, iii. 23-24. Behind the stage, Bards describe the rise of the full moon, iii. 25-28. Then follow stanzas by the Jester, Kurangika, and the Heroine, iii. 29-31, and the King, iii. 32-34.

Sudden uproar, iii. 34<sup>1</sup>. The Queen has heard of her consort's tricks and is coming, iii. 34<sup>7</sup>. The Heroine escapes, by the secret passage, to her prison, iii. 34<sup>9</sup>. Execut omnes.

ACT IV.

From iv. 9<sup>6-7</sup>, it appears that the Queen has now learned of the subterranean passage and blocked up its entrance. We are forced to assume that this closure of the passage is made at the garden end thereof. For the Heroine, the passage thus becomes a cul-de-sac: its prison end is open; she can enter it and traverse its entire length; but she cannot get out at the garden end.

Accordingly, somewhere near the garden end, a new branch passage has been excavated from the main passage to the sanctuary of Chāmuṇḍā near the Banyan, the mouth of this branch passage being concealed behind the idol, iv. 18<sup>38</sup>. Between the entrance of the Magician and that of the King (scene 5), the Heroine traverses the passage that connects the prison and the sanctuary five times.

Scene 1 (the love-sick King): presumably, the King's apartments. Enters, with his Jester, the King, and bemoans the ardor of summer and of love. Episode of the tame parrot, iv. 2<sup>4</sup>. More stanzas of love and summer, iv. 3-9.

The Jester now tells the King how the Queen has closed up the entrance to [the garden end of] the subterranean passage, and tells of the guards that have been set all about that entrance, iv. 9<sup>6-12</sup>.

Scene 2 ("stage-traffick"): place and actors the same. Enters Sārangikā, iv. 9<sup>15</sup>, with a message from the Queen: "The King must mount the palace roof today to see the Banyan festival," iv. 9<sup>18</sup>. Exit Sārañ-gikā, iv. 9<sup>20</sup>.

Scene 3 (the Banyan festival): from the palace roof, iv. 921, King and Jester look down on an elaborate dance. In nine stanzas, iv. 10-18, the Jester describes the dance, the merry-makings, and the off-hand theatre play (impersonations with masks, etc.).

We must here imagine a slight interval in which King and Jester come down from the palace terrace and go to the Emerald Seat, and thence to the Plantain Arbor. But see note to ii. 297.

Scene 4 ("some necessary question of the play"): the Plantain Arbor, palace garden, iv. 18<sup>3</sup>. Reënters Sārangikā, iv. 18<sup>1</sup>, with a message from the Queen: "The Queen has arranged that the King, this very evening, shall take to wife yet another princess, iv. 18<sup>7</sup>, a princess of Lāṭa, named Ghanasāra-mañjarī," iv. 18<sup>18-19</sup>. The messenger, furthermore, narrates that the Magician induced the Queen to assent to this arrangement on the ground that her husband, the King, would become an Emperor by contracting this new marital alliance, iv. 18<sup>22</sup>. The ceremony is to take place in a sanctuary near the Banyan, presumably the festival Banyan, iv. 18<sup>30-32</sup>. Exit Sārangikā.

After exchanging suspicions (iv. 18<sup>34-36</sup>) that the Magician is at the bottom of this affair, exeunt King and Jester. The mention of their exit is omitted in the stage directions.

Scene 5 (the wedding): the sanctuary of Chāmuṇḍā, in the palace garden, near the Banyan. With two episodes:

Enters the Magician, iv. 18<sup>37</sup>, and does homage to the Goddess, iv. 19, whose idol screens the mouth of the new branch passage, iv. 18<sup>38</sup>. Enters the Heroine, iv. 19<sup>3</sup>, coming from her prison, and issuing forth from the passage by a small opening behind the idol.

Enters the Queen, iv. 19<sup>10</sup>, coming from the garden, and is dumfounded at seeing the Heroine, whose escape from the prison she thought she had at last effectually blocked. The Queen cannot believe her own eyes, iv. 19<sup>14-15</sup>. Accordingly, Episode 1<sup>a</sup>. The Queen, iv. 19<sup>20</sup>, on pretext of returning to her apartments to get some things for the wedding (iv. 19<sup>18</sup>), "steps about" on the stage, to indicate that she is leaving. We are to imagine that she goes by way of the garden to the prison room. The Magician sees through her pretext and sends the Heroine hurriedly back, iv. 19<sup>24</sup>, by the new branch passage, to her prison, which she is of course imagined to reach before the Queen. The Queen is again no less astonished to find the Heroine quietly seated in the prison, iv. 19<sup>29</sup>, and, after a few words with her, "starts" to return to the sanctuary, iv. 19<sup>37</sup>. Thereupon, the Heroine returns thither by the secret passage, with speed (see iv. 19<sup>41</sup>).

Episodes  $2^a$  and  $2^b$  are simply repetitions of the same manœuvres, iv.  $19^{49-55}$  and iv.  $19^{56-60}$ .

Enters the King, with his Jester and Kurangika, iv. 19<sup>61</sup>. Effusive admiration on the part of the King, iv. 19<sup>64</sup>–20. The Jester shuts him up, iv. 20<sup>4</sup>. The attendants proceed to arrange the wedding costume for the King and for "Ghanasāra-manjarī," iv. 20<sup>6</sup>. It now transpires, iv. 20<sup>13</sup>, that the latter is no other than Karpūra-manjarī. The ceremony is performed, iv. 21<sup>2</sup>, and the King "takes his seat as an Emperor," iv. 21<sup>4</sup>.

Behind the stage, a Bard congratulates him, iv. 21<sup>6</sup>; the King felicitates himself, iv. 23; and the play closes with the usual benediction.

5. Dramatis Personæ.

Chanda-pāla, the King.

Kapinjala, his Jester (Vidūshaka), a Brahman.

Vibhrama-lekhā, the Queen.

Vichakshanā and Sārangikā, her attendants.

Bhāiravānanda, a master magician.

Kānchana-chaṇḍa and Ratna-chaṇḍa, two bards. Porteress, an unnamed woman, who serves as door-keeper. A tame parrot.

Karpūra-mañjarī, the Heroine.

Kurangikā, her confidante.

NOTE. —The Heroine is the daughter of Vallabha-rāja, King of Kuntala, and of his wife, Çaçi-prabhā (p. 240). The latter is the sister of Vibhrama-lekhā's mother. The Heroine and the Queen of our play are therefore first cousins (daughters of sisters).

ACT I.

PROLOGUE.

INVOCATION.

ALL hail to Sarasvatī!¹ joy to the poets, Vyāsa² and the rest! may the most excellent words of others too³ turn out highly acceptable to the critics! may the Vāidarbhī style of writing⁴ flash like a revelation upon us,—so too the Māgadhī and also the Pāñchālikā! may the connoisseurs of poetry let these styles melt on their tongue, as do Chakora birds with the moon-beams!⁵

Moreover:

Ever cherish ye deep reverence for 6 the loves of Cupid and [his wife] Rati, in which no flurried embraces are noticed, no noisy kissing is going on, nor amorous beating of the breasts.<sup>7</sup>

[End of the invocation.8]

STAGE-MANAGER. May the union of Çiva and [Pārvatī, his wife,] the Daughter of Himālaya, who are dear to the hosts of the Gods, whose pledge of love is [their son,] the Six-faced [God, Kārttikeya], and who are adorned with a crescent moon [on their brows], yield you happiness. 3

And again:

Victorious is Rudra, who often, as he bows low 10 to assuage [his Pār-

[Walks about the stage and looks toward the tiring-room.]

But our players seem [already] to be busy about their acting: for one actress is getting together such costumes as suit the rôles; another is twining garlands of flowers; [4] a third is putting the masks in order; some one seems to be rubbing colors on a palette; here they are tuning 4 a flute; there a lute is being strung; [8] and here they are making ready three drums; here the noise of timbrels is heard; [10] there they are rehearing the introductory stanza. So I'll call some attendant and inquire.

[Looks toward the tiring-room and beckons.] [13]

[Enters the Assistant of the Stage-manager.]

Assistant. Sir, your commands. [15]

STAGE-MANAGER. You seem to be busy about a play, are you not?

Assistant. To be sure. We are going to enact a Saṭṭaka.

STAGE-MANAGER. But who is the author of it?

Assistant. Your worship, let this be answered: who is called "Moon-crowned"?<sup>5</sup> and who is the teacher of Mahendrapāla, the crestjewel of the race of Raghu?

STAGE-MANAGER. [Reflecting.] Aha! that, I think, is an answer in the form of a question: [aloud] Rāja - - - çekhara!

Assistant. [Yes,] he is the author of it.

STAGE-MANAGER. [Recollecting.] It has been said by the connoisseurs:

"Saṭṭaka" is the name of a play which much resembles a Nāṭikā, excepting only that Praveçakas, Vishkambhakas, and Aākas do not occur. 6

[Reflecting.] Then why has the poet abandoned the Sanskrit language and undertaken a composition in Prākrit?

Assistant. Sanskrit poems are harsh; but a Prākrit poem is very smooth; the difference between them in this respect is as great as that between man and woman.

And he who is expert in all languages 1 has said:

The various themes remain the same; the words remain the same, although undergoing [certain phonetic] modifications<sup>2</sup>: a poem is a peculiar way of expression,<sup>3</sup> be the language which soever it may.

STAGE-MANAGER. And has he then [the poet] made no statement about himself?

Assistant. Listen. A statement has indeed been made by one of his poet contemporaries, the author of the story of Mṛgānkalekhā, by Aparājita,<sup>4</sup> namely, as follows:

He who has risen to lofty dignity by the successive steps of young poet, chief poet, and teacher of King Nibbhara, [i.e. Mahendrapāla]. — 9

He is the author of it, the famous Rājaçekhara, whose merits make resplendent the three worlds even, [and] are left unblemished [even] by the rivalry of the moon.

STAGE-MANAGER. At whose instance then are you enacting the play?

Assistant. The crest-garland of the Chauhan family, the wife of the chief poet Rājaçekhara, the lady whose husband wrote the play, Avantisundarī,—she desires us to enact it. 11

Moreover:

In this excellent Saṭṭaka, which is a river of poetic flavors, [King] Chaṇḍapāla, the moon of our earth, in order to achieve the rank of an Emperor, takes to wife the daughter of the Lord of Kuntala.

12

STAGE-MANAGER. Come, then! what we have at once to do let us accomplish; for the Director and his wife, who have taken the parts of the King and the Queen, are waiting in the tiring-room.

[The two walk about the stage and exeunt.] [4]

its mode of expression. The definition is, in the original and as we give it, loose.

7 Lit., 'it, the work of her husband.'

[Then enter the King, the Queen, the Jester, and, according to rank, the attendants. All walk about the stage and take seats in due order.] [7]

KING. O Queen, daughter of the sovereign of the Deccan, I congratulate you that the spring is begun.<sup>1</sup> For,

Inasmuch as the maidens no longer put much wax on their lips,<sup>2</sup> and do not in arranging their braids anoint them with fragrant oil, and do not put on a bodice, and are indifferent even as to the use of the thick saffron<sup>3</sup> for their mouths,—therefore I think the festal spring-time is at hand and has overcome by its power the cold.

QUEEN. I too, in my turn, will congratulate you.

Now that the frosts are gone, [again fair maidens] rub their pearly teeth.<sup>4</sup> Little by little [again] they set their hearts on extract of sandal.<sup>5</sup> At this season, behold, couples sleep on the verandas of their dwellings,<sup>6</sup> the blankets heaped [unused] at the foot [of their couches]. 14

FIRST BARD. [Behind the stage.] Victory, victory to thee, [O King]! Thou gallant of the women of the East, thou champak-bloom ear-ornament of the town of Champā,<sup>7</sup> thou whose lustre  $(r\bar{a}dh\bar{a})$  transcends the loveliness of Rādhā,<sup>8</sup> who hast conquered Assam by thy provess, who

dwelling-place, i.e. the central bungalow and all the adjoining compound. In cold weather, people slept, for the sake of warmth, in the antar-grha, the innermost apartment or perhaps the central bungalow. Now, on account of the heat, they have left off doing so, and sleep in the sāliās: these may be thatchroofed sheds without walls (to secure shade and allow circulation of air), or else verandas around the antar-grha; and might, in either case, be called majjhima as being 'between' the antargrha and the walls of the compound.

Vātsyāyana, Kāmasūtra, ed. Bombay, 1891, p. 44, 45, speaks of a dwelling with spacious court, and with two sleeping-rooms (bhavanam dvi-vāsagṛham), an inner (ābhyantaram) and an outer (bāhyam); the comment refers also to the vāstuvidyā.

providest merry-makings (keli) for Hari-kelī,¹ who mayst well make light of² the beauty of genuine gold, who delightest us by the comeliness of all thy person! — May the beginning of the fragrant season [spring] be a joy to thee! For now,

Cool from the Malabar mountains, are coming the [vernal] breezes.<sup>3</sup> Wanton they ruffle the down on the cheeks <sup>4</sup> of the Pāṇḍian women, Breaking the jealous pride <sup>5</sup> of the tender maidens of Kāñchī, Filling the matrons of Chola with passion for love's embraces, Waving the tresses [fair] of the beauties that dwell in Karṇāṭa, Tying the knots of love 'twixt the Kuntala girls and their lovers.

SECOND BARD. [Behind the stage.] The champak bloom has become like to a Marāṭha girl's cheek when rubbed with saffron-paste.<sup>6</sup> The jasmines, with blossoms as fair as slightly churned milk, are bursting and bursting.<sup>7</sup> The dhak-tree,<sup>8</sup> blackish at the root,<sup>9</sup> and with bees clinging to its tips, looks as if bees were clinging to it from head to foot <sup>10</sup> and drinking its juices.

KING. Dear Vibhramalekhā, say not that I have congratulated thee, nor that thou hast congratulated me; but rather that both of us have been congratulated by the two bards, Kānchana-chanda and Ratna-chanda. <sup>11</sup> So now to her heart's content let my Queen with eyes as big as [her] surpassed by thy (rāḍhā or) lustre'— again a pun.

<sup>5</sup> So that they yield to the seductions of love. The same idea at ii. 50<sup>b</sup> and iii. 30<sup>a</sup>.

6 Of saffron it is also said that it will make the face as fair as the full moon's disk—Yogaratnākara, under kṣudrarogacikitsā, p. 382<sup>22</sup> of Poona ed. The tertium comparationis appears to be the color common to the golden-hued champak blossom and to the flesh-tint of the cheek when somewhat yellowed by the overlaying of saffron.

 $^{7}$  The flowers of most varieties are very fragrant and of pure milky whiteness — cp. i.  $^{19^{\circ}}$

<sup>8</sup> The Butea frondosa, a middle-sized tree, its trunk crooked and covered with ash-colored, spongy, scabrous bark. Lac insects [Coccidæ] are frequent on its small branches and leaf-stalks. So Roxburgh, p. 540 f. The lac exudes from the punctures made by the coccus, — See Griffiths, fig. 72 and pl. 63.

<sup>9</sup> So that this too (see preceding note) looks as if bees were swarming upon it.

10 Literally, 'appears (notatur) as if quaffed by bees that cling [to it] even in two directions or points, i.e. even at top and bottom.'—Perhaps bhasala (here rendered 'bee') refers (inaccurately?) to the coccus insects.

open palm,¹ contemplate this festal season of spring: ²—[of spring,] that quickens bold maids unto amorous flurry; that sets a-dancing like dancegirls the creepers that sway in the Malabar breezes; that sweetly recites its panchama-note in the throats of the soft-throated [cuckoos];³ that brings forth in ample measure the rods for the bows of Cupid and speedeth the arrows of love with vehemence none may hinder;⁴ [of spring,] the loved friend of [that] matron staid, [the Earth,] the Keeper of Treasure. [3]

QUEEN. The Malabar-breezes have indeed begun, as the bards have said. For,

Waving the garlands that hang in the doorways of Lankā,<sup>5</sup> slowly swaying the sandal-tree thickets in the hermitage of Agastya,<sup>6</sup> blended with odors of camphor, making to tremble the clumps of açoka,<sup>7</sup> setting completely a-dancing the creepers of betel, impetuously kissing the waters of Tāmraparṇi,<sup>8</sup> [hither at last] are blowing the breezes of Chāitra.<sup>9</sup> 17

And again:

"Your jealous pride quit ye, [fair maids]! give [each] to your darling a glance, be it never so restless! 10 [for] tender youth, that plumps your swelling breasts, by days is measured, 11 five [perchance], or ten!"—such is, as it were, the Five-arrowed God's 12 all-galling command, disguised

- <sup>1</sup>Cp. note to i. 32.
- <sup>2</sup> I take mahūsava (madhu-utsava) as an instance of rūpaka (Daṇḍin's Poetics, ii. 66) and interpret it, not as 'spring-festival,' but rather as 'the spring which is like to a festival,' and so, 'the festal season of spring.' Similarly, 'creeper dance-girls,' i.e. 'creepers that are like dance-girls.'
- <sup>3</sup> Literally, [spring,] 'possessing the note, sweet and recited (or sweetly recited), in the throats of the soft-throated [kokilas or koïls].'
- 4I take this as a copulative compound (Whitney, Grammar, § 1257) made up of two possessive compounds: literally [spring,] 'possessing abundantly-produced Cupid's-bow-rods and possessing unbroken arrow-impetuosity.'—The exceedingly long word is notable for its excessive alliterative use of nd's.
  - <sup>5</sup> Ceylon.

by the Rāmāyaṇa, ed. Bombay, iv. 41. 15; but a later stanza (34) of the same canto inconsistently puts his dwelling on Mount Kuñjara in Ceylon.—The canto contains many of the geographical allusions which occur in this play. Cp. Lassen, Indische Alterthumskunde, i. 153 f.

- <sup>8</sup> A river rising near the southern end of the Western Ghauts and flowing generally south and cast to the gulf of Manar. At present the name Malaya is hardly applied to the Ghauts so far south.
- <sup>9</sup> The first month of spring, March-April, p. 214.
- <sup>10</sup> Literally, 'a glance, followed by unsteady movements (of the eyes).'

under the melodious warblings of the cuckoo, which the festal season of Chāitra [just now] hath suddenly given.<sup>1</sup>

JESTER. Hi there! among you all, I'm the only one that's a bit of a scholar: for my father-in-law's father-in-law used to lug around books at another man's house.

ATTENDANT [Vichakshaṇā]. [Bursts out laughing.] Got your learning by direct inheritance, then, didn't you? [4]

JESTER. [Rather nettled.] Ha, you slave-girl's child, who'll be a bawd in your next birth, you Vichakshaṇa, Small-Fraction-er!<sup>2</sup> am I such a fool as to be laughed at even by you? [6] And besides, — O you polluter of other men's sons, you light-o'-love,<sup>3</sup> you terror of the gambling-hells, hand and glove with ruined folk!<sup>4</sup> — what have you got to say against my inheriting my learning?<sup>5</sup> please take notice that they who are born in Akāla-jalada's family do get their learning by inheritance! but there's no use in talking.—"Bangle on your wrist, no need of a mirror."<sup>6</sup> [10]

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. [Reflecting.] Right you are! — Nor of asking <sup>7</sup> the bystanders if a horse is speeding, when you see him on the dead run. — Come now, give us a description of spring. [14]

JESTER. How do you come to be standing there chattering like a caged starling? 8 You don't know anything. — So I'll give my recitation

- <sup>1</sup> I find a very similar thought in Kāvyaprakāça, x. 105, p. 705, ed. Bombay (given also by Böhtlingk, Sprüche, 2021, kṣīṇaḥ,
- <sup>2</sup> I coin this word to reproduce the jingling and riming billingsgate of the original—nillakkhane viakkhane, 'insignificant Vichakshana'; and neglect the -ā.
- <sup>3</sup> An unclear word; perhaps 'having the character of a bee ' (in its flight), i.e. 'unsteady, capricious.'
- 4 'O thou, united with ruined folk,' root trut.
- <sup>5</sup> 'Was the inheriting of my learning a discredit?'
- <sup>6</sup> The fact is as plain without talk as is a bangle on your wrist without a mirror. This last seems to be a proverb (p. 206) and in abrupt form.
- <sup>7</sup>That is, 'and no need of asking' etc. Apparently a second proverb of the same purport as the foregoing.

8 'Caged sāriā.' The same as the maanasāriā, Skt. madana-sārikā. From maanā or mayanā Platts derives mainā, the name of the mina bird: see his Hindústání Dic'y, under mainā, p. 1108a. The mina is the talking starling or religious grackle of India, the Eulabes religiosa: see Century Dic'y, under Eulabes, and picture.

As Dr. Konow tells me, the sārikā is mentioned with the parrot (suke sālikā) as early as Açoka's reign, namely in Edict 5 of the Delhi Pillar: see Senart, Les édits des piliers, p. 44, 65, or Bühler, ZDMG. xlvi. 64, 69, or Bühler, Epigraphia Indica, ii. 259

The birds are habitual companions in literature and in life. A caged parrot and the mina are mentioned together, Mṛcchakatikā, ed. Stenzler, p. 71<sup>16</sup>, the latter as chattering (kurukurāadi) like a saucy house-maid. Cp. the whole scene with the caged sāriā, Ratnāvalī, beginning of act ii.; and parrot before my old man 1 and the Queen: for musk isn't sold in a petty hamlet or a jungle; nor is gold tested without a touchstone.<sup>2</sup> [18]

[So saying, he recites.]

The Sinduvāra shrubs that bear a quantity of blossoms like to rice-pudding,<sup>3</sup>—my favorites are they; and also the multitudes of fair jasmine blooms, like to strained buffalo-milk.<sup>3</sup>

Vichakshaṇā. [Derisively.] Your words are as paltry as you yourself are.4

JESTER. Well then, Miss Noble-Words, do you give a recital.

QUEEN. [Smiling a bit.] Friend Vichakshaṇā, you're rather puffed up <sup>5</sup> with pride before us on account of your strong poetic ability. [5] So then, do you recite now, before my lord, [the King], a bit of poetry of your own making: for that is true poetry which will bear recital <sup>6</sup> in the assemblies; that is pure gold which proves clear <sup>7</sup> on the touchstone; she is a true wife who gladdens her husband; he is a true son who makes his family illustrious. [7] episode of this play, iv. 4. In KSS. 77, parrot and mina tell stories. — Caged birds in frescoes, Griffiths, pl. 45.

VICHAKSHANĀ. As the Queen commands. [So saying, she recites.]

The Indian exquisite (nāgarika) spent the time between his forenoon meal and his midday nap in teaching his parrots and starlings to talk: see Kāmasūtra, ed. Bombay, 1891, p. 48<sup>11</sup>, 49<sup>18</sup>; Bāṇa's Kādambarī, p. 356 end. For this accomplishment both birds have great capacity. They can rattle off at a great rate the Vedas and Çāstras, which they incessantly overheard: Kādambarī, p. 81<sup>1</sup>, 38; cp. Harshacharita, p. 244<sup>7</sup>, 221 end; also, above, p. 204, Pischel. Secrets must not be told in their presence: comm. to Manu vii. 149. A very learned parrot appears at KSS. lix. 28 ff. Both birds alike come to grief for their much talk, Sprüche, 899.

See T. C. Jerdon, Birds of India, Calcutta, 1863, ii. p. 320-340; R. C. Temple has a valuable paper about the bird, Panjābī Shārak, Indian Antiquary, xi. 291-3: cp. xiv. 305 (Aelian's description). See also Wilson, Hindu Theatre, ii. 277; and Index to Ridding's Kādambarī, p. 225, under maina. While I am studying this subject, my friend Rouse, of Rugby School, sends me his charming book, The Talking Thrush, London, 1899. And Bloomfield refers me to Kāuçika, x. 2, etc. (very pretty symbolism).

The winds that had almost died on 1 the flanks of the mountains of Lanka, that had grown weak from filling wide-expanded hood after hood of the serpents, 2 wearied with dalliance, 3—at this season, they, as Malabar-winds, mingling with the sighs of maids whose lovers have left them, have become, suddenly, although in their childhood, 4 strong, filled as it were with freshness.

Act First.

King. Truly, Vichakshaṇā is clever (vichakshaṇā) by reason of her skill in expression and her variety of diction. And so, she stands — what else? — as a crest-jewel of poets.

JESTER. [Nettled.] Then why don't you say it straight out: "Vichakshaṇā's at the tip-top in poetry, [and I,] Kapiñjala, a Brahman, at the very bottom"? [4]

VICHAKSHAṇĀ. My good man, don't get excited. It's your poem that betrays your poetic ability: <sup>5</sup> for your words, fine [enough in themselves], although [spent] on a matter blameable for paltriness,—like a string of pearls on a flabby-breasted [old hag], like a [trig] bodice on a pot-bellied creature, like the collyrium pencil <sup>6</sup> on a one-eyed woman,—are not over and above charming. [7]

1 Root skhal: 'stumbled,' or (as we say of the wind) 'fallen'; and so, 'checked by.'

<sup>2</sup> Literally, 'had come to impoverishment in the wide-expanded hood-row's (subjective genitive!) swallowing.' The ranks of expanded hoods of the female serpents have swallowed so much of the wind that its force has slackened! Characteristic exaggeration! Quite similar is the idea of Daṇḍin, who calls the slack south-wind the "leavings from the repasts of the serpents of the Malabar hills," Daṇakumāra-charita, I.v., beginning.—"The snakes, 'tis said, on wind are fed." Sprüche, 4873, phaṇī pavanabhuk: cp. 4376. "The Cobras... prefer taking their food at dusk or in the night."—Fayrer, p. 6.

My colleague, Mr. Samuel Garman, Herpetologist of the Agassiz Museum, kindly refers me to Sir Joseph Fayrer's Thanatophidia of India, 2d ed., London, 1874. Plates 1-6 of this magnificent folio are devoted to the very deadly Naja tripudians, the Naga, or Cobra di Capello. I quote from page 7: "Some of the snake-catchers have a curious notion concerning the sex of the Cobra. They say that the hooded snakes are all females and poisonous; and that the males are all hoodless and innocent." It is not venture-some to assume that this belief, albeit unfounded, was current a thousand years ago and accepted by our poet. Hence the significance of his specific mention of the female serpents. The males are in fact smaller than the females, Mr. Garman tells me.—If Fayrer is not accessible, the reader may consult Joseph Ewart's Poisonous Snakes of India, London, 1878.

<sup>5</sup> That is, if you have any: and here, yours show that you haven't.—I purposely use 'betray,' as having, like pisunedi, a sinister connotation.

<sup>6</sup> That is, the strokes of the pencil with which women applied the collyrium to blacken their eyelids and eyebrows by way of adornment.

JESTER. With you, on the contrary, although your matter was charming,—it wasn't pretty, the way you strung the words together. [8] Like a row of copper bells on a golden girdle, like trimmings of coarse silk on a [fine] silken fabric, like sandal-ointment on a girl of loveliest tint,1—it [your language] doesn't partake of the elegance [of your ideas].<sup>2</sup> But in spite of all that, you do get praised. [10]

VICHAKSHAṇĀ. My good man, don't get excited. There's no rivaling you: for you, though unlettered as the iron beam of a goldsmith's balance, are employed [in a, that is] as part of a [still finer] balance for weighing jewels; while I, though lettered like a [common] balance, am not employed in the weighing of gold.<sup>3</sup> [14]

JESTER. If you ridicule me that way, I'll tear off that part of you that goes by the name of Yudhishthira's eldest brother, your left one, and your right one too, in a hurry. [15]

VICHAKSHANĀ. And I'll break that part of you that goes by the name of the asterism<sup>5</sup> following Latter Phalgunī, in a hurry. [16]

KING. Man, don't talk that way. She has some standing 6 in the line of poetry. [18]

JESTER. [Nettled.] Then why don't you say it straight out: "Our little hussy's a first-rate poet, ahead even of Harivrddha, Nandivrddha, Poṭṭisa, Hāla, and the rest"? [So saying, he prances around on the stage.] [21]

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. [Derisively.] You take yourself off to where my first swaddling-clothes went.<sup>7</sup> [23]

<sup>1</sup> To an Occidental, gāura, 'yellowish' is a doubtful compliment: it is applied to a beautiful woman of golden flesh-tint, at Rāmāyaṇa v. 10. 52, ed. Bombay, and is used similarly here, as I think.

<sup>2</sup> Or, your uncouth words do not support or keep from falling (avalambedi), that is, do not keep from appearing ridiculous, the elegance of your ideas.—The jester's words are good and his subject bad (like pearls on a hag): Vichakshaṇā's words are bad and her subject good (like a coarse patch on a fine fabric). I am not sure about avalambedi. If I am right, the sandal-ointment seems out of place.

its divisions marked by letters (akṣaras); while the beam of the balance for weighing gold or finer objects was not lettered. At any rate, the play of words on "unlettered" (= 'unmarked' and 'illiterate') and "lettered" (= 'marked' and 'ilterate') is palpable. — She means, "you, jester, are a rough stick; but are employed on work (poetry) as fine as gem-weighing — that is, royal favor gives you a chance at 'high art': while with me the case is reversed."

- 4 Karṇa: karṇa, as appellative, means 'ear.'
- $^5$  Hasta : hasta means also 'hand.' See p. 214.
  - 6 Compare BR. vii. 1330, under k).
  - 7 That is, "to the devil knows where!"

JESTER. [Turning his head to look back.] And you—to where my mother's first set of teeth went.<sup>1</sup> [25] Here's luck to such a royal court as this, where a hussy appears [to be set] on a par with a Brahman, where strong drink and the five products of the [sacred] cow are put in one and the same dish, where glass and ruby are employed together on the [same] parure. [26]

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. In this royal court may you have that 2 put on your neck [namely, a half-wring, as we might say], which the Exalted Triple-eyed God [Çiva] wears on his head [namely, the half-ring of the moon]; and may your head be well bruised by that [namely, the touch of a foot] by which 3 the longings of the açoka tree are satisfied [namely, the touch of a maiden's foot]. [27]

JESTER. Ha, you slave-girl's child, you terror of the gambling-hells, you wholesale polluter of young men,<sup>4</sup> you street-walker! that's the way you talk to me, [is it?] well then, as sure as I'm a great Brahman,<sup>5</sup> you shall get that by which, about February or March, the longings <sup>6</sup> of the horse-radish tree<sup>7</sup> are satisfied; and that which a strong but lazy bull gets from the outcastes.<sup>8</sup> [29]

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. While I, if you go rattling on that way, like the [jingling] bangles on my foot, with my foot I'll smash your face. And

- 1 "To the devil knows where."
- <sup>2</sup> The ardha-candra, literally, 'half-moon,' serves as Çiva's diadem (cp. i. 3a); but the word means also 'the hand bent like the crescent moon for clutching.' 'To (give, i.e.) put a half-moon on a man's neck' = 'to wring his neck.'
- <sup>8</sup> Literally, 'by which the açoka tree gets its dohada:' dohada, 'the whimsical longing of a pregnant woman,' is here the desire of the budding tree to bloom. This is accomplished by the touch of a fair maid's foot. The "touch" as applied to the jester would be a rude kick.

The açoka is one of the loveliest of Indian trees. It blooms at the beginning of the hot weather, say the botanists; when touched by a fair maiden's foot, say the poets.—The latter have very much to say about it; compare ii. 43, below, and Vāsudeva's Scholion thereto, and see especially ii. 47. Indeed, the Sāhitya-darpaṇa makes the matter to be one of "common notoriety"—see no. 576,

- under khyāti- . . . viruddhatā, and p. 228 end. See also Paul Elmer More's "Century of Indian Epigrams," no. XI; and Sprüche. 5693, raktāçoka, a stanza which some Mss. insert in the Vikramorvaçī immediately after raktakadamba, iv. 30. The flowers are of a beautiful orange color, changing gradually to red.
- <sup>4</sup> Seems to mean the same as para-puttavitṭāliṇi, i. 18<sup>8</sup>. — But Vāsudeva, p. 17<sup>18</sup>, explains it as 'getting your living by perjury,' taking kosa as 'false oath.'
  - <sup>5</sup> 'By the word of me, a great Brahman.'<sup>6</sup> Sarcastically here.
- <sup>7</sup> Moringa pterygosperma, called dançamūla at Rājanighaṇṭu, p. 142, Poona. The bulbs are cut up for a pungent sauce and the limbs are torn off for their flowers.
- <sup>8</sup> A cut in his nose, for the insertion of a nose-ring (cp. Manwaring, Marāthī Proverbs, no. 201). Cp. Hemachandra, 1268, and Marāthī baila. For ablative, see p. 203.
- <sup>9</sup> The point of comparison between the jester and the bangles is the senseless noise

what's more, I'll tear off from you the pair of parts [your ears] that go by the name of the asterism 1 that follows Latter Ashāḍhā, and chuck 'em away. [31]

JESTER. [Walking testily about the stage—then in a rather loud voice, behind the curtain—] Commend me to such a royal court as this—when 2 it's a devil of a way off! [a court] where a slave-girl sets up a rivalry with a Brahman! Well, from this day on, I propose—obediently paying my humble duty to my worshipful spouse Vasumdharā—to stay just at home! [Laughter all round.] [35]

QUEEN. What sort of fun can we have without our worthy Kapiñ-jala? [or] how adorn our eyes beautifully without collyrium? [36]

JESTER. [From the tiring room.] Oh no, you won't get me to come back, not by a long shot! better look out for somebody else to be your "old man": or perhaps you might put this mean little wench in my place, after giving her a mask with a long beard, and awful ears.<sup>3</sup>—I'm the only one among you that's dead and done for; but you—here's life to you for a hundred years! [41]

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. Don't try to make up with 4 the Brahman Kapiñjala: conciliation only makes him all the harsher, just as sprinkling water on a knot in a hempen rope makes it all the tighter. [43]

QUEEN. [Looking in every direction around her.] For that the God of Day, resting his glance on the unsteady swings that are tossed to and fro by the feet of the singing wives of the herdsmen, driveth his car with halting coursers,<sup>5</sup>—therefore are the days very, very long.<sup>6</sup> 21 that both make. Pāda-lagga, 'attached to my foot' = 'on my foot.'

<sup>1</sup> Strictly speaking, Abhijit (containing α Lyrae) comes next after Latter Ashāḍhā, but it is so far from the ecliptic as hardly to count. Then comes Çravaṇa: çravaṇa means also 'ear.' See p. 214, and Whitney's Essay on the Lunar Zodiac, there cited, pages 410, 409, and 355.

- <sup>5</sup> Literally, 'goes, having a limping-steed car, a car with limping steeds.'
- <sup>6</sup> This stanza is a covert hint (dhvanyate) at the fact that she greatly misses her jester.
  - <sup>7</sup> See Lévi, Théâtre, p. 374.
- <sup>8</sup> Although this English phrase means 'make way or room,' it is perhaps the nearest feasible equivalent for what is literally 'a seat, a seat!'
- 9 'What (purpose is there) with it (the seat)?'

QUEEN. The one who is popularly reported to be a wonderful master magician? [5]

JESTER. Yes, to be sure.

KING. Have him enter.

[The Jester goes out, and reënters with the Magician.]

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. [As if a little boozy.] 1

As for black-book and spell, — they may all go to hell!<sup>2</sup> My teacher's excused me from practice for trance.<sup>3</sup> With drink and with women we fare mighty well, As on — to salvation — we merrily dance!<sup>4</sup>

Moreover:

A fiery young wench to the altar I've led.<sup>5</sup> Good meat I consume, and I guzzle strong drink; And it all comes as alms, — with a pelt for my bed. What better religion could any one think? <sup>6</sup>

And again:

Gods Vishņu and Brahm and the others may preach Of salvation by trance, holy rites, and the Vedies.<sup>7</sup> 'Twas Umā's fond lover <sup>8</sup> alone that could teach Us salvation plus brandy plus fun with the ladies.

<sup>8</sup> The intent contemplation which was very anciently and widely practised in order to bring on a state of hypnotic trance.

4 Literally, 'unto salvation we go, following the Kula way.' The "Kula way" is so called because its followers (Kāulas) refer to a Kula Upanishad as scriptural authority for their practices (Williams). - The union of the male principle in nature with the female is typified in the androgynous form of Civa, in which the right side is male and the left is female. The latter represents the personified 'Power' of nature (cakti='power'), and her worshippers are called Çāktas or Followers of the Left-hand Way. This worship degenerated into the most indescribable licentiousness. It was ostensibly practised in order to attain, in the manner prescribed by the Tantras, the supernatural powers such as the Magician is here supposed to possess.—The reader may consult Monier-Williams, Brahmanism and Hinduism, p. 180–186.

For the doubtless satirical juxtaposition of sensuality and salvation, cp. a lampoon on the Buddhists, cited by Leumann, Wiener Zeitschrift für die Kunde des Morgenlandes, iii. 332, which I render as follows:

A good soft bed; an early drink on rising; Dinner at noon; his toddy in the evening; Sweetmeats at night;—to crown it all, salvation!

See? that's the way your Çākya-son would work it!

- <sup>5</sup> 'A hot strumpet has been consecrated (see dīks) as lawful wife.'
- <sup>6</sup> Literally, 'to whom does the Kāula religion not appear charming?'
- <sup>7</sup> I have assumed "Vedy" (riming with "lady") as a colloquially humorous mispronunciation of "Veda," the name of the oldest holy scripture of India. It will seem natural enough to any Yankee.
  - 8 Çiva, as god of the Left-hand Çāktas.

KING. Here is a seat. Let Bhāiravānanda take it.

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. [Seating himself.] What'll you have me do?

KING. Glad to see a wonder in 'most any line you please.

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA.

I can bring down the moon to the ground
And show you its rabbit-face <sup>1</sup> round.
The car of the sun I can stop in mid-sky.
Wives of sprites, gods, or Siddhas through heaven that fly,
Or of Çiva's retainers, — I fetch 'em anigh.
Lord knows what on earth I can't do if I try.

So tell me what you'll have done.

KING. [Looking at the Jester.] Say, man, has a peerless gem of a woman been seen 2 anywhere?

JESTER. There is here in the Deccan<sup>3</sup> a town named Vidarbhā. There I have seen one gem of a girl. Her let him "fetch anigh" [to us] here. [7]

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. I am fetching her anigh.

KING. Bring down the full moon 4 to the ground.

[Bhāiravānanda represents in pantomime 5 the practice for trance.] [10]

[Then enters, with a hurried toss of the curtain, the Heroine. — All gaze.] [12]

KING. Oh, wonderful, wonderful!

Since the tips of her curly locks yet stick to her face, since her eyes are red with the washed-off collyrium, since drops are a-tremble on the massy tresses she holds in her hand,<sup>6</sup> since she has but a single garment and that but half put on,<sup>7</sup>—therefore I think this girl, who alone can fill me with wonder,<sup>8</sup> was busied with her play in the bath <sup>9</sup> [at the moment when she was] "fetched anigh" by yonder master Magician. 26

And again:

With one lily-hand arranging the border of the garment that falls on

- <sup>1</sup> The Hindu sees, not a "man in the moon," but a rabbit (cp. H. C. Warren, Buddhism in Translations, p. 274), or a blackantelope (cp. note to ii. 20 below).
- <sup>2</sup> We miss the tae or tue ('have you seen') which appears in the variants, and is answered by mae, i. 25°.
  - <sup>3</sup> See page 213.
- <sup>4</sup> Literally, 'the moon on the night of the full,'—in palpable allusion to the first line of the Magician's stanza (25), but with covert allusion to any full-moon-faced beauty whom the king would be glad now to see.

- <sup>5</sup> See Lévi, Théâtre, p. 387.
- <sup>6</sup> Literally, 'hand-supported mass of sprays of hair.'
- 7 'Since a single garment-border (or garment-skirt) has been put on.'—She had no time to put it all on properly.
  - 8 Literally, 'sole-producer of marvels.'
  - <sup>9</sup> Cp. ii. 24 and note to ii. 24<sup>3</sup>.

her rounded breasts so firm, with the other restraining the sari that flutters as she walks, — who in a picture could her grace portray? 5

JESTER. For her bath she had doffed her ample parure. Her adornments were spoiled by the breaking of the waves.<sup>6</sup> Her slender form shows neath her dripping vesture.<sup>7</sup> This maiden's glance is the sum and substance of loveliness.

HEROINE. [As she looks at them all—aside.] That this is some great King is made manifest by the way in which he plainly unites the graces of dignity and charm.<sup>8</sup> Of this one too I have an opinion, [namely,] that she is his First-Queen—you don't need to be told, in order to recognize Gāurī<sup>9</sup> at the left side of the Half-woman God.<sup>10</sup> And this is the master Magician. [5] Here again are the attendants. [Stops to reflect.] Then why does his look seem to make so much of me, even in the presence of his wife? [So saying, she gives a coquettish glance.<sup>11</sup>] [9]

KING. [Aside—to the Jester.] When she suddenly, past my ear, shot a sidelong glance sharply flashing, [a flashing glance] whose brilliancy was like that of the cavities of the petals on the tips of the ketakas where the bee sucks, 12—then was I whitened surely with the best of camphor

- <sup>1</sup> Literally, 'on her firm-breast-hills': thala is used of parts of the body which may be considered as raised or elevated or projecting or rounded above or beyond its general surface so of buttocks (ii. 1a), of cheeks, of breasts. Cp. BR., s.v. sthala (3a, 4a).
- <sup>2</sup> Dr. Konow books the word, of course, under root yam.
- <sup>8</sup> The kadilla (defined by HD. as kaţī-vastra) is doubtless the sari (or saree or sary), a long piece of silk or cotton wrapped about the hips, with one end falling nearly to the feet and the other thrown over the head, and here the same as the potta or 'garment' of line b—since she wore but "one."
- <sup>4</sup> Literally, 'the kaḍilla which was moved (from the, i.e.) by the walking,' cañkramaṇatas, Whitney, § 1098.

- 'radiant,' i.e. 'radiantly beautiful' see BR. under las + ud.
- 8 Literally, 'This one is known as a king by this (iminā) profound-and-charming graceunion.' Here iminā means 'this which you plainly see, this plain or manifest' (union), reminding us a little of Latin ille. As used of the character, gambhīra is 'deep, solemn, dignified.'
- <sup>9</sup> Literally, 'Gāurī, even untold, is known:'—and it's just as easy, even without help, to recognize the Queen.
- <sup>11</sup> Vāsudeva defines try-açram as tiryagudancitam, (she looks a look) 'bent sideways.' The king refers to this glance at ii. 1<sup>d</sup>. — See notes on the coquettish glance, ii. 6<sup>a</sup>, iii. 2<sup>d</sup>.
- 12 Literally, 'when a sharp sideglance-flash was shot ear-nigh suddenly, [a flash] possessing brilliancy (chavi) like [that of] bee-sucked ketaka-tip-petal cavities.' I take sav- as 'with an ear-interval,' not hitting. Kaṭākṣachaṭā occurs in the 2d example to Sāhitya-darpaṇa, no. 100, cited by BR. ii. 1072. The pple āaḍḍhia, 'pulled at' by bees, is booked under kṛṣ + ā.

(karpūra), bathed surely with moonlight. Meantime I am become overlaid as it were with dense pearl-dust.

[As before, aside — to the Jester.]

Oh, the splendor of her beauty!

Methinks her waist, circled with triple folds, were easily grasped even by a baby's fist, while to compass the expanse of her hips is not possible <sup>2</sup> even with the two arms.<sup>3</sup> A tender child's hand suggests a comparison for the bigness of her eyes.<sup>4</sup> And so [by reason of her beauty], it is not possible in a picture to portray her as she really is.<sup>5</sup>

JESTER. Albeit her adornments are stripped off for the bath and her cosmetics are washed away by it, [yet] how lovely she is! or rather, let me say,

Even women who are devoid of [natural] beauty put on adornments, [for] they win a certain comeliness by such embellishment; [but] adornments make the comeliness even of a person who is naturally handsome to unfold itself [to still greater beauty].<sup>6</sup>

KING. That's true of this girl, at any rate. For

Her loveliness is like to gold, untarnished, unalloyed.<sup>7</sup> Her almondeyes reach even to her ears.<sup>8</sup> The expanse of her cheeks is like to the full-orbed moon. That she is under the protection of the Five-arrowed God, [who guards her] with bended bow,<sup>9</sup> [is clear], because

- <sup>1</sup> Or, with a pun of which the King is not consciously guilty, 'then was I irradiated with love for Karpūra (-mañjarī).'
- <sup>2</sup> The phrase no jāi (yāti) seems to be used like es geht nicht, that won't go, etc. 'The expanse is not possible to be embraced' (vest). For the use of the infinitive here and in d, see Jacobi, § 116. "Expanse:" cp. i. 32b.
- <sup>3</sup> The style of beauty here exaggeratedly described is abundantly illustrated by the sculptures of ancient Indian monuments. They out-Rubens Rubens in his most drastic avalanches of buttocks. See A. Cunningham's Bharhut, Plate xxiii. Hindu painters show more self-restraint than the sculptors and poets: see Griffiths, i. p. 9<sup>a</sup>.

- <sup>7</sup> Literally, 'gold, new (or fresh) and genuine.' The two adjectives are not without appropriateness of reference to girlish loveliness also.
- <sup>8</sup> A strange bit of racial psychology underlies the varying national ideals of beauty of person (cp. note to ii. 46).—Literally, 'Of her eyes the length is brought to a stop (skhalitam, 'stumbled, fallen,'—or as pple of the causative) by her ears.' Cp. i. 16<sup>3</sup>; 30°; 34°; ii. 27<sup>a</sup>. Of a handsome young ascetic, Bāṇa says, "his eyes were so long that he seemed to wear them as a chaplet," Kādambarī, p. 280. See Griffiths, i. 8<sup>b</sup>.
- 9 Dhanuddanda is 'bow-stock;' but stock in this connection (see Century Dic'y, s.v. stock, sense 9) is superfluous in English.

his arrows, "Parcher," "Bewilderer," and the rest, are piercing me through.

JESTER. [With a smile.] The wind of the highway knows the liana's power of resistance.<sup>3</sup>

KING. [With a smile.] I tell you, old man:

The embellishment effected by their own manifold excellences makes handsome the person of women; <sup>4</sup> while splendor of attire seems [rather] to conceal <sup>5</sup> their beauty of form. Accordingly, for those on whose limbs is imprinted the seal of a certain loveliness, <sup>6</sup> Cupid, methinks, with bended bow, stands as the ever-ready servant. <sup>7</sup>

Moreover: Of this maiden

The spread of the hips is such that no creeper-like girdle is on them; the breast-hills are so towering as to hide from her sight her waist; 8 the eyes are so long that there is no [room for a] lotus on her ear; 9 and the face beams forth with such radiance that it seems like a second moon on the night of full moon. 10

QUEEN. Worthy Kapiñjala, find out 11 who she is.

JESTER. [To the Heroine.] Come, sweet-faced girl, sit down and tell me who you are.

QUEEN. A seat for her!

Although we say bow-string when we mean the string, we say simply bow when we mean the bow-stock. Cp. vana-antare etc.

- <sup>3</sup> Sodīrattaṇa, 'manliness, pride, self-respect.' For this passage, Dr. Konow suggests 'power of resistance.' Cupid knows how hard it is to conquer the King and so is shooting at him with great energy.

I give with diffidence the following interpretation: By i. 32, the King means, "Cupid guards this fascinating girl, and I fear I may not win her." "Never fear," says the Jester, reassuringly; "the wind knows how little resistance the swaying creeper offers."

- 4 'The person of women is beautiful [when] embellished by the host of their own excellences.'

  - 11 'Know thou by asking,' 'πυθοῦ.'

JESTER. Here is my over-garment. [5]

[The Jester gives the Heroine the garment, and she sits down upon it.]

JESTER. Now tell me.

HEROINE. There is here in the Deccan, at Kuntala, a king named Vallabha-rāja, beloved (vallabha) by all his people.

QUEEN. [Aside, to herself.] Yes, and he's my aunt's husband. [10] HEROINE. His consort is named Çaçi-prabhā.

QUEEN. [Aside, as before.] And she's my mother's sister.

HEROINE. [Smiling.] They call me by way of joke [?] their "bought daughter." [15]

QUEEN. [Aside.] Such splendor of beauty, surely, was not produced save from the loins of Çaçi-prabhā; nor are 2 pencils of precious beryl, save from Beryl Mountain. [Aloud.] You are Karpūra-mañjarī, aren't you! [20]

[The Heroine stands abashed.]

QUEEN. Come, little sister, embrace me. [So saying the Queen puts her arms around her.]

HEROINE. Oh joy! here at last Karpūra-mañjarī has begun to receive recognition!<sup>4</sup> [24]

QUEEN. Today, Bhāiravānanda, by your kindness, I have been made to enjoy an uncommonly neat [but] queer little arrangement in seeing [this] little sister.<sup>5</sup> So let her stay now for a fortnight. Afterwards you shall carry <sup>6</sup> her back by your magic power.<sup>7</sup> [27]

Bhāiravānanda. As the Queen says.

JESTER. [To the King.] Say! we're everlastingly 8—both of us—left out in the cold, you and I, since they have got together in a cosey family circle. For these two women are "little sister" each to the other;

- <sup>1</sup> See p. 213.
- <sup>2</sup> The verbal idea in each of these two clauses is expressed by a derivative of the same root pad, with ud or with nis.
- <sup>8</sup> Literally, 'beryl-gem-pencils.' The beryl occurs in hexagonal prisms; hence the appropriateness of the word "pencil." Some varieties are very beautiful (the emerald is one of them), while others are very little worth; hence the need of the word "gem."
- 4 Literally, 'of K. this is the first salutation:' but if put thus, it might imply that she is glad she has received none before.
  - <sup>5</sup> Literally, 'today an unprecedented

- (= uncommonly neat) queer-little-arrangement (= samvihāṇaa, cp. OB. vii. 5b), with the sight of the little-sister, has been caused by your kindness to be enjoyed by me.'
- <sup>6</sup> In the Prākrit, the verb is plural,— "honoris causa," says the Scholiast.
- <sup>7</sup> Literally, 'contemplation-car;' that is, the supernatural power which you will attain by trance-practice will serve you to carry her home through the air to Kuntala.
- <sup>8</sup> In rendering param, I venture to use this English vulgarism because it suits the Jester
  - 9 'Since of them (Queen, Heroine, Vi-while Bhāiravānanda is praised and made much of for bringing them together. [33] And here a terrestrial Goddess of Speech, a go-between, [is parading about,] reincarnated as a downright Queen.<sup>1</sup> [34]

QUEEN. Vichakshaṇā, to Bhāiravānanda must be shown every attention his heart can wish, and you may go to your eldest sister, Sulakshaṇā, and tell her so.<sup>2</sup> [35]

VICHAKSHANĀ. As the Queen commands.

QUEEN. [To the King.] My lord, pray let me take my leave; 3 for you see the state the little sister is in, 4 and I'm going to the women's apartments 5 to arrange her attire with beauty and grace. [38]

KING. [Of course you may go; for] it is quite proper to fill the runnels about the roots of the champaka creeper with musk and camphor.<sup>6</sup>

FIRST BARD. [Behind the stage.] May twilight bring its gladness to my King. [41]

The hot-rayed sun's round orb, like to the body <sup>7</sup> of the soul of day, — who knows where that in all the world is gone, <sup>8</sup> now that the time for day to die <sup>9</sup> is come? And even this lotus-pool, <sup>10</sup> as if her eyes were sealed in a swoon on hearing of the long separation [that awaits her,] now that her lord is departed, hath shut fast the lids of all her lily-eyes. <sup>11</sup> 35 chakshaṇā, and Magician) there is an assembled family.'

- <sup>1</sup> Dr. Konow refers the allusion (sarcastic, says the Scholiast) of this sentence to Vichakshanā, comparing ii. 10<sup>8</sup>; and takes dehantareṇa with devī, as the reading of W suggests. It vexes the Jester to see Vichakshaṇā so honored.
- <sup>2</sup> 'Attention is to be paid . . ., telling your sister.'
  - 3 See Index, under is.
- 4 'I am going... on account of the beauty and grace of attire of the little sister who has this condition,' which you plainly see. She had been snatched from the bath by the Magician (cp. i. 26 and 28).
  - <sup>5</sup> The action is taken up again at ii. 11<sup>8</sup>.
- <sup>6</sup> The Scholiast takes this as a case of samāsa-ukti, citing for it Kāvya-prakāça, x. 97, p. 671, Bombay ed.,—cp. Sāhitya-darpaṇa, p. 30910-11, transl., p. 398. The "champaka creeper" suggests a slender, lovely woman,—here the Heroine. It is proper to bestow thereon all needful attention.

- <sup>7</sup> Taking piṇḍa as 'body'; but Dr. Konow takes jīva-piṇḍa as 'Lebens-masse,' 'Lebens-hauch.'
- <sup>8</sup> Literally, 'who knows where (kahim) in the world (pi) that is gone?'—In other words, I think that pi, although adding an indefinite idea to the interrogative, does not convert the interrogative into an indefinite ('somewhere') in this passage.
- 9 'The occasion for the death (kāla) [of the day] having arrived' (āp): Vāsudeva, ''sāyamsamaye.''
- 10 In Prākrit this is feminine (nalinī), and so I refer to it by the feminine pronoun in English. Literally, 'the pool has become (jāā, under jan) having lilies shut ("shut," as used of the eyes)."—Soūņa, under çru, Jacobi, § 61.
- <sup>11</sup> The pool (feminine) of day-blooming lotuses closes her "eyes" (the blossoms on her "face") in a swoon of grief when her beloved lord (the sun) leaves her. The sun's departure is hinted at in the first half-stanza; and the second half-stanza is of course in clear allegorical allusion to the Heroine, and to her grief at being separated from the King.—This is a case of "transfer" (samādhi, Kāvyādarça, i. 93): "because the ways of the Heroine are here transferred to the lotuspool," says the Scholiast. For day-blooming and night-blooming lotuses, see note to ii. 50, with which stanza this may be compared.

says the Scholiast. Open roofs are much used in the East as a kind of pleasance at night. With Vāsudeva, I take citta-bhittī-nivesā as = citra-gṛhās.

- 2 'In the star-time.'
- <sup>8</sup> "Hastily:" there is scarcely any twilight in Southern India.—See root str.
- 4 'The sound (rustle) of silk has begun by reason of the moving of the fingers' etc.
- 5 'The hum of women angry and tranquillized.'
- 6 'To pay worship, [namely, our] evening-prayer,' somewhat like άγωνίζεσθαι πάλην.

ACT II.

[Then enter the King and the Porteress.]

PORTERESS. [Walking around a bit on the stage.] This way, this way, O King!

KING. [Takes several steps, and then, with his thoughts on her—1] On that occasion <sup>2</sup>

Not from their places<sup>3</sup> moved even the breadth of a sesamum seed her fair rounded buttocks; <sup>4</sup> her belly seemed as if slightly overflowing with wavy folds; <sup>5</sup> her neck she bent aside; while the braided tress, that from her moon-like face did stray, <sup>6</sup> was clasped within the folding of her breasts: <sup>7</sup> [thus] in fourfold wise her slender form she showed, as on me sideways she her glance did bend. <sup>8</sup>

PORTERESS. [To herself, aside.] How now—even today—piling up the same old palm-leaves?—the same old stock phrases? —Well, I must sing the praises of spring-time to him and so slacken his passion for her. [Aloud.] Contemplate, O King, the flowery season, 10 which is very gently coming on. 11 [5]

[Now] are lengthening the days that break completely 12 the seal of the throat of the cuckoo's mate, that make the bees to hum with sweetness

- <sup>1</sup> That is, of course, on the heroine. Supply "says."
- $^2$  The occasion described at i. 28 $^\circ$ , when she gave him the coquettish glance which he now recalls in line d.
  - <sup>8</sup> For the form of the ablative, see H. 3. 9.
- $^4$  Properly, 'well-conditioned buttock-hill'—cp. i.  $27^b$ , note.
- <sup>5</sup> '(Was) possessing slightly overflowing fold-waves.' Cp. ii. 6<sup>b</sup>.
- 6 'The braid in straying from her facemoon;' or 'the braid, in the nodding to and fro of her face-moon:' either venī or āṇaṇendu might be the subject of bhamaṇa.
- 7 'By her braid a breast-embrace was got.'

- $^8$  'Of her, looking-coquettishly at me, the body-liana became (jan) having-four-disposals or-arrangings (-vidhā):' that is, four dispositions or attitudes of as many parts of her liana-like body presented themselves to my notice as she glanced etc.
- <sup>9</sup> 'The same piling together of palmleaves, the same word-series:' proverbial equivalent for threshing the same old straw.
- <sup>10</sup> 'Give a glance at the flowery season.'
  The Scholiast seems to think the form of expression a little forced. And I certainly do.
- $^{11}$  'Which is maturing a very little.' This is vague as a time-datum; but the statement at ii.  $^{623}$  seems more definite.
  - <sup>12</sup> See i. 4<sup>b</sup> note. Cp. also p. 203.

King. [Giving no ear to it. — In impassioned style.]

When, to the eyes of all in the place of assembly, she appeared as <sup>3</sup> an abounding stream of loveliness, as a city of the manifold dwellings of laughter and amorous delight, <sup>4</sup> as a paragon <sup>5</sup> of comeliness, as a lake whose blue lotuses were eyes, but withal as the enlivener of my passion, — then did Cupid fix a sharp piercing arrow on the string of his bow. <sup>6</sup> 3

[As if crazed with love.] From the very instant that I first saw her,—the fawn-eyed <sup>7</sup> girl,—

If I paint a picture, she flashes forth upon it; 8 she falls not short in [any] excellencies; 9 on [my] couch, [meseems,] she slumbers; but I see her face like a full-blown flower in every quarter of the sky; 10 of my talk she is the subject; of my verses, she the theme; 11 from my brooding thoughts ne'er parted 12 for long is the tender wanton maid. 13

And again:

They whom the coquettish half-glance of her piercing restless eye hath smit, <sup>14</sup> will [soon] to death be done by koil's note <sup>15</sup> and spring and moon

- 1 'Giving a prolonged quality of sweetness to the hum of the bees.'
- <sup>2</sup> 'That set agoing (sam-car, caus.) the Panchama note.' Cp. i. 16<sup>3</sup>; also Çārngadhara's Paddhati, no. 2048 (in the season of flowers, the koil utters the fifth or Panchama note, our G; the frog, A; the elephant, B).
- <sup>8</sup> 'When she became the beauty-stream (of the eyes of, i.e.) in the eyes of the people of 'etc.

- <sup>5</sup> I am in doubt about this word. And the Scholia are not fully clear to me.
- <sup>6</sup> Punkha is the arrow's notched and feathered end which is fixed on the string. (See Raghuvança ii. 31.) "The arrow was 'punkha-ed' on the bow" means "the arrow's notch was fixed on the bow-string." This action is called samdhana. So iv. 20<sup>d</sup>.
- <sup>7</sup> Properly 'gazelle-eyed.' The gazelle is a small and graceful antelope, with large liquid eyes. The reader should see the beautiful pictures of P. L. Sclater and O. Thomas's Book of Antelopes, London, 1894—, if he would know the full force of this epithet.
  - 8 'On a picture she bursts forth.' If I amuse myself with painting, my pictures always turn out to be portraits of her.

- <sup>9</sup> This clause seems strangely inept.
- 10 'She blossoms out [like a flower] in 'etc.
- 11 'In [my] talk she is present; in [my] poetry, she comes forward or makes her appearance or (if the author will forgive me) bobs up.'
- $^{12}$  'In [my] meditation, not separated is 'etc.
- 13 Dr. Konow books the verbs under sphut, khuttai, lott, visattai (Skt. çat), vrt, trut; see his references to Pischel's Hemachandra. Skt. trut is 'to part' (intrans.), as we say of a rope. Cp. Marāthī tuṭaṇem, and Molesworth, p. 383b: "whilst of moḍaṇem the sense is 'to break,' with the ever-inherent implication of destruction of form or state, the sense of tuṭaṇem is 'to break,' with the implication of parting or separating."
- 14 'They who have been looked at (ditthā) by a third-part of her eye.' Cp. Hāla's Saptaçataka, no. 505.
- <sup>15</sup> Cp. note to ii. 2° and cp. i. 16<sup>3</sup>. Cp. Sāhitya-darpaṇa, no. 215.

[As if lost in pensive remembrance.] And again:

Before 4 her, [flies] a glance, [like] a line of bees, [straight and stinging]; 5 while [in the middle, 6 or] about her waist there is a garland of milk-white wavy folds; 7 and behind her proceeds, amid her coquettish peepings, Cupid, holding his bow bent so nearly round that the string touches his ear. 8

[Stops to think.] My man is long coming back. [2]

[The Jester and Vichakshanā enter and walk about.]

JESTER. Say, Vichakshaṇā, is this all true?

VICHAKSHANĀ. Yes, it's all true, only more so. [5]

JESTER. I don't believe you --- you are so awful funny!

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. My good man, don't talk that way: there's one time for joking, and another for the consideration of business.

JESTER. [Looking before him.] Here's my old man, as out of spirits  $(mukka-m\bar{a}nasa)^9$  as a gander that's quit Lake Mānasa  $(mukka-m\bar{a}nasa)^{10}$  emaciated with the fever-of-love (mada) as an elephant with rut (mada),

- <sup>1</sup> For the Moon as Love's ally, see Kā-dambarī, p. 559<sup>12</sup>, kusuma-çara-sahāyaç candramāḥ. Cp. note to iii. 30.
- 2 'Full look' (ditthi), in contrast with the "third-part-look" of line a.
- 8 'Are fit for the gift of the two handfuls of sesamum-water,' the customary libation to the departed.
- <sup>4</sup> The metaphoric language is here so "bold" (prāuḍha, as Vāsudeva justly observes), that no bare English version suffices to reproduce the thought.
- 5 'Before [her] is the bee-row of her eyes.' Kālidāsa speaks (Meghadūta, 35) of the temple girls and their eyes, "Whose glances gleam, like bees, along the sky," a free but good rendering of madhukara-çrenidīrghān kaṭākṣān. This last is precisely what Rājaçekhara seems here to have in mind. Coquettish glances may reach far, like the bee's long flight; are straight as a "beeline;" like the bees, they leave a sting; perhaps also they are bright as the bees' shining wings, for bees are described as sphurant or 'flashing' at Sprüche, 1986d.—See H. H.

Wilson's comment on the Meghadūta passage; cp. Sprüche, 2463, where the kaṭākṣa is likened to a swarm of bees.—See iii. 2<sup>d</sup>.

The "row" or "string" (greni) in which the wild geese fly is mentioned even in the Rigveda (iii. 8. 9); and a "string" of bees forms the "bow-string" of Cupid's sugar-cane bow (Megh., 71). Bhinga-sarani is here about the same as bhramara-pankti or madhukara-greni.—Correction in proof: Konow takes bhinga-sarani here rather as the dark eyebrows.

- 6" Before," "in the middle," and "behind" are in evident contrast, majjhe, with double meaning, signifying here on her belly."

BOTH. [Stepping about.] Victory, victory to the King!

KING. Man! how have you gone so far as even again to meet Vichakshanā?

JESTER. This time Vichakshaṇā did the "going," for she came to make it all up with me. And when she had made up, I stopped to talk with her till ever so much time went by.<sup>3</sup> [15]

KING. "Making up!"—what's the use?

JESTER. [The use is] that (jain) here, with a letter in her hand 4 from a regular little dear, is — Vichakshaṇā! [17]

KING. [Acting as if he noticed a pleasant odor.] It seems to me as if I smelt the fragrance of ketaka blossoms.

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. Here in my hand is a letter on ketaka flower-leaves. [20]

KING. How do there come to be ketaka flowers in March?<sup>5</sup>

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. Bhāiravānanda has imparted to us a spell by whose power one blossom already has been made to appear on the ketaka-stock in the Queen's palace-garden. [22] With some of its hollow flower-leaves, today, the fourth day of the "Swing-breaker," the Queen has paid Further interesting allusions may be found at Kumāra-sambhava, i. 7; and in Kādambarī, p. 4336. The last passage speaks of scratching a message with the finger nails, and, as here, on petals of ketakī.

5 'In Madhu,' the older name of Chāitra = March-April: see Whitney, JAOS. vi. 4134. The Screw-pine or ketaka does not flower till the rainy season, says Roxburgh, p. 707, i.e., some three months later. Roxburgh adds: "The tender white leaves of the flowers... yield that most delightful fragrance...; of all the perfumes in the world it must be the richest and most powerful." See Pandanus in Century Dic'y, and note to iv. 21b. Also Griffiths, i. p. 36b, and pl. 63.

6 There are various Swing festivals. The most famous is the dola-yātrā (culminating with the Phālguna full moon), during which images of Krishṇa are placed on a swing and swung. The weight of the idols often broke the swing: hence the name in the text.—Again, on the eleventh of the bright half of Chāitra, Vishṇu and Lakshmī are swung.—The context of the passage before us (cp. ii. 29<sup>5</sup>) indicates that here the Swing festival of Gāurī (and Çiva) is intended, the gāuryā dolotsava. This āndolana-vrata is a rite observed by women and begins on the third of the bright half of Chāitra. Herein agree homage to Pārvatī, the belovèd of Çiva. And again, a couple more of them she has [taken and] bestowed as a mark of favor on her "little sister," Karpūra-mañjarī. And the latter has paid homage to the same exalted Gāurī 1 with one of her two flower-leaves; [25] and the other Hollow flower-leaf of the ketaka blossom as a present to you your friend hath sent; and it is inscribed with a couplet which is lovely with its words (vanna) [written] in musk-ink, [or, punning] which is lovely with the color (vanna) of the musk-ink.

[ With that, she hands him the billet-doux.]

KING. [Opens out 5 (the somewhat folded leaf) and reads it.]

By staining a white goose with saffron-paste till her feathers were ruddy (piñjara), I suppose (kila) that I cheated her gander into thinking "She must be the mate of a Ruddy Goose" (cakravāka). - <sup>2</sup> 'And it (jam) is inscribed with a clokacouplet,' that is, a couplet which forms a cloka (= stanza 8). With this interpretation, each of the two members of the couplet would be a half of stanza 8.—Otherwise, we may assume that siloa is used as equivalent to "verse," and with the same looseness as in English, and meaning 'line' or 'half-stanza' here, and 'stanza' at ii. 8<sup>3</sup>, 9<sup>1</sup>.
- <sup>3</sup> Colored chalks and brilliant miniums (red lead, etc.) were used as surrogates for ink. At Jātaka, iv. 489<sup>17</sup>, words are written on a wall with vermilion or "native cinnabar," jāti-hingulaka. Cp. Horace, Satires, ii. 7. 98. See Bühler, Palæography, p. 92, 93; and my note to iii. 18 below. Any color would show well on the white floral leaves of the ketaka.
- * Eṇa-ṇāhi, 'antelope navel,' is one of the many names for 'musk' or kastūrikā. This is reddish-yellow, overpowers the intense odor of ketakas, and provokes even elephants to rut. — Rājanighantu, p. 100.

In the same volume, p. 439, sahasravedhin is said to be a name for three things, sorrel, musk (kastūrikā), and asafetida (hingu). The last is a gum from the Ferula alliacea. It may be that the drug sambul or sumbul, the musk-root of commerce (a product of Ferula Sumbul, see Ferula and sumbul in Century Dic'y), which is a fair substitute for musk, is here intended instead of the genuine animal secretion, and that it was used to make a colored "ink." This is the less unlikely since the radically identical hingu and hingula are names, one for the plant and the other for the pigment ! - If not, then we must render, "lovely with the inkwords [or ink-color] and lovely with musk ": in this case it is not incredible that the Heroine added a dash of the drastic perfume to her missive to make sure that her royal lover's passion should not flag.

- <sup>5</sup> Or, 'reaches his hand (sc. karam) for it.'
- 6 'Because (jam) her husband (tabbhattā, under tad) was cheated [into] thinking . . . [by me], making (kr) a female hansa [which is naturally white] [to be] possessing a saffron-paste-ruddy body, therefore this misdeed of mine has turned out (pari-nam) as a teacher of misfortunes,' etc. Her misdeed, like bad karma, bears appropriate fruit (Manu xii. 62) in a separation like that of Ruddy Goose and mate (p. 262, n. 3).
- <sup>7</sup> I.e., 'in the same palace': so iv. 1<sup>b</sup>. The Queen is already jealous (cp. ii. 29<sup>10</sup>), and compels this separation (cp. ii. 9<sup>c</sup>).

[Reads it a second and a third time.] These words indeed are an elixir of life to my ears!

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. I too have made a stanza,—a second one, which describes the plight of my dear friend,—and written it down. Here it is.

KING. [Reads it.]

At endless length, like to her days and nights, her [love-lorn] sighs go [slowly] trooping by. With her bejewelled bracelets, fall her streams of tears. And in thy absence, O fair lover, the hope of life for that dejected maid hath grown as feeble as her slender form.

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. [And] here 3 is a stanza about her plight, composed by my elder sister, Sulakshaṇā, who is serving her as lady in waiting: listen to this, O King!

Her sighs escape like pearls from off their string,<sup>4</sup> and make the sandal to wither.<sup>5</sup> Hotly her body burns [with love's fever]. The beauty of the laugh on her face is naught save a memory.<sup>6</sup> Moreover, the pale tint of her limbs is as faint <sup>7</sup> as the moon's slender sickle by day. Ever her floods of tears for thee,<sup>8</sup> O fair lover, are like to rivers.

KING. [Sighing.] What is there to say? in poetry she's your "elder sister," sure enough.

JESTER. This Vichakshaṇā is Goddess of Poetry for the earth, and her "elder sister" is Goddess of Poetry for the three worlds. So I'll set up no rivalry with them. [5] But [as I'm] before my old man, I'll describe, with such words as befit me, the longings of love.

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. Recite. We're listening.

JESTER. Moonlight 9 is excessively hot, like to poison is sandal-water,

- 1' With the days and nights, long [are her] sigh-columns.' Her sighs are like an army, passing in long drawn out "columns" (danda, used in the sense of danda-vyūha). Cp. danda at iv. 11.
- <sup>2</sup> The bracelets slip from her arms because she is so emaciated with love's fever. This is a frequent motif: see Çakuntalā, st. 66 (Williams) or 67 (Pischel), and Meghadūta, 2.— Kāvya-prakāça, x. 112, p. 735, Bombay, cites this stanza to illustrate sahokti.
- <sup>8</sup> The function of jeva is slightly to emphasize the gesture which distinguishes this deictically used ettha from that of ii. 8<sup>3</sup>.
- $^4$  'Are possessing a pearl-string-like escape.'

- <sup>5</sup> They are so hot that they (are sandal-uccoda-causing, i.e.) shrivel up even the cool sandal. Is this right? if so, the juxtaposition of the pearls is incongruous. Root cut is said to mean 'become small.'
- 6 'Has memory as its refuge,' has need to be remembered (cp. Sprüche, 2253d), since it can no more be seen. This seems to me to be a distinct reminiscence of Kālidāsa's beautiful phrase samsmaranīya-çobhā, Çak., near beginning of act iv.
  - 7 Properly, 'tender, soft.'
- $^{8}$  'For the sake of thee,' tuha kae = tava krte.
- 9 Moonlight, sandal, pearls, night winds, lotus-root, and water are all refrigerants or a pearl-necklace is like caustic potash on a wound, the night winds burn my body, a fibrous lotus-root bristles like arrows, and ablaze is my slim body, albeit wet with water, — because I've seen the choicest maid, with lotus-face, and eyes so fair.

KING. I say, man, you too need rubbing down with a drop of sandal-water yourself.<sup>2</sup>

Accordingly, tell me some circumstance about her. What next did the Queen do with her after taking her 3 to the women's apartments? [3] JESTER. Vichakshaṇā, you tell what was done.

VICHAKSHANĀ. They made her toilet, sire, and decorated her with her sectarial mark and her ornaments, and entertained her. [5]

KING. How so?

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. Her firm limbs were anointed <sup>4</sup> with paste of saffronessence until they were yellow.<sup>5</sup>

KING. That was burnishing a golden doll till it was beautifully bright.<sup>6</sup>

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. Her companions put on her feet a pair 7 of emerald anklets.

KING. That was surrounding a pair of shamefaced lotuses with swarms of bees.<sup>8</sup> VICHAKSHAŅĀ. She was arrayed in a couple of silken garments as blue as the tail-feathers of a king-parrot.

KING. That was tipping out the stems of the plantain with leaves that are gently tossed in the breeze.<sup>9</sup> are esteemed as such (see Sprüche, 3260; Rāja-nighaṇṭu, p. 167; and cp. Rtu-samhāra i. 2, 4 and iv. 2): even they bring no coolness to one burning with love's fever. Similar ideas, Sprüche, 2246, 1081.— The stanza is full of internal rimes.

- 1 'Is an arrow-series.'
- <sup>2</sup> To cool your apparent fervor of love.
- <sup>8</sup> As mentioned at i. 34<sup>88</sup>.
- <sup>4</sup> For the meaning, BR. vi. 761, compare udvartana see Amarakoça ii. 6. 121.
- <sup>5</sup> Until her natural flesh-tint became still more beautifully yellow.
- <sup>6</sup> 'Accordingly (tā) the beauty of a golden doll was polished bright.' Similarly the tā of the next ten stanzas.

- $^{7}$  'Her feet were caused to receive a pair' etc.
- <sup>8</sup> Root bhram = 'roam, range' (trans., as in roam the woods—see BR. bhram 2, for examples), and so 'stray around, surround'; causative, 'cause to surround.'—Active construction, "They caused bees to surround the pair of lotuses": passive, "The pair was caused to be surrounded with bees."—Cp. the note on ii. 19<sup>b</sup>; cp. also ali-mālā, and my note on āvalī at iii. 26<sup>d</sup>.
- 9 'Then the shoot of the plantain [became] possessing slightly wind-tossed leaf-tips.' Her thighs are likened to the stems of a plantain and her wavy silks to its leaves. Scholion. Rāja-nighaņtu, xi. 107, p. 149, gives ūru-

KING. That was making a peacock dance on the cliffs of Golden Mountain.<sup>1</sup>

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. Upon her two fore-arms,—as it were, the stalks of her lotus-like hands,<sup>2</sup>—were put rows of bracelets.

KING. That was — tell me<sup>3</sup> — was it not making them as lovely as an inverted quiver of Cupid!

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. A choice necklace of monster-pearls 4 was placed on her neck.

King. That was giving to the moon of her face an ample retinue of stars, ranged in ranks about it.<sup>5</sup>

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. And a pair of ear-rings, studded with gems, was put in her ears.

KING. That was transforming her face into a chariot of Cupid and furnishing it with two wheels to drive it to and fro.<sup>6</sup>

VICHAKSHANĀ. With native collyrium they adorned her eyes.7

KING. That was putting 8 a bee on the fresh blue-lotus 9 that serves as stambhā, 'thigh-pillared' or 'thigh-stemmed,' as one of 16 names for plantain. Kālidāsa has the same comparison at Meghadūta 93; and so has Amaru, as cited by BR. under kadala. Parab, Subh., p. 449, çl. 396, has lambhitāḥ kadalī-stambhās tad-ūrubhyām parābhavam. Cp. rambhoru; also iv. 7° below.

- <sup>1</sup> Mount Meru, to whose rocky steeps her buttocks firm are likened here. Cp. ii. 34 n.
  - 2 'On her handlotus-forearmstalk-pair.'
- 3 'Then, tell me, does it [the "pair"] not look like [or appear beautiful as or glitter as] a reversed Cupid's quiver?'—The forearm and the quiver have the same general shape. See Griffiths, i. p. 15 a, b, and pl. 73, 83. The synonyms for quiver stand at Amarakoça ii. 8. 88; but I cannot cite any special description of Cupid's quiver. The nose is compared to an inverted quiver, Parab's Subh., p. 435, cl. 121.
- 4 'Six-māṣika-pearls.' If a māṣaka or 'bean' was  $4\frac{1}{2}$  grains, these would weigh over a pennyweight apiece and be worth each some  $27 \times 27$  or 729 times as much as a one-grain pearl! Cp. iii.  $3^{18}$  below.
  - <sup>5</sup> 'Then a multitude of stars in ranks

[or rows—as the pearls strung on their several parallel strings are in rows] attends upon her face-moon.'

- <sup>6</sup> 'Then her face-Cupid-car with two wheels was driven to and fro.' Ear-rings like veritable wheels: Griffiths, figs. 12, 50, 52, 54, 55!
- 7 'Her eyes were made possessing nativecollyrium-produced decoration.'
- 8 'Then a fresh-bluelotus-bee was given to the Five-arrowed God.'—See root r: uppiu = uppio (Jacobi, § 2, line 5, Lautlehre) = arpito.—Konow thinks I am wrong, and that silīmuha here means only 'arrow.' Cp. ii. 38.

<sup>9</sup> The blue-lotus (kuvalaya, utpala) is one of the five flowers that serve as Cupid's arrows. A fair maid's eyes are often likened (as here) to such a lotus (see Sprüche, 3702, 3818, 3838); or, the face is a lotus, and the restless eyes are bees (2658, 2660).

The fondness of the bees for the lotus is a common-place of the poets. The dark collyrium is here likened to the dark bees that swarm about the blossoms. Cp. Raghuvança, iii. 8.

one of the arrows of the Five-arrowed God. [Or,] That was giving a fresh lotus-arrow to the Five-arrowed God.<sup>2</sup> 19

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. The wreath of curly locks that fringes the crescent of her forehead <sup>3</sup> was arranged.

King. That was the spotted antelope appearing on the moon's disk.<sup>4</sup>

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. Upon the temples of the bright-eyed maid they heaped the flowers her tressy burden hid.<sup>5</sup>

King. That was letting you see a contest between Rāhu and the Moon, on the part of the fawn-eyed girl.<sup>6</sup>

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. Thus the Queen decorated the girl with decorations to her heart's content.

KING. That was an adorning of the ground of a pleasure grove <sup>7</sup> by the beauty of spring.<sup>8</sup>

JESTER. This, O King, is very truth that I tell you:

The maid whose look is straight and bright, — collyrium befits her [eyes]. Whose breasts are like to ample jars, — a pearl necklace becomes her. But if upon the round expanse of her buttocks you place a gorgeous girdle, we may call this adorning and dis-adorning her.<sup>9</sup>

- <sup>1</sup> As in Sprüche, 5691<sup>b</sup>, çilīmukha (see BR.) means not only 'bee,' but also 'arrow.'
- <sup>2</sup> That is, the renewal (implied in nava) of the decoration of her eyes was like renewing that one of Cupid's five arrows which consists of a blue lotus.
- 3 'Clinging to the edge of her foreheadmooncrescent.' — See rac.
- 4 'Accordingly, the black-spotted antelope is (vrt) on the moon's disk in the middle.'—
  Majjhāu (= -āo, i.e. madhyāt), abl. sing., used adverbially.— The face is the moon's disk and the locks are the dark spots upon it.

The dark spot or fleck on the moon greatly enhances its beauty (Çakuntalā, sarasijam, i. 20, Williams), and is often likened to the black or dappled antelope (Kāvyādarça, ii. 35). Hence the moon is called mṛgānka and hariṇalakṣaṇa or -lānchana. Rājaçekhara calls it hariṇa-lakṣman twice, and calls it eṇanka and mianka and hariṇanka in this play. Cp. Hāla, no. 14. — For the names of the "fleck," see Hemachandra, 106. — For the name "rabbit-marked," see i. 25 and note.

5 Of the maid with eyes bright as

- camphor-gum the tress-burden was possessing a hidden flower-heap.'—Let the reader notice, with reference to the sequel (iv. 18<sup>19</sup>, 20<sup>16</sup>), that ghaṇa-sāra is one of eleven synonyms for camphor (karpūra, which see, Rājanighaṇṭu, p. 101).
- 6 'Then a boxing-match between Rāhu and Moon was shown [you] by the gazelle-eyed one.'—Rāhu, the demon who causes eclipses by "swallowing" or "hiding" the moon, is here likened to the heavy tresses; and the blossoms, to the moon.

Tresses and flowers have a strife to see which shall cover or hide the other. Her lovely tresses win—they eclipse the flowers.

- <sup>7</sup> 'Sport-grove-ground.'—Or else, 'sport-grove-earth,' that is an earth or world of places or opportunities for amorous delights. In either case the Heroine is meant. Cp. ii. 3<sup>b</sup>.
  - <sup>8</sup> This means the Queen. Scholion.
- <sup>9</sup> 'And, on the other hand, on whose wheel-like buttock-expanse is a certain girdle-pride, of her we call this adornment and dis-adornment'— if I may venture so to

Her soft bathing garment, wet and clinging closely <sup>2</sup> to her waist with its triple folds, and to her shoulders, <sup>3</sup> [but] loose upon her magnificent buttocks <sup>4</sup> and jar-like breasts, <sup>5</sup> betrays the tenderness <sup>6</sup> of her liana-like form and its beauty.

JESTER. [As if vexed.] Ho you! I described her as adorned with all her ornaments: while you, — you won't remember her except 7 as robbed of all her decorations by the water.8 — Well, hasn't my lord ever heard this?9

Adornments make the comeliness even of a person who is naturally handsome to unfold itself [to still greater beauty]. A certain splendor results from adorning even genuine precious stones with diamonds. 25

KING. 'Tis only the hearts of fools, mind you, 10 that fair women 11 rob by the bewitching accessories of attire; 12 while clever men have to be won 13 by natural beauty. Grape-juice isn't sweetened with sugar. 14 26

VICHAKSHANĀ. As the King has intimated: 15

To swelling breasts, or eyes that to the budding ears do reach, <sup>16</sup> [or] face that serves as moon unto the earth, and body that is a stream of the rivers of loveliness, <sup>17</sup> what excellence is imparted by <sup>18</sup> the art of dress and adornment? [Very little, perhaps. But] why <sup>19</sup> [then] is even that all agreeable? Listen while I tell you the reason<sup>1</sup> for it now: You cannot spoil natural beauty!

The reason is put in the form of a rhetorical question. I take tattha and jam as correlatives.—Rūḍhi outmatches artifice (yoga) and has a power [for better, for worse] quite independent of the tricks of the toilet—says the Scholiast.

KING. Moreover, my honest Kapiñjala, here's a point for you:2

What is the use of artificial ways of adornment? Those are the tricks of actresses. The person itself that takes the heart of a man,<sup>3</sup> that is lovely. Therefore, matrons, at that supremely happy moment in which they are united with their husbands, and in which the joy of love that brings a whole host of excellences is attained, do not wish at all for splendid attire.

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. Sire, this I may tell you: not only by the Queen's orders did I follow Karpūra-mañjarī,<sup>4</sup> but also because I had come to terms of close friendship<sup>5</sup> with her. Therefore, as I'm ready at her need, I will, again [as before] make myself her attendant.

For the purpose of testing the heat of her [love-fever], their hand was laid in the fold between her breasts<sup>6</sup> by her friends, and was often astonished out of it<sup>7</sup> by the burning and quickly<sup>8</sup> withdrawn.—[But] what of that even? Give ear to these words, pleasing, yet alarming: <sup>9</sup> Warding off the moonbeams with her hand for a shade, she passes the night. <sup>10</sup>

The rest of the business Kapiñjala will tell you. And [as he says], so it should be done.

[At this, she steps about the stage, and then exit.] [3]

KING. But, man, what is that "rest of the business"?

JESTER. Today is the fourth day of the Swing festival.<sup>11</sup> [5] And ere it close, Karpūra-mañjarī is going to be put in the swing in front of the [image of] Pārvatī. So my lord is going to wait at the Emerald

- <sup>1</sup> 'Listen to the reason, being heard (suvvantam, passive of gru, Jacobi, § 69.3), i.e. the reason, while I tell it.'

- <sup>7</sup> See BR., dāmara, 'a very astounding thing.' The hand is spoken of — boldly as astounded.
- <sup>8</sup> Helāi (helāe), 'without more ado.'— See root krs.
- <sup>9</sup> The reason for the alarm makes the Scholiast much trouble.—Her behavior seems to indicate that she is love-sick (cp. ii. 5<sup>b</sup>, canda-māraṇijja), if not also a bit moonstruck.
- <sup>10</sup> Cp. Vallabhadeva, no. 1411, and Konow's Essay, p. 190.
  - <sup>11</sup> Cp. ii. 6<sup>23</sup> and note.

Seat and watch Karpūra-manjarī while she swings. This is "that rest of the business." [8]

KING. [Reflecting.] Well, you have scored one on the old lady, keen as she is. [10]

JESTER. Made the old cat drink sour gruel and think it was milk<sup>2</sup>—I guess.

KING. Who else but you is ready at my need? What else but the moon is clever enough to raise the tides of the ocean? [13]

[At that, they step about and make as if they were entering the Plantain Arbor.] [14]

JESTER. Here is the raised seat begemmed with crystal. And so, man, sit down on it. [16]

[The King does so.]

Jester. [Raising his hand.] O King, behold the moon at the full! [19]

King. [Looking.] Oh! it's the face of my beloved in the swing that he's pointing out to me when he says "moon at the full." [Regards her attentively.] [22]

Paling the face of every beauty here,<sup>4</sup> making the sky's hollow vault to ripple<sup>5</sup> with the liquid moonlight of her loveliness, and breaking the haughty pride in the hearts of maids that regard her,<sup>6</sup> appeareth the moonlike orb of her face as she moves straight to and fro in her sport on the swing. [Or,] appeareth the moon-like orb of her face, artless and mobile, as she plays at swing.<sup>7</sup>

¹ Literally "Emerald-Heap." This is, I think, a jocosely exaggerating nickname for a seat, liberally ornamented, as we may presume, with gems. The scholion to this passage calls it "a kind of raised seat"; and to such a seat allusion is made at ii. 29<sup>15</sup>. The name appears to include not only the seat, but also an arbor (called "Plantain Arbor" at ii. 29<sup>14</sup>) or other shelter in which it was placed, since a door is mentioned at ii. 42<sup>21</sup>. To judge from iv. 18³, the "Seat" and the "Arbor" would seem to be in two different localities. I cannot reconcile the apparent contradiction. Of course, we might render the name by "Emerald Arbor."

- <sup>3</sup> For the ablatives, see p. 203.
- 4 'Making colorless (vicchāa) the faces of the (circle, i.e.) entire collection of beauties in the town.'

- 6 'That regard (īkṣ) her,' with envy of her beauty, namely.
- <sup>7</sup> 'Appears her face-moon, straightly (sarala) moving-to-and-fro (tarala) in her swing-sport.' Or, 'Appears her face, artless (straight, not crooked) and mobile.'

The two adjectives are used of a look, in like collocation, in Bhartrhari's smitam kimeit. Tarala, used of winds, waves, lightning, of eyes, glances, faces a-tremble

And again:

With [waving] chowries<sup>1</sup> raised aloft, with showy rows of banners dazzling-white, [and] with bells,—assuming a likeness to the resplendent (?) Asura-maidens' cars,<sup>2</sup> [now] mounting the rampart, in its course, ascending, descending, coming, and going, the swing captivates<sup>3</sup> the heart of men with its sinkings and risings.<sup>4</sup>

And again:

With the tinkling jewelled anklets,<sup>5</sup>
With the flashing jingling necklace,
With the show of girdles garrulous
From their ringing, ringing bells,<sup>6</sup>

With the sound of lovely jingles
From the rows of rolling bangles,— [Pray] whose heart is not bewildered
While the moon-faced maiden swings?<sup>7</sup> 32

JESTER. Oh! you're an aphorist; 8 but I'll be your commentator and describe her with all prolixity.

Pained neath the pressure of her towering breasts, Her rosy feet cry out to Love for help,— Their voice her tinkling anklets set with gems.<sup>9</sup> with angry tears, means 'mobile, bright, flashing,' etc.

Note the uncommonly effective employment of alliteration and of well-balanced paronomasia in the swing-line, which is an admirable bit of word-painting. The metre of Kālidāsa's lyrical master-piece suits it to perfection. The following verse may give some idea of the rhythm and the internal rime:

Moves to | and fro, | swinging high, | swinging low, | now a rise, | then a sink | ing.

- <sup>1</sup> A kind of fan-like brush, made of the yak's tail, often with bejewelled handle, and serving as one of the insignia of royalty. Pictured in Griffiths, pl. 5, 7; Banners, i. p. 15 b.
- <sup>2</sup> The order of words in my version is ambiguous, as it is in the original: the uncertain "resplendent" may qualify "Asuramaidens" (asura-taruni) or "cars."—The Asuras are the foes of the gods.
- <sup>3</sup> 'Makes(kuṇai) captivation (-haraṇam) by (-vasā) its coursing (raa).' Raa, raya, from rī, 'run, currere,' as used of the motion of liquids, is not an unfit word.
- <sup>4</sup> What was said of the foregoing stanza applies in large measure to this.
  - <sup>5</sup> The four adjectives that fill up lines abc are bahuvrihis to hindolanam: 'a swinging which possesses (i.e. in which become manifest) tinkling-jewelled-anklets, jingling-necklace-flash, ringing-bell-mouthy-girdledisplay, [and] rolling-bangle-row-produced-sweet-jingle-sound.'

- <sup>6</sup> Little bells were attached to the girdles. See Bhartrhari's etāç calad, or Sprüche, 1456; with which—in general, also—our stanza may be compared.
- $^7$  'To the heart of whom is her swinging not bewildering (heart-bewildering) ?'

Note again the beautiful appropriateness of the rhythm: it is that of the prthvī, with its  $\kappa \hat{\omega} \lambda a$  of jingling tribrachs and bell-like, chiming cretics. The stanza is a tour de force in the use of imitative words (onomatopæia). Compare Edgar A. Poe's "The Bells." Rājaçekhara repeats the first half of the stanza at Bālabh. ii. 3.

For pictorial illustration of a swingscene, see Griffiths, figure 66.

- <sup>8</sup> You express yourself with all the exaggerated concision of a writer of aphorisms (cp. Max Müller's Sanskrit Literature, p. 71f.).
- 9 'The pair of her foot-lotuses, pressed by the superposed-breast-mountain-slopes, calls as it were to Love with the sound of the tinkling jewelled anklets.'

Her rounded buttocks, as she plays at swing, For joy are laughing, laughing once again,— Their voice the chiming of her jewelled zone. <sup>1</sup>	34
The stream of pearls adown her neck that flows, Bright undulating with the moving swing, Bears far and wide King Cupid's name and fame, As if they hung like creepers o'er its flood. <sup>2</sup>	35
Her garments tossed, as gainst the wind she swings, Reveal some glimpses of her lovely form, Which calls to Love to nestle by her side. 4	36
Her earrings, striking gainst her saffroned cheeks, Mark lines that do a playful tally keep, To count each oscillation of the swing. <sup>5</sup>	37
Sudden she opes her eager bloomy eyes, Big as her palm, and Cupid's quiver fills With piercing shafts of lotus-petals blue.	38
And on the downward glide, behind her head Stands out her braid, like stock of Cupid's whip, And says "Stay not the coursing of the swing!" 7	39
Thus all this maiden's winsome-graceful ways, Displayed in swinging, form a picture bright, Which Love, sly limner, paints in every heart! 8	40

- 1 'Her chariot-wheel-rounded buttocks, swing-play-voiceful (i.e. -jingling), seem to laugh for joy, with the sound of the bells of her bejewelled girdle.' Bejewelled girdle: Griffiths, pl. 55. Bells on bracelets, fig. 6; on trappings, pl. 6.
- 2 'Her pearl-necklace, with the semblance of a bright (tara) river (saria), flowing with the sport of the swinging, seems as if scattering afar the fame-creepers of the Flowerweaponed King.' Her necklace of magnificent (cp. ii. 17a) pearls is compared to a stream which snatches and carries far and wide Cupid's fame. This again is likened in boldest metaphor-to a vine swaying loosely over the stream; the impetuosity of the stream tears the vine from its support and carries it far away; or it spreads his fame far and wide. (In short, her ornate beauty is a "card" for Cupid.) Bhartrhari, in his abhimata (Sprüche, 494), speaks of "cutting the creeper of shame."
  - 3 Produced by her motion through the air.
  - 4 'Revealed slightly by her garments

- tossed by the envisaged wind, her limbs, calling upon Love, make him, as it were, to settle down beside them.'
- <sup>5</sup> 'Her earring-pair, by its contact-plays upon her thick-besaffroned cheeks, seems (to give marks for the oscillations, i.e.) to make a mark for each oscillation of the swing, with an eagerness of counting.'
- 6 'Her eyes, like her palm [in size—cp. i. 163, 30°], on a sudden blossomed-open with curiosity, seem to deliver bluelotus-petal-arrows to the Five-arrowed God.'
- 7 'The braid-stock behind her, acting the part of Cupid's whip, (goes downward, as it were, saying, i.e.) seems to say [threateningly] as she sinks or is on the downward oscillation, "There shall in no wise be an interruption of the course of the swing."
- I take padai of the first half of the forward oscillation, when the braid stands out. Of course it may refer to the first half of the backward oscillation; and if so, we must render, 'the braid falls on her back.'
  - 8 'Thus this maiden's winsome-grace-

KING. [Dejectedly.] Ah, Karpūra-mañjarī has dismounted! Empty is the swing; empty my heart; empty the eyes of one who fain would gaze.

JESTER. She's come it on you like a streak o' lightning, eh? in a wink — seen — vanished? [3]

KING. Speak thou not thus. [Say rather,] like the mirage 2—seen and evanished.<sup>3</sup> [He makes as if recalling something.] [6]

As red as madder are her close-sealed lips; like fresh-wrought gold bright is her slender form; her glance outdoes in dazzling lustrousness or in whiteness, the new moon's slender crescent; her jet-black hair is like collyrium. Thus o'er the maid, with tremulous fawn-like eyes, there plays this beauty of colors; 5 and by them, 6 arrogant Cupid in enthralling youthful hearts, seems to have fulfilled his purpose.

JESTER. Here's the Emerald Seat. Sit down on it, old man, and wait for her. [2] Besides, the evening is at hand. [They do so.] [4]

KING. The night, though very chill, [to me] seems like the very scorching hour of a summer's midday. [5]

JESTER. Well then, with [the remembrance of her] Loveliness as his [sole] companion, let the King just wait a jiffy while I fetch the various refrigerants to cool him off. [At that, he makes as if he were leaving the stage, and looks before him.] Why, but here's Vichakshaṇā coming this way [and already] quite near by. [8] radiant swing-display-ways, — in whose heart (citta) does not the skilful picture-maker (citta-ara, Skt. citra-kara), Love, as it were, depict [them]?

Vilāsa is 'grace,' but also 'merry play' with a connotation of coquetry. Ujjala, 'blazing out, bright.'—To pavañca I assign the meaning āḍambara given by Halāyudha.—Caria has a vague meaning for which even the word "acts" is too precise: "ways" is perhaps its best English counterpart.—The Prākrit makes a pun on citta, which is lost in Sanskrit.—Properly, niuna is 'skilful, clever.' I take it as '(playfully) skilful,' thereby straining it a little, I fear, in the direction of vidagdha, 'sly.'

- 1 'Then it was lightning-streaked (impersonal passive of denominative) by her.'
- <sup>2</sup> 'Like the town of Hariçchandra.'—He was expelled from heaven for pride; but, repenting during his fall, he was forgiven and was stayed in mid-air, where he and his are now sometimes seen in their aerial city.

- <sup>8</sup> Note the striking contrast between the King's love-lorn solemnity and the Jester's facetiousness. The difference between nattha and pa-nattha seems to be intentional and I have reproduced it in my version.
- <sup>4</sup> Dhavalima- is applicable both to the radiance of a glance and to the whiteness of the moon.
  - <sup>5</sup> For rehā, see note to iv. 20a.
- 6 'By which (jīa, scilicet rehāe) Cupid appears as possessing an accomplished object.'
- <sup>7</sup> I suppose that the King had risen from it in his excitement. He does not seem to have left the Arbor since ii. 29<sup>14</sup>.
- <sup>8</sup> We have therefore now to imagine the stage as representing simultaneously two different scenes: 1. the "Emerald Seat" with

KING. At hand is

The time appointed, as her friends have told it. [9]

[As if recollecting; and betraying by his manner the eagerness of love.] [10]

Thy hands and feet are shoots of tenderest growth; Thine eyes, meseems, are water-lilies blue; Thy face, albeit like the [cool-rayed] moon; — Although thy form is like a champak fresh; — Alas, oh marvel! how they me inflame!<sup>2</sup>

JESTER. [Looking attentively.] Ah, here's Vichakshaṇā, with various refrigerants. [2]

[Then enters Vichakshanā carrying the refrigerants.8]

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. [Stepping about.] Oh, how my 'dear girl suffers from the burning fever of separation! [5]

JESTER. [Approaching her.] Lady, what have you here?

VICHAKSHANĀ. Various refrigerants.

JESTER. Whom are they for?

Vichakshanā. My dear girl. [10]

JESTER. Well then, give me half.

VICHAKSHANĀ. What for?

JESTER. For the King.

VICHAKSHANĀ. But, [I mean,] for what reason?

JESTER. And what's the reason in Karpūra-manjari's case? [15]

VICHAKSHANĀ. Don't you know she's seen the King?

JESTER. And you—don't you know the King's seen Karpūramañjari?

the King seated, "alone"; and 2. the meetingplace (near by, to be sure) of the Jester and Vichakshaṇā. Cp. the Analysis, p. 219.

We are to suppose that the King does not hear the Jester's remarks (ii.  $41^8$  and ii.  $42^2$ ) nor the ensuing colloquy (ii.  $42^5$  as far as ii.  $43^2$ ); and that, in strictness, the Jester does not hear the King's remark, ii.  $41^9$ .

And yet, curiously enough, the Jester does turn this last phrase to account by quoting it, mockingly, at ii. 50<sup>2</sup>, as if he had legitimately overheard it. See ii. 50<sup>2</sup> and note.

ing note. The appointment refers, I think, to a nocturnal meeting immediately following the close of act ii. See additional note upon p. 289.

<sup>2</sup> "Inflame," with literal and with metaphorical meaning, as in Prākrit. One expects green shoots, water-lilies, etc., to be cooling, not inflammatory. Similarly iii. 20.

Bāṇa gives a most interesting list of the means used to allay the heat of the body at Harsha-charita, p. 177-178.

VICHAKSHANĀ. Where is the King, then?

JESTER. At the Emerald Seat, as you 1 directed. [20]

VICHAKSHAŅĀ. Well then, stay with the King near the door of the Emerald Seat, in order that, since each has seen the other, the last farewell may now be said to all refrigerants! <sup>2</sup>

JESTER. [Puts his arms around her. Then, throwing away the refrigerants, he says to them:] Be off to the land of Never-come-back! [And addressing her:] Why then must we stay in the neighborhood of the door? [26]

VICHAKSHANĀ. On account of the Queen's directions.

JESTER. Why such directions?

VICHAKSHANĀ. The Queen has planted there 4 three young trees.

JESTER. What trees? What trees? [30]

VICHAKSHANĀ. An amaranth, a tilaka, and an açoka.

JESTER. Pray what is she going to do with them?

VICHAKSHANĀ. The Queen said to Karpūra-mañjarī:

When a maiden who is in love, embraces an amaranth, or looks at a tilaka, or touches with the tip of her foot an açoka, then they burst into bloom. So do thou satisfy for them their longings.<sup>5</sup>

And now Karpūra-mañjarī is going to do it.

JESTER. Well then, I'll fetch the old man from the Emerald Seat, station him where he'll be hidden by the tamāla shrub, and let him witness the affair with his own eyes.<sup>6</sup> [2] [He makes as if doing so.<sup>7</sup> To the King.] Ho there, up and behold the moon's crescent [beaming] over the ocean of your heart.<sup>8</sup> [5]

[The King rises and looks.]

[Then enters exquisitely adorned, Karpūra-mañjarī.] [7]

KARPŪRA-MAÑJARĪ. But where's Vichakshaṇā?

- <sup>1</sup> At ii. 29<sup>1</sup> ff. There he seems to have remained since ii. 29<sup>1</sup>. Cp. ii. 41<sup>2</sup> and note.
- <sup>2</sup> Cp. ii. 5<sup>d</sup>. The ardor of the two lovers is now such that nothing will any longer avail to cool them.
- 3 'Of what nature (significance) are the directions?'
- <sup>4</sup> In the palace garden, near the door of the Plantain Arbor (with its "Emerald Seat") and the scene of the swinging.
- <sup>5</sup> Do thou satisfy for them their longings to bring forth flowers, by doing these several acts: cp. i. 20<sup>27</sup> and see my notes thereto
- 6 'I will make this thing to be before his eyes.'
  - <sup>7</sup> See note to ii. 41<sup>7</sup>.
- <sup>8</sup> Compare Raghuvança, xii. 36, where Sītā's laugh is likened to the moon rising from the ocean.

Vichakshanā. [Coming up to her from behind.] My dear, now do as the Queen directed. [10]

KING. But man! what's this?

JESTER. Just you keep behind the tamala bush and you'll find out.

VICHAKSHANĀ. Here's the amaranth. [13]

[Karpūra-mañjarī puts her arms around it.]

King. This lovely maiden, whose swelling breasts are ample as a water-jar, by her impetuous, close embrace, hath made the young amaranth tree to blossom with such a profusion of flowers that a [veritable] procession of swarms of bees has [already] arrived here!

JESTER. Ah see, ah see, the mighty jugglery! For

The amaranth tree, young though it is, just now close enfolded in her tender arms, all on a sudden shoots forth a multitude of flowers, — Love's arrows, as it were.

KING. Yes, not one whit less is the power 2 of longing.

VICHAKSHANĀ. Here is the tilaka tree.

[Karpūra-mañjarī stands a good while looking at it with sidelong glances.]

King. Piercing, restless, and just touched with jet-black collyrium,<sup>3</sup> and having ever as their ready helper the Five-arrowed God<sup>4</sup> who bears the [flowery] shafts,—such are her eyes; and when<sup>5</sup> with them upon the tilak tree the fawn-eyed girl a sudden onset<sup>6</sup> makes, then it stands as if thrilled with delight,<sup>7</sup> its crown all bristling<sup>8</sup> with masses of clustering blossoms.

VICHAKSHANĀ. And here's the acoka tree.

[Karpūra-mañjarī makes as if she were giving it a dainty kick.]

- <sup>1</sup> Cp. ii. 24<sup>b</sup>.
- <sup>2</sup> 'Precisely such is the power.' The tree's longing (and the girl's?) must have been so powerful as to produce this magic effect.
- <sup>8</sup> 'Anointed with a small portion of collyrium.'
- 4 'Ever making or putting (kr) Cupid at her side.'
- <sup>5</sup> Literally 'When (jam) the attack of the fawn-eyed girl's eyes, piercing, etc., fell on (was precipitated on) the tilaka-tree, then (tam) it stood thrilled as it were, etc.'
- 6 Hemachandra, 800, gives dhāṭī as one of four synonyms (see above, p. 201) for

- "sudden attack," "surprise,"—for that which, "if it happen by night, is called sauptika," so familiar as main incident and as title of book x. of the Mahā-bhārata.
- <sup>7</sup> Properly, 'horripilated, bristling.' Hindu poets constantly make allusion to horripilation or bristling of the hair as caused by emotions of pleasure. This again (see note to i. 32) is a curious fact of racial psychology; we think of it chiefly as a sign of terror. Cp. iii. 24 and note and iv. 21.
- <sup>8</sup> Dantura, 'toothed, tusked,' and so 'thickly beset,' or 'bristling,' and in evident rapport with romañcio.

KING.

No sooner 1 had the maid, whose face is fair
As is the radiance of the dapple moon,2
In graceful play, to the açoka given,
With [rosy] foot 3 whose [jewelled] anklets rang,
A [dainty] touch, — than 1 in an instant burst
Forth into blossom, e'en from every spray
In all its crown, a gorgeous show of flowers —
A sight for all the denizens of heaven!

JESTER. Say, man, do you know the reason why the Queen 4 didn't satisfy the longings of the trees herself?

KING. I suppose of course you know? [2]

JESTER. I'll tell, if the King won't get wrathy.

KING. What occasion is there for anger? unseal your tongue and speak. [5]

JESTER. Although in this world comeliness of person does maintain the attractiveness of doting matrons,<sup>5</sup> nevertheless, methinks, it is in youth's tenderest prime that Lakshmī (or Loveliness personified) manifests herself as presiding deity.

KING. I catch your drift; 6 and, what's more, have something to say [on that point] myself.

In spite of the fact that [very] young maidens, by reason of their eager curiosity, are [a bit] fickle-minded, nevertheless, it is with them,—their breasts just budding into view,—that the mystery of the Dolphin-bannered [God of Love] doth abide.

JESTER. [Yes,] even trees blossom out with the mystery of the beauty of form; but they know not the mystery of love.<sup>10</sup>

- <sup>1</sup> The two ca's hint at the fact that the touching with the foot and the bursting into bloom occurred simultaneously.—Scholiast. Cp. iii. 3<sup>d</sup>.
- <sup>2</sup> 'Deer-spotted [moon], [moon] flecked like the black antelope,'—see ii. 20 note.
  - 8 Anhinā.
- 4 'Do you know what is the reason (in this, ettha, Whitney, § 303 a, i.e.) for this, that (jam) the Queen, etc.?'
- <sup>5</sup> It seems to me licit to assign this connotation to kāminī, which I take as antithetical to both tārunnae and bālāu.
- 6 'Understood is your intention—I see what you mean,' namely, that the Queen is

- a trifle passée as compared with this tender bud, Karpūra-mañjarī. The form of the Jester's statement was purposely vague.
- 7 'Maidens are fickle just so (emea)! but (puṇo) the mystery abides with etc.' For emea, see Weber's Hāla, no. 865.
- <sup>8</sup> Like Karpūra-mañjarī, as contrasted with the oldish Queen.
- <sup>9</sup> Which is still unrestrained by the experiences and the sophistications of life.
- <sup>10</sup> A staid matron like the Queen may continue to bear lovely children, as the trees bear lovely blossoms; but she no longer knows the keenness of youthful passion.

[Behind the stage.]

ONE OF THE BARDS. A pleasant evening to the King!

Behold, [the sun,] the jewel of the day,¹
His face red-yellow, like an orange ripe,² Hangs on the crest of yonder sunset-hill.
Now Ruddy Goose and mate, alas, must part:³
Their only friend hath left them — he whose rays
Are myriad strings dyed gorgeous, madder-red.⁴
He slackens now his fierce impetuous heat,
And with it quick the pride of jealous maids;⁵
Lulls half to sleep the eyes of all the world⁶
And drowsy lilies that bestud the pool.⁵

KING. At hand is now the even-tide—
JESTER.

"The time appointed, as her friends have told it." 8 [2]

KARPŪRA-MAÑJARĪ. Vichakshaṇā dear, I'll go now; it's evening. VICHAKSHAṇĀ. So let us do.

[Thereupon, they step about, and exeunt omnes.]

[End of the Second Act.]

<sup>2</sup> One is tempted to think that a *norange: an orange:: a naddre: an adder:: a numpire: an umpire; but it appears that the n of nāranj, ṇārin̄ga, was lost before the word was adopted into English speech. See C. P. G. Scott, Transactions of the American Philological Association, xxiii. 278, 272.

- <sup>8</sup> The love and constancy of the Ruddy Goose and her mate are proverbial. They are doomed to pass the night in most pitiful separation. Hence the sun is their "sole friend." See Wilson's Meghadūta, note to 82.
- 4 'Possessing a multitude of rays which have the color (or gorgeousness) of madderdyed-strings.'
- <sup>5</sup> 'And at the same time (saha a) relaxing or making to relent (muñcanto) speedily (sarahasam) his impetuousness (tivva-bhāvam), together with the hearts of jealousproud-maids.'—Night and moonlight (cp. ii.

- 5<sup>b</sup>) put an end to their pouting (as do the breezes of spring, i. 15<sup>b</sup>), so that they yield to the gentle influences of love. The same idea at iii. 30<sup>a</sup>.
- <sup>6</sup> 'With the eyes of people at the same time (saha) making the lotus-group to be possessing half-sleep.' There is here a slight laxity of expression.
- <sup>7</sup> The day-blooming lotuses (kamala's) that close their eyes (nimilanti) at evening, as opposed to the night-blooming lotuses (kumuda's), that open their eyes (unmişanti) at evening—see Kāvyādarça, i. 94, and Rtusamhāra, iii. 23.

The latter are white and close their eyes at dawn, as appears from what is perhaps the loveliest of all the stanzas of Kālidāsa, to wit, antarhite etc., near the beginning of act iv. of Çak.—Cp. his Urvaçī, iii. 16.—See Böhtlingk's Hemachandra, 1160–1165, p. 217.—With this stanza, cp. i. 35 and iv. 1836.

<sup>8</sup> The Jester mockingly takes his words from the King's own mouth (see ii. 41°). The part that he quotes forms an indravajrā line, but in the dialect of prose. See p. 257, note 8, and pp. 289.

ACT III.

[Then enters the King with the Jester.]

KING. [With his thoughts on her.]

Put far away from me the champak¹ bud!
What use have I for juicy turmeric?²
Of what esteem is gold though ne'er so pure?
Before her loveliness, whose radiance sweet,
Is likest that of newly risen moon,
What need of bakul blooms, profuse and fresh?³

And again:

Bright as a necklace strung with emerald gems, Or wreath of jasmines where the bees have sucked, Her lovely glance, as quick she bent her neck,<sup>4</sup> Shot sidelong by,<sup>5</sup> and pierced my very heart.<sup>6</sup>

2

JESTER. Say, man, what do you stand there for, reeling off your twaddle like an uxorious husband?

- <sup>1</sup> See i. 14<sup>2</sup>, 16<sup>2</sup>, and notes.
- <sup>2</sup> The rhizome of Curcuma longa, a plant of the ginger family. It is used as a condiment; as a dye-stuff, it yields lovely shades of yellow; and when chewed, affects the saliva as would saffron. See Pliny, N. H. xxi. 70, cited by BR.: Indica herba, zingiberis effigie, conmanducata croci vim reddit. —In oll-ollāi (instr. s. fem. with hal-), the stem is doubled.
- <sup>8</sup> 'What occasion is there (with, i.e.) for heaps of blooms of bakul, though fresh?' The bakul, Mimusops Elengi, Roxburgh, p. 318, has flowers that are white and fragrant.
- 4 'With an impetuously bended neck'—as avyayībhāva.
- 5 'Glance, directed towards (see vig + ni 7) in BR.) the region of her ear.' The coquettish glance is usually sidelong and comes as it were from the outer corner of the eye (apānga). In darting such a glance, the girl may bend her neck or turn her head and so look by the place where, with her head in its natural position, her ear would be. —

One might suspect here a reminiscence of Bhartrhari, who, in his san-mārge, q.v., speaks of "glance arrows" (dṛṣṭi-bāṇās) which are cravana-patha-gatās.

6 The "Sidelong glance," kaṭākṣa, etc.—Daṇḍin, in his Poetics, ii. 327, gives, as example of viçeṣokti, a stanza which says: The women have no battle-cars, elephants, cavalry, nor foot-soldiers; and yet with their sidelong glance (apāṇga-dṛṣṭi) they conquer the three worlds.—Parab, Subh., p. 434-5, has some 19 stanzas on the kaṭākṣa.—See Bhartṛhari's stanza, just cited, = Sprüche 6824. Further, Hāla's Saptaçataka, 505.—See also ii. 5 and my note on ii. 6a.

<sup>7</sup> Bhajjājida, literally, 'wife-conquered,' seems to me in this connection necessarily to suggest the doting, foolish, overfond husband, rather than the hen-pecked one. For the contempt in which the latter was held, see Sprüche, 4066.

KING. My thoughts, man, are on a vision that I've seen in sleep.

JESTER. Well then, old man, tell it to me.

King. Methinks a maid with a lily-face stood in my vision within reach of my hand, and was about to strike me quickly with a blue lotus as I lay on my pleasure-couch. And then with eager haste did I catch hold upon the loose end 1 of her garment. No sooner 2 did she, leaving it in my hand, depart, than 2 my sleep, as it seemed, suddenly vanished too. 3

JESTER. [Aside, to himself.] Should think it might have! [Aloud.] Say, man, I too saw a vision last night.<sup>3</sup> [4]

KING. [Expectantly.] Tell me then, what was the vision?

JESTER. Methinks, last night in my vision I fell asleep by the Ganges. [7]

KING. And then, and then?

JESTER. Well, then the Ganges put her graceful little foot on the head of Çiva and washed me clean away with her water. [9]

KING. And then, and then?

JESTER. Then by a cloud that was raining at the autumn season to [its or my] heart's content 4 I was absorbed. [11]

KING. A marvel, a marvel! — And then, and then?

JESTER. And then, when the lordly sun had entered the asterism of Chitrā,<sup>5</sup> the great cloud went near(?)<sup>6</sup> the place where the Tāmraparņī<sup>7</sup>

- 1 'With eagerness by me hastily she was held or caught on the loose end.'
  - <sup>2</sup> Ca...a: cp. ii. 47 note. Root muc.
- <sup>3</sup> Adya. Modern English distinguishes by "last night" and "to-night" what in Sanskrit is contextually distinguished: thus, adya asmābhir atra uṣitvā, prātaḥ, etc., 'to-night we'll stop here, and early to-morrow morning,' etc.
- <sup>4</sup> Is jadhiccham used ἀπὸ κοινοῦ (kākā-kṣivat, as the Hindus say)? I see no great pertinence in it in either case.
- <sup>5</sup> At the time of Rājaçekhara, the autumnal equinoctial colure would be less than ten degrees west of Spica, and the sun would be "in Chitrā" in "autumn" (iii. 3<sup>11</sup>).

For the transformation of rain-drops into pearls, see Sprüche, 344, 1544, 4029. According to the stanza samtaptāyasi (Ind. Ant. xiv. 323; Sprüche, 6781; and elsewhere), the transformation takes place under Svātī: see

- p. 214, above. So in Manwaring's Marāthī proverbs, no. 1291: "If the Svāti rain fall, there will be a crop of rubies and pearls, but you will not get cotton enough for a lampwick." Now Chitrā and Svātī have as their principal stars respectively Spica and Arcturus; and at the time of Rājaçekhara, the approximate longitude of these two stars was respectively 188° 32' and 188° 55', that is practically the same. The author's mention of Chitra, therefore, is not fortuitous, but significant. - My thanks are due to my honored colleague, Dr. Asaph Hall, for his kind help in matters of this nature. Cp. Whitney, Oriental and Linguistic Studies, ii. 377, and his chart of the zodiac.
- <sup>6</sup> Is antena used "prepositionally" (like antarena), here compounded with its "governed" word-stem, and in the sense of ante, 'near'?
  - <sup>7</sup> Cp. i. 17<sup>d</sup> note.

empties into the ocean. I, too, as I think, am within the cloud and go with it. [15]

KING. And then, and then?

JESTER. Then the cloud started to rain there with great big drops of water; and the sea-oysters, such as they call pearl-oysters, emerged from the waters <sup>1</sup> and absorbed me; and I was within them and became a monster pearl.<sup>2</sup> [18]

KING. And then, and then?

JESTER. Then in four-and-sixty pearl-oysters [successively] I was a drop of cloud-water, surpassing the opal<sup>3</sup> in hue, [and then,] in due course, I attained once more to the condition of being a pearl, one of perfect roundness,<sup>4</sup> clear, and flashing.

So I, whom you see before you,<sup>5</sup> fancy that my own self in the shape of a pearl,<sup>6</sup> was inside of those pearl-oysters. [1]

KING. And then, and then?

JESTER. Then those pearl-oysters were taken from the ocean as soon as they were mature, and they were opened. And I was among the four-and-sixty pearls. And a certain merchant bought me, giving [for me] a hundred thousand gold pieces. [5]

KING. Oh, what a wonderful vision! And then, and then?

JESTER. Then the merchant sent for the jeweller and had him bore a hole through me.<sup>7</sup> And that gave me a little something of a pain. [9]

KING. And then, and then?

JESTER. And with the pearls of that lot,<sup>8</sup> weighing ten māshakas apiece, a single row was strung in necklace style,<sup>9</sup> and it was priced at ten million gold pieces.

5

KING. And then, and then?

- <sup>1</sup> For the form, see p. 203.
- <sup>2</sup> This time it is a pearl of ten māṣakas -see my note to ii. 17<sup>a</sup>. See note 5, p. 264.
- <sup>8</sup> The tabasheer is a variety of opal found in the joints of the bamboo.
- 4 'I arrived at new-pearl-ness, very round, without any flat surfaces' etc., i.e. 'I arrived anew at' etc.
- <sup>5</sup> Thus I would express the force of so aham.
- 6 'With or by (my) pearl-ness.' For attāṇaam, see Pischel on H. 3. 56.

- 7 'Then by him, fetching the jeweller, the pearl was caused to be drilled.'
- 8 'With that pearl-lot (of 64 pearls), weighing 10 māṣakas apiece.' The expression is loose; the adjective is logically an adjunct of muttāhala and not of maṇḍala.
- <sup>9</sup> That is, so as to form a necklace rather than a bracelet or what not: cp. hāra-laṭṭhī, iii. 18<sup>b</sup>; and maṇi-yaṣṭi, Urvaçī, iii. 10, and Kale's note.

JESTER. Then [the merchant, whose name was] Sāgaradatta, put it in his casket and went to the capital of Vajrāyudha, the king of Pañchāla, to Kanauj; and there he sold it for the ten million. [3]

KING. And then, and then?

JESTER. And then,

As he, [the King of Kanauj,] considered her towering ample breasts, and also the beauty of the single string of pearls, he put it on the neck of his beloved. — Men of sense are pleased to see like meet with like.

Moreover:

At midnight's hour, which was full of moonlight resplendent throughout the sky, in love's embrace the royal pair had closed their eyes for terror at the shaft¹ of the Flower-arrowed God. Then by the plumpness² of her exceedingly towering, full, and jar-like breasts was I sore beset—
[and so] awoke!

King. [With a faint smile, and then reflecting.]

You knew that this vision of mine, in which I met with her whom I love as my life ( $p\bar{a}na-sam\bar{a}$ -), was unreal; and so you thought you could dismiss it from my mind by your counter-vision.<sup>3</sup>

JESTER. A decayed chieftain, a brahman exhausted with hunger, a naughty young wench, and a forsaken man,—these beguile themselves with the sweetmeats of wishes.<sup>4</sup> And I ask you, man, whose power, now, is that?<sup>5</sup>

KING. Love's. [3]

JESTER. Although your love for the Queen has grown by [long] attachment, why, pray, do you, sir, fairly spreading your eyes over all of Karpūra-mañjarī's person, gaze at her as if you were absorbing her? are the Queen's good points inferior to hers? [5]

KING. Speak not thus!

Suppose the knot of love is tied betwixt some man and some maid; for all that, beauty, I think, is not the [sole] cause of it.<sup>6</sup> But if, even in that

- 1 Strictly, 'blows,' 'shots.'
- <sup>2</sup> Konow refers me to Kirātārjunīya, iv. 8, where Mallināth glosses niveça by 'largeness, plumpness' [of the breasts].
- 3 'This vision, not real,—it, possessing a meeting with the life-equal-girl, thou knowest. And by [thy] counter-vision, the warding-off or dismissal of it [of my vision] is thy intention.'

  4 Konow compares Viddh. i. 221.
- <sup>5</sup> That is, Of whose power are these wishes and longings a manifestation? For the first two of the four cases, pemmam seems to be too specific.
- 6 'Just under those circumstances (emea, cp. ii. 49a), beauty, methinks, is not the [sole] cause of it' (tattha): but rather, says the Scholiast, the working out of the inborn nature.

case, the [girl's] loveliness is much praised, that is done to put a seal on the mouths of unkind-spoken people.

JESTER. But what, sir, is that which they call "Love, love"?

King. The knot of attachment which exists between a mutually united pair, and which has grown strong under the dispensation of the Dolphin-bannered God,—that the connoisseurs call "Love." [2]

JESTER. And of what sort is it?

King. [Love is that] in which the feeling within the heart attains <sup>4</sup> to sincerity and is devoid of the blemishes of suspicious behavior and so forth; <sup>5</sup> in which there is an on-flowing stream of longing of each for the other; whose very essence is imparted by Cupid and enhanced by amorous play.

JESTER. And how might it be recognized?

KING. They whose hearts are set, each toward the other, in utter commotion by the unforced flow of very restless glances; who speed ever, more and more, the arrows that Cupid gives them; — of such persons 6 the heart-wound becomes very easily manifest.

JESTER. That which has the outward beauty of a deeply seated disturbance of heart, — that the world calls "Love with Cupid's adornment." Hard as it may be to recognize, a person does manifest it among people. That we know to be Cupid's very mighty jugglery.

Moreover, if the love that is in the heart [of the one] awakens [in the other a corresponding] attachment, what occasion is there in that case for the trickery of the bravery of ornaments?

KING. That's true, man!

What need of girdles, bracelets, diadems, anklets? what need of beauty? and what need of the shows of ornament? [There is no need

- <sup>1</sup> Where beauty is not the sole cause of the attachment.
- <sup>2</sup> As an ostensible reason for the love. Since mah is not necessarily = kānks (see Pischel, H. 4. 192), I suppose I am justified in connecting mahijjai here with Vedic mah ('is extolled, is magnified'), and not with manth, Marāthī mathaṇem ('is revolved, considered, taken into account').
- <sup>8</sup> 'Then (tam, correlative to jam, 'if') a seal is put on' etc.

- <sup>5</sup> 'Of suspicion-behavior and so forth,' viappa-ghadaṇā-āi-.
  - 6 Of what persons, possessing hearts completely agitated by glances which are nature-flowing and very restless, the sendings-forth of the Cupid-given-arrows increase, — of them' etc.

In this version I follow NR, reading (instead of luntia, 'robbed') lunthia, 'agitated.' I take peranta-lunthia as 'boundary-agitated,' 'agitated to their very limits.'—See OB. under tar + vi 5).

- <sup>7</sup> For mana and citta, occurring together at iii. 12<sup>a, 1</sup> and iii. 11, there seems to be but one available English word, namely 'heart.'
- <sup>8</sup> Neither gewgaws nor beauty signify much where the passion is mutual. Canga and its

of all that.] And so, in this world, it is something else which puts the flowers of happiness in the grasp of fair maidens.

And again:

What need of the performance of song and dance? and what need of strong drink? what need of incense of aloes? and what need of saffron?

— On all the earth in daintiness naught else can equal man's tender passion.<sup>3</sup>

And again:

The consort of an emperor and the wife of a common man, — in the matter of love there is not even a grain of distinction between them to be found, methinks, [even] if a certain difference in outward splendor is effected by rubies and decorations and garments and saffron.

And again:

Why speak of restless eyes — of face like to the moon — of towering breasts? There is some other reason here, I think, why women from our hearts 4 do ne'er withdraw.

JESTER. That is so. But explain to me another thing: [Even in that] which during childhood is unattractive to the heart of a man,—even in that, with [the attainment of] adolescence, a certain beauty develops itself. [2]

King. Surely there must be here in the world two Creators who are skilful in building the body and in giving it the bloom of youth: the one fashions the first girlish form; while the second, by giving it the finishing touches,<sup>5</sup> brings out its loveliness.<sup>6</sup>

And therefore:

Moreover:

A form full of loveliness, eyes that reach almost to the ear and have large pupils, a bosom with ample breasts, a waist that has the triple folds and may yet be grasped by the fist, wheel-like buttocks,<sup>3</sup>—pray what need of aught else in the time of tender youth? Just these five things put into maidens' hands Cupid's great banner of victory.<sup>4</sup>

[Behind the stage (is heard the Heroine, saying:)]

Friend Kurangika, I am really languishing by reason of these refrigerants, as a lotus [languishes by reason of the arrival of the torrid season that calls for the use of refrigerants].

A shoot of lotus-root [to me] seems like poison; a string of pearls seems like a poisonous serpent; the breeze from the palm-leaf fan seems to spread flames; b likewise the water from the jets of the shower-bath as it comes out on my hand is hot; and not the sandal, that sovereign remedy [against heat], allays the burning of my frame. 20

JESTER. Did the old man hear? are his ears loaded with a jowl-full of the nectar? [2] will he then even today take no notice of his lotus root 8 that is languishing by reason of the intense heat? of his saffron dolly that he has to play with, 9 that is being sprinkled with most intolerably scalding water? 10 of his single string of monster pearls that [now]

It is mentioned at Meghadūta, 102, as a pigment (dhātu-rāga); and at Kumāra-sambhava, i. 7, as a sort of liquid mineral color (dhātu-rasa), such as might be used to inscribe love-letters on birch bark. Cp. my note on ii. 7, above. From the same poem, i. 4, we may infer that it was used as a cosmetic, since it is there mentioned as a decoration for the nymphs of heaven. So here.

[Then enters the Heroine, with Kurangikā.]

HEROINE. [Timidly—to herself.] Why! is this the full moon suddenly descended from the court of heaven? [15] or has the Blue-necked God [Çiva], well-pleased, allowed Cupid to resume his own bodily form? or is some one who is a rascally foe of my heart and a kindly friend of my eyes about to show me special favor? [Aloud.] This I regard as a piece of jugglery. [19]

JESTER. [Taking the King's hand.] Lady, the jugglery has become real. [21]

[The Heroine stands abashed.]

Kurangikā. Dear Karpūra-mañjarī, rise to meet your lord and salute him. [23]

The Heroine is on the point of rising.

Thy waist is ready to break neath the burden of thy bosom: break it not, O moon-faced maiden, by rising!—Cupid have mercy on my eyes after the sight of such ampleness [of breasts]!<sup>7</sup>

JESTER. Her ladyship, Karpūra-mañjarī, by staying in the inner room, has become moist with perspiration. So now I will fan her with the border of my robe. [So doing.] Oh dear! I've put out the light with the wind from my garment. [4] [Reflecting. — To himself.] Never mind. We'll just go to the pleasure-garden. [Aloud.] Say, this is dancing around in the dark! so let's go out now to the pleasure-grounds, just by the subterranean exit. [9]

[All make as if they were going out.] [10]

KING. [Holding Karpūra-mañjarī by the hand.]

Keeping thy hand, which is like a tender spray, within mine, assume thou, [I pray,] a little unsteadiness<sup>2</sup> as thou movest along; in order that the kala-hansas, as they go about in their play, may at last find a rival who outmatches them in comeliness.<sup>3</sup>

The prickles of the young gourd-melon,<sup>4</sup> the filaments of the cadamba flower, which today are witnesses of the touch of thy hand,—these will remain as if fastening themselves to my limbs.<sup>5</sup>

24

[Behind the stage.]

A BARD. May the rising moon bring pleasure to the King.

- <sup>1</sup> To whose eyes? to his own? if so, the stanza is flat indeed!
- <sup>2</sup> Cañcura seems to be an intensive adjective from car: cp. cañcūryate, and Whitney, § 1148 k (jañjapa, tartura, etc.). The purpose of the "unsteadiness" or "waddling" is, as I suppose, to enhance the similitude of the girl to the much belauded teal.
- <sup>8</sup> 'In order that at last the kala-hansa-group, in its play-going, may be uncomely.'

The kala-hansa or kādamba seems to be a kind of white teal with gray wings (Hemachandra, 1327). Its cry is often spoken of as most agreeable (kala—see the examples in BR., s.v. (1a), and Hemachandra, 1409). It was tamed and held in high esteem. Bāṇa often mentions it—see Index to Ridding's Kādambarī, p. 224.

4 Benincasa cerifera, like the pumpkin, but with a waxy coat. I do not find this in Roxburgh; but at p. 700, under Cucurbita Pepo, he says of the fruit, that it is, "when young, exceedingly hairy." Note that of our common Cucurbitaceæ (cucumber, pumpkin), the fruits are often sharp-prickly and the vines hairy.

<sup>5</sup> That is, the delight which I feel at the touch of thy hand causes such horripilation that the asperities of these plants seem to have transferred themselves to my limbs for good and all. Cp. note to ii. 46<sup>4</sup>.

This conceit of Rājaçekhara recurs at iv. 21 and iv. 22; see the notes. One is tempted to query whether it is not a reminiscence of Bāṇa: op. Harsha-charita, text p. 267-8, utkaṇṭakita- kapola-phalakena, lagna-karṇotpala-kesara-pakṣma-çakalena, iva mukha-çaçinā.

While the round ball of the earth is as black by reason of the darkness as if it were in a subterranean chamber, the face of the eastern quarter of the sky has become as yellow as a young birch with the moonlight; and the moon, sending forth rays that are like in beauty to the tufts of the stamens of the wing-seed, has risen, digit by digit, till at last the full disk is above the horizon.<sup>2</sup>

And again:

Without saffron, without sandal,<sup>3</sup> is the embellishment of the ten bride-like regions of heaven;<sup>4</sup> without bracelets, without ear-rings, is the decoration of the round earth;<sup>5</sup> without withering, without fainting, are the flowers <sup>6</sup> (or without "Parcher," without "Bewilderer," is the weapon of the God with the Dolphin-ensign);<sup>7</sup> a garland of moon-beams is massed in the sky.<sup>8</sup>

- <sup>1</sup> Muuunda, Pterospermum suberifolium, Roxburgh, p. 512, a middling sized tree. The flowers are white and fragrant and very long, and show a prominent column of united stamens.—I use "tufts" advisedly for sihā.
- 2 'The moon has gone to full-diskedness in the one-digit-manner.'
- <sup>3</sup> That is, All the heaven is made lovely by the new-risen moon, "the cool-rayed one": it makes the sky yellow, and that without the help of saffron; it makes the air seem cool, and that without the help of sandal. This stanza recurs at Viddh. iii. 12.
- 4 The "ten points" or "regions" are the four cardinal points, the four intermediate points (NE. etc.), the zenith and nadir.

These are likened to brides. So Bhartrhari, in his bhūḥ paryaūkaḥ, describing the ascetic, says: "His couch is the ground; the blue sky above is his roof; and the moonbeams he hath for his candle; north, east, south, and west are the maidens (dik-kanyās) that fan him with breezes for chowries." Rājaçekhara has the same bold metaphor two stanzas later, iii. 28ª, in disā-sundarī (if not also in a variant of iii. 29, "dig-vadhū"); and it recurs as dik-sundarī in Jayadeva, Gīt. vii. 1. Bāṇa speaks of the "regions," āçās, as maidens, Kādambarī, p. 390<sup>6-7</sup>.

- <sup>5</sup> I take bhuvaṇa-maṇḍalī as 'round of the earth,'= mahī-maṇḍala or bhū-maṇḍala. Viddh. reads dharani- for bhuvana-.
  - <sup>6</sup> That is, In the cool moon-light, the flowers are recovering from the intense heat, which "parched" or "withered" them (açoşayat) and which "bewildered" them or "made them faint" (? amohayat), in the day-time.

Since the stanza is a description of the loveliness of the night at moon-rise (iii.  $26^1$ ), of its tones of color and its reviving flowers, it must be that the prior interpretation of line c is also the one primarily intended by the poet.

<sup>7</sup> From Cupid's equipment are missing "Parcher" and "Bewilderer": these are the names of two of Love's arrows—see note to i. 32<sup>d</sup>. Both of these names are included among those of the celestial weapons, partly allegorical, partly fanciful, which are rehearsed in the Rāmāyaṇa, cantos 27 and 56 of book i.; see especially i. 27. 14, 15 and i. 56. 7, 8, ed. Bombay.—Love's arrows, his bow, and his missiles are all formed of flowers: puṣpāṇy asya iṣu-cāpa astrāṇi, Hemachandra, 228.

I cannot help feeling that this alternative interpretation, although secondary in the intention of the poet, is the key to the whole wretched difficulty of this line. The chance for a pun has seduced the author into using mohana of flowers—a use which I cannot deem unforced.—BR., under cus, cite na mlāyanti na cusyanti kusumāni.

<sup>8</sup> The area of denotation of āvalī and ālī is not coincident with that of any English word. See Hemachandra, 1423, for their JESTER. Well, Kāñchana-chaṇḍa has described the loveliness of moonrise; so now it's Māṇikya-chaṇḍa's <sup>1</sup> turn.

THE SECOND BARD. The pleasure-pavilions show circling wreaths of incense rising from burning aloes; they are ablaze with the lighted lamps; <sup>2</sup> they have pendent festoons of lustrous (or rarest) pearls; <sup>3</sup> they swarm with doves let loose; in them are prepared charming pleasure-couches, and hundreds of confidantes are talking; while on the divans appear the pouting women-folk.<sup>4</sup>

And again:

The moon-beams seem as if overspreading profusely with camphor the faces of those beauties, the quarters of the sky; <sup>5</sup> they scatter soft moonlight which rejoices the heart of the people of the earth as does sandal; they make the withered bulb of Love to sprout anew with amorous doings; and are like to jets sent forth from an autumn cloud. 28 synonyms, among which is mālā. 'Row,' 'string,' and 'streak' are among the more serviceable English versions of the words.

We find āvalī used of a 'string' of pearls; and of a 'wreath' of tresses; but also of a 'set' of teeth; and, humorously, even of a parrot's two wings, a 'set' of wings, iv. 210. Like its synonym rāji, it is used with dhūma of a 'column' of smoke. Mālā is used of bees, ii. 13; of curly locks, ii. 20. — See Konow's version, p. 289.

- <sup>1</sup> This designation is nearly tantamount to Ratna-chanda, the name he bore at i. 16<sup>2</sup>.
  - <sup>2</sup> 'Ablaze with given or brought-in lamps.'
- 4 'The pavilions are possessing-divansurface-appearing-jealous-women-folk.' Ucchanga, 'on the surface,' = 'on,' with attenuated meaning, as in the case of tala = 'on' and antara = 'in,'
- <sup>5</sup> 'The moon-beams (eṇañka-pāā) are giving as it were an overspreading (see chur in OB.) with floods of camphor to the faces of the sky-quarter beauties.' They flood things in every quarter with a pale whiteness like that of camphor-gum. — For dik-sundarī, see iii. 26a note.

- $^6$  Similarly the sun is so called, e.g. Daça-kumāra-charita, p.  $1^{16}$ .
- <sup>7</sup> For the moon as Çiva's crest-jewel cp. i. 3.—The pronunciation of jewel so as to rime with pool is an inelegance which accords, as I think, with the tone of this brief doggerel as intended by the author.
- <sup>8</sup> Kanda, 'bulb': more specifically, an 'onion.' One can hardly doubt that the Jester takes this particular word out of the Bard's mouth in order to make fun of it.— In the Bard's stanza, it would have been a little less prosaic if we had said "withered root;" but it is hardly competent to the translator to let the Jester's allusion disappear. Cp. p. 262, note 8.

Concerning the rimes in this and the following two stanzas, see p. 205. — For metre of 29 and 30, see p. 207.

Kurangika. Proud of his ally, the moon, crushing the pride of jealous maids, with bow of fresh champak blossoms, Cupid is victor, the impetuous.

[To Karpūra-mañjarī.] My dear girl, I'm going to recite to the King the verses which you made describing the moon.

[Karpūra-mañjarī stands abashed. Kurañgikā recites.]

31

King. Oh, what an intuition for quite new conceits has Karpūramañjarī! what charm in expression and pleasing words! and what flow of sentiment! [Addressing the Heroine.]

It must be that the moon, for fear lest thy [lovely] face be mistaken for its own, hath made—behold!—upon its own round disk a black collyrium-mark, disguised as its "Fleck." 8

And again:

If, O tender-limbed one, thy face were colored palish with chalk-water, [and if,] besides, black collyrium for the cheeks were put [on it],—then it might mock at the moon (or, then its likeness to the moon would be complete).<sup>9</sup>

- <sup>1</sup> 'Possessing pride made by the moon.' The moon is Love's most potent coadjutor—cp. notes to ii. 5<sup>b</sup> and 50<sup>b</sup>, and especially Kādambarī, p. 559<sup>12</sup>.
- <sup>2</sup> Gharaţţa, is a 'hand-mill' such as the women turn in India—see the excellent katākṣa-verse, re re gharaṭṭa, Parab's Subh. p. 434, 105, for which Peterson, Subhāshitāvalī, 2388, has re re yantraka. Vāsudeva says "crusher," peṣaṇa-kartā.
- <sup>8</sup> Vilāsa is 'outside looks' and also 'beauty'—such as old ivory might have. Cp. Kādambarī, p. 390<sup>11</sup>.

  - <sup>5</sup> And thus phurantao.
  - 6 'The fleck-antelope': cp. ii. 20, note.

- (tti) [with a touch of jealousy], "Not in any wise shall there be an error (vibbhama) [occasioned] by the face of thee," a black-collyrium-distinguisher (visesaa) has been made on its own disk-round, with "Fleck" disguise.'—For the well-known antelope-spot, see note to ii. 20. —The position of tuha after the tti is exceptional.
- <sup>9</sup> Either, 1. 'Then it would attain to derision of the moon (genitive), would get a chance to mock at the moon' on account of its superior beauty.
- Or else, 2. 'Then the moon (nominative) would get a mocking, i.e. would incur contempt.'
- Or else, 3. 'Then it would attain to the assumption-of-the-appearance of the moon.'

[To the moon.]

O antelope-flecked one, why wanderest thou, nonchalant, so near this beauty? Lo, here is the face that gave to thee the exceeding paleness of its own white cheeks!

[Tremendous racket behind the stage. All listen.] 1

KING. But what is this uproar?

KARPŪRA-MANJARĪ. [With some trepidation.] My dear girl, [go and] find out what it is and come back to me. [5]

[Kurangikā goes out and reënters.]

JESTER. Just this: the Queen has found out that my old man has tricked her,<sup>2</sup> and is coming.

KURANGIKA. Well, it's hunchbacks and dwarfs<sup>3</sup> and pigmies and eunuchs and harem-keepers that are making the hullabaloo. [8]

KARPŪRA-MAÑJARĪ. Then let the King excuse me, so that I, before the Queen finds out about my meeting with the King, may go to my prison by the same subterranean passage by which I came.<sup>4</sup>

[Thereupon, exeunt omnes.]

[End of the Third Act.]

(see BR. s.v., and Sprüche, 5896), support the first of the above versions.

The second version amounts to about the same thing as the first, and is supported by Sprüche, 453.

Mahābala Krishņa Çāstrin, in his edition of the Çrīgāra-çataka, 22 (Nirṇaya Sāgara Press, 1888), supports B's conjecture, but renders it by candra-anukāri etc., as in the third version.

Since the chalk-water and collyrium only enhance the beauty of her face and its likeness to the moon, I am unable to translate the vi of jai vi.

<sup>1</sup> We may suppose that the actors now fall into two groups, King and Jester forming the one, Heroine and her friend forming the other. And the two sets of questions and answers that follow in dovetail, may be thought of as proceeding each independently of the other.

- <sup>2</sup> 'Has resorted to trickery' (vañcanā-gadam), or 'has come here by a trick' (vañ-canā-āgadam).

ACT IV.

[Then enters the King with the Jester.]

KING. Alas!

The summer's heat is very intense; 1 mighty is love; how pray is it to be borne? Yet that fawn-eyed girl, albeit in one and the same palace with me, is hard to reach, as fate will have it.

For,

In this world, by those who are under the power of the Flower-arrowed God alone, both these things indeed are very hard to bear, I think: the time that is made terrible by the intense sun, and separation from the beloved.<sup>2</sup>

JESTER. Some folks are harassed by Cupid, and others are wilted by the heat; but a chap of my stripe is neither harassed by Love nor wilted by the heat.

[Behind the stage.]

A PARROT. Well, won't Polly tear out your top-knot by the roots?

— I guess! [4]

KING. [Laughing.] Man, was the pet parrot talking which was roaming about at will in the pleasure-grove?

JESTER. [Angrily.] Ah, you wretch of a bird, you'll be cat's meat next. [8]

[(The parrot again) behind the stage.]

There's nothing I mightn't expect from the like of you<sup>3</sup>—if I hadn't a set of wings.<sup>4</sup> [10]

KING. Why! I believe it has flown. [To the Jester.]

The nights are of short duration and the days are waxing long. The round of the moon is broken<sup>5</sup> and the disk of the sun is unbroken. Why

- <sup>1</sup> Gāḍhaar', i.e. gāḍhatara-.
- <sup>2</sup> The thought of this stanza is repeated in different language at Bālar. v. 25 and Viddh. iv. 6, as Dr. Konow points out, p. 206.
- 3 'Every thing (any thing) is deemed possible from the like of you.' This speech,
- iv. 2<sup>10</sup>, seems also to come from the parrot. For the ablative, see p. 203. Cp. Viddh. p. 29<sup>4</sup>.
- 4 "Set" seems to be used humorously; see note to iii. 26d.

should not an arrangement whose course appears to be this in summer days, — why should it not be broken, then, with knife-points?<sup>1</sup> 3

Moreover,<sup>2</sup> it is altogether to be praised<sup>3</sup> if it bring me a meeting with my beloved. For

At midday, the touch of sandal-paste; until twilight, moistened garments; play in the bathing-pools until night-fall; in the evening, cool liquor; and love's embraces in the last watch of a summer night; these are the five arrows with which Cupid wins his victories: his other shafts are split and broken.

JESTER. Say not so. [Say rather:]

A blessing on the summer days, O friend, because<sup>7</sup> in them the betel<sup>8</sup> leaves are overlaid with a palish shimmer, and the areca nuts are delightful with the flavor of mango oil, and the sandal is made [still more] fragrant with powdered camphor.

KING. [Yes.] And this too is pleasant about them:9

Flutes, tremulous as if with koïl notes, 10 are cooling to the ears; liquor with cold water is cooling to the mouth; a sweetheart with massive breasts anointed with sandal is cooling to the touch: for any one there is for the summer days an antidote that is altogether cooling.

And again:

In the graceful chaplet, an acacia bloom; near the breast, a necklace of sinduvāra berries; on the limbs, a moistened garment; attached to the waist, a girdle with blue lotuses; on the two plantain-like arms, bracelets of fresh lotus-roots: such is the apparel for [enamored] women that is

- <sup>1</sup> Khaṇḍa is 'broken, incomplete,' or (of the moon) 'not full, gibbous'; a-khaṇḍa is 'not incomplete,' 'complete' in form and perhaps also in power; khaṇḍijjai is 'be broken, cut, brought to nought.' The "knifepoints" are congruous enough with "cut," hardly so with "arrangement."
- <sup>2</sup> An adversative conjunction (kim tu?) would be much more appropriate here.
- $^8$  'It [the arrangement] is altogether (niunam) to be praised ' (clagh).
  - 4 Oll-ansuam: cp. iv. 7b.
- <sup>5</sup> Cp. my note to i. 22 and the lampoon there quoted.

likely to be prescribed 1 by the physician [who treats the disease] of love,2 as the sole charm against the pains of the heat when the spring season melts into summer.3

JESTER. And I say, moreover:

Of women who at midday are anointed with smooth, thick, sandalpaste, who bathe the whole evening through, who in the nights are besprinkled with drops of water that come from the punkahs, — of such, the Five-arrowed God accomplishes the enslavement.

KING. [Making as if he were recollecting something.]

For those, to whom is given complete union with a person lovely with the combination of garb and fresh beauty,<sup>5</sup>—for them the nights and days, though long, go by like a twinkling; and to whose sore-pained heart these [days]<sup>6</sup> bring not even to a small degree the delights of love, — for them the days give birth to [vain] wishes only and drag by as if they were each a month long.

[Addressing the Jester.] Is there any news about her?

JESTER. Yes, there is. Listen, old man! Here's a joke for you. [5] The subterranean passage that was made to Karpūra-mañjari's prison, was discovered by the Queen. Then, with a pile of huge stones, she closed up the entrance to the passage so that no one could slip through.<sup>7</sup> [7]

Five chowry-holders, girls with names ending in senā, Anañga-senā, Kāma-senā, Kalinga-senā, Vasanta-senā, and Vibhrama-senā, with noisily brandished swords and shields in their hands, were appointed to keep guard over her prison on the east side. [8]

Five ladies in waiting, with names ending in lekhā, Anañga-lekhā, Chandana-lekhā, Chitra-lekhā, Mṛgāñka-lekhā, and Vibhrama-lekhā, with bows in their hands and arrows on the string, were set [to keep guard] on the south side. [9]

- <sup>2</sup> Or, 'by the Cupid-physician,' 'by Dr. Cupid.' But perhaps this would be too jocose for the King in his present mood. "He's got it bad."
- <sup>8</sup> 'At the going of the season of Madhu,' i.e. of the season of spring or vasanta. This consisted of the months March-April and April-May, whose older names were Madhu and Mādhava (see p. 214, or Whitney, JAOS. vi. 414, and cp. note to ii. 6<sup>21</sup>). Vasanta is followed by grīsma, 'summer,' but the text

And over [all] those, five reciters of witty sayings, girls with names ending in vatī, Mandāravatī, Tarangavatī, Kallolavatī, Madirāvatī, and Kelivatī, were appointed as overseers, each with a bright golden staff in her hand. [12]

KING. Well, well! that's the entire personnel of the Queen's apartments!

JESTER. Here's the Queen's friend, Sārangikā, sent with some message from her. [14]

[Then enters Sārangikā.] [15]

SĀRAÑGIKĀ. Victory, victory to my lord! The Queen's message is that today the King must mount to the terrace of his pleasure-palace and inspect the preparations and accessories 4 for the great festival of the Deity of the Banyan.<sup>5</sup> [18]

KING. As the Queen directs!

[Exit the attendant.] [20]

[King and Jester step about, making as if they were ascending to the terrace. Then begins the charchari.6] [22]

JESTER. Behold, these maidens,<sup>7</sup> richly adorned with pearls,<sup>8</sup> at the close of the dance but scantily attired, are sprinkling each other with

With their shoulders and heads even,<sup>5</sup> with their arms and hands even, other maidens, each with clean-cut pose,<sup>6</sup> and ranged in two rows each facing the other, are rendering the challi-dance <sup>7</sup> and regulating its tempo by the beaten measure.<sup>8</sup>

Still others, quitting the jewelled cups, throw [direct] from the showering-machine the jets of water.<sup>9</sup> These—fair as Cupid's arrows, though consisting only of water <sup>10</sup>—fall on the person of friends [standing by].

What the "staff-dance" is I know not. Perhaps a dance in which the dancers were arranged in "columns" (cp. iv. 12, and danda as used at ii. 9a)?—I recently witnessed, as part of a light entertainment, a "cane-dance," in which a negro performer held a staff, and struck the floor rhythmically with it, in time with his feet.—Has it aught to do with the "staff-dancer" of the Çatapatha-brāhmana? see Eggeling, Sacred Books of the East. 44, 417.

- <sup>7</sup> SR., vii. 1215, enumerates ten rustic dances. The first is cāli: it is "not too fast nor too slow" (in the madhya-laya); and is characterized by the "simultaneity" (yāuga-padya) of the movement of the feet, thighs, waist, and arms. The same dance, performed quickly and with the dancers facing each other, is called cālivada.

holding triple 1 bows, and adorned with tail-feathers of peacocks, are parading about as savage mountaineers, 2 [and so] making sport for the people.

Yet others, bearing in their hands offerings of human flesh, and terrible with their groans and shrieks and cries, and wearing the masks of night-wandering ogresses, are enacting a cemetery-scene.

And one fawn-eyed girl, sounding the drum that makes you shudder,<sup>3</sup> and with the pleasant noise of a tambour, with her creeper-like arms alternately 4 swaying, has started to execute the performance of the challi. 16

Others are performing, as might a fay, a graceful dance in tempo,<sup>5</sup> with a jingling made by their bells, with the measure regulated by the tempo of vocal music,<sup>6</sup> and with the clear tinkle of anklets.

Still others, their garments a-flutter by reason of their eagerness, intently playing the flutes, and setting the people a-laughing by their dark dress, recede, bow, and laugh.

[Enters Sārangikā.]

SĀRANGIKĀ. [Looking before her.] Here is the King, who has come from the Emerald Seat<sup>7</sup> into the Plantain Arbor. — Well, I'll go to him and announce the Queen's message. [4] [Approaches.] Victory, victory to my lord! The Queen's message is: "This evening I will bring it about that you shall lead a new bride around<sup>8</sup> the nuptial fire." [7]

JESTER. But Lady! what means this shower of watermelons 9 from a clear sky?

King. Sārangikā, explain it all in full. [9] Sārangikā. You shall hear. On the fourteenth day, 10 just past, the Queen had Bhāiravānanda make an image of Gāurī bejewelled with rubies and set it up. [11] And he, the master Magician, was consulted by the Queen, after she had begun the observances for its consecration, with regard to the matter of a reward for [him, as] her preceptor. And he replied: "If you absolutely must give a reward, then I suggest the following." To which the Queen said, "As your Reverence directs." [16] And he continued and said: "There, in the Lāṭa country, is a King named Chaṇḍasena. He has a daughter named Ghanasāra-mañjarī. She has been pointed out by the astrologers as destined to become the consort of an Emperor. [20] So the King must marry her, in order not only that the preceptor may not fail of his reward, but also that your husband may become an Emperor." [22] Then the Queen laughed and said, "As your Reverence directs." And I was sent to make the announcement. And the reward to the preceptor has been given. [25]

JESTER. [Laughing.] Here's an instance of that old saw, "Snake on your head—and the doctor away" (or in some other country).<sup>4</sup> The wedding is [set for] today and here, while Ghanasāra-mañjarī is in the country of Lāṭa. [28]

KING. Have you never seen Bhāiravānanda show his magic power? <sup>5</sup> SĀRANGIKĀ. [Continuing her message.] The Queen has had a sanctuary to Chāmuṇḍā <sup>6</sup> built at the foot of the banyan that stands in the middle of the pleasure-garden. [30] And Bhāiravānanda is going to meet the Queen there. And in the hall of state which is there situated and has just been put in readiness for it, the wedding is to take place. [So saying, she steps about and exit.] [33]

KING. Man, I have a notion that this is all a blooming job of Bhāiravānanda. [34]

JESTER. That's a fact. Nobody but the moon — you'd better believe — can make the moonstone statue to ooze 7 or the [night-blooming] çephālikā to blossom profusely.8 [36]

[Enters the Magician.] [37]

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. Here is the Chāmuṇḍā idol serving to screen the [new] entrance which has been opened from the root of this banyan to the subterranean passage. [He stretches out his hand to it in worship,] [saying to Chāmuṇḍā, or rather, saying of her:]

A dissolution of the universe <sup>2</sup> is her pleasure-house; the blood of the demons is her fiery draught; victorious is Kālī<sup>3</sup> as she quaffs it, in presence of Kāla,<sup>4</sup> from a goblet made of the skull of Parameshthin.<sup>5</sup>

[Enters (the sanctuary) and sits down.] Not even yet is Karpūramañjarī [to be seen] coming out by the exit from the subterranean passage! [Karpūra-mañjarī, in pantomime, makes an opening in the mouth of the passage, and enters.]

KARPŪRA-MAÑJARĪ. Reverend Sir, I salute thee. [4]

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. Mayst thou get a suitable husband. Sit down right here.

[Karpūra-mañjarī sits down.] [7]

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. [To himself.] Not even yet does the Queen seem to be coming! 6

[Enters the Queen.] [10]

QUEEN. [Stepping about, and looking in front of her.] Here is the exalted Chāmuṇḍā. [Pays homage to it. Then looking about, she says:] Karpūra-mañjarī here! Well, what does this mean? [To Bhāiravān-anda.] I have this to tell you: I have made ready, before coming to you, all things needful for the wedding; but they are in my own apartments of the palace. So I will get them and return to you. [18]

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. Do so, my darling.

[Aloud.] Karpūra-mañjarī, my daughter, by way of the subterranean passage, not otherwise, and at a quick pace, do you go to your own apartment and stay there. — When the Queen comes back, you're to come back. [25]

[Karpūra-mañjarī does so.]

QUEEN. Here is the prison-room. [27] [Enters and looks around.—
To herself.] Well, I am surprised! Karpūra-mañjarī here! It's somebody that looks very much like her! [Aloud.] Karpūra-mañjarī, my darling, how are you feeling? [Pretends to listen and repeats the imaginary reply.] What's that you say, that you've just got a headache? [To herself.] Well then, I'll go back there [to my own apartments]. [Enters<sup>3</sup> and looks to one side and another.] Hallo, friends, be quick and take the things for the wedding and return [with me]. [39] [With these words, she steps about.<sup>4</sup>]

Queen. [Looking before her.] Karpūra-mañjarī here!6

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. Vibhrama-lekhā, my darling, the things for the wedding have been brought? [44]

QUEEN. Certainly. But some ornaments which would be suitable for Ghanasāra-mañjarī have been forgotten. So I'll go back.

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. Very well. [48]

See the Synoptic Analysis, p. 221-2.

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. Karpūra-mañjarī, my daughter, do just as you did before. [50]

[Exit Karpūra-mañjarī.] [51]

QUEEN. [Pretending in pantomime to enter the prison-room, and seeing Karpūra-mañjarī.] Well, well, I am nonplussed by the resemblance! [To herself.] It's the magic car of the master Magician, which moves about through the air or through walls, that brought her here! [55] [Aloud.] Friends, take each of you what I told you to take and come along back with me. [57] [She enacts a little pantomime as if she had (come back and) entered the sanctuary of Chāmunḍā and espied her (Karpūra-mañjarī).] Oh, what a resemblance! [59]

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. Sit down, O Queen. The King also has just arrived. [60]

[Then enters the King, with the Jester, and Kurangikā.]

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. Place, place for the King! [62]

[All sit down in due order.]

King. She is, in embodied form, a paragon of the Dolphin-bannered God; she is a transformed bow-staff of the wild mountaineer "Passion"; she is the light of the full moon, abroad by day.<sup>5</sup> [64]

And again:

She is the casket for the rubies of a host of excellences; a jewelled doll. Likewise, as she wanders about, she is the flowery beauty of spring. [66]

Moreover:

If 6 the beauty 7 of this maiden's form, which is the ensign of her conquest of the world, comes — in whatever way 8 — within range of a man's eyes, then there takes up his abode in that man's bewildered 9 heart the

- 6 'To the range of whose eyes beauty goes, in the heart of that [man] Cupid dwells.'
- <sup>7</sup> I would assign to rehā here and at ii. 41° the meaning 'beauty.' The verb reh means 'is lovely, rājate,' in Hāla, no. 308; cp. H. 4. 100. Molesworth defines Marāthi rekhalā (from rekhaṇem, from Skt. rekhā, 'line') as 'neat, comely, pretty.' But it may be that two words of quite diverse origin have flowed together in the Prākrit rehā. See additional note, p. 289.

JESTER. [Aside, to the King.<sup>2</sup>] You have made the old saw come true, "Can't trust a boat even when it's touched the shore." Now just cork up! [4]

QUEEN. [To Kurangikā.] Kurangikā, do you arrange the wedding costume for the King; and let Sārangikā arrange it for Ghanasāramanjarī.<sup>4</sup> [6]

[Thereupon both busy themselves in pantomime about the wedding of the two.] [7]

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. We must summon a preceptor.5

QUEEN. Here stands the crest-jewel of all learned Brahmans, my husband's Preceptor, the worthy Kapiñjala. So let him start the sacred fire. [10]

JESTER. Here I am and ready! Say, man, now I'll tie a knot in your upper garment.<sup>6</sup> With your hand take the hand of — Karpūra-mañjarī! [13]

[The Queen utters an exclamation of surprise and looks on with a touch of despondency.]

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. [Well, O King], you have lost your head! <sup>7</sup> for Ghanasāra-mañjarī is only another name for Karpūra-mañjarī. <sup>8</sup> [16]

KING. [Taking her hand.]

- <sup>8</sup> Here you are, in plain sight of the goal of your wishes, like a boat that has crossed the water and reached the farther shore. And yet you persist in this sentimental gush (iv. 19<sup>64</sup>-iv. 20). I can't trust you. Root evas, passive, impersonal, with locative.
- <sup>4</sup> The Queen, on entering, iv. 19<sup>10</sup>, expects to find the "Ghanasāra-mañjari," whom (at iv. 18<sup>7</sup>) she had promised as a new consort for the King. Instead, she finds the Heroine, iv. 19<sup>14</sup>. Hurrying to the prison, she finds (iv. 19<sup>29</sup>) there also the Heroine. Or is it the Heroine's double, so like her (iv. 19<sup>30</sup>) as to deceive the Queen's eyes? She will rather trust her ears, and so elicits a reply from the prisoner (iv. 19<sup>84</sup>) and recognizes by her voice that she is certainly the Heroine. On her return to the sanctuary.

she finds (iv. 19<sup>43</sup>, for the third time) again the Heroine. Her second visit to the prison (and fourth finding of the Heroine) suggests the suspicion, iv. 19<sup>55</sup>, of supernatural means of communication between the two places. And yet, on her second return, iv. 19<sup>59</sup>, it may be, after all, a resemblance!—Her perplexities are still unsolved when she bids Sārangikā, at iv. 20<sup>6</sup>, to array the bride; they reach their climax at iv. 20<sup>7</sup>; and give place to unpleasant certainty upon the utterance of the Jester's last word at iv. 20<sup>13</sup>.

the rows of leaf-petals that contain the ketaka-bloom,<sup>1</sup>—the touch of thee, fair maid, assuredly hath transferred these to my limbs as a thick-set mass of bristling down.<sup>2</sup>

JESTER. Come, man, let the circumambulations<sup>3</sup> be performed and the parched grain be thrown into the fire.

[The King acts as if he were doing all this. The Heroine stands abashed. The King, having brought the wedding ceremony to an end, in happy mood,* saluting all in fitting manner, takes his seat as an Emperor.] [4]

[Behind the stage.]

A BARD. May the wedding feast bring delight to the King!

The lovely gourd-melon,<sup>5</sup> the fresh young bread-fruit,<sup>6</sup> the coral trees,<sup>7</sup> the stalks of the lotus-blossoms,<sup>8</sup> the bloom of the ketaka besides, — I fancy that thy person must have taken to itself by force the qualities [of these plants, because] over all thy limbs appear such horripilations, like unto prickles that one could see and touch.<sup>9</sup> of a theme which we have heard—see iii. 24 and the notes, and iv. 22<sup>a</sup>. For the gourdmelon in particular, see note to iii. 24<sup>a</sup>.—As to horripilation, see note to ii. 46<sup>d</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> 'As a thick-set horripilation-shootrange.'—It may be that ankura is to be taken as 'hair' rather than as 'shoot,' although both amount to the same thing here. As for ali, I despair of finding a fit English word for it; see my note to iii. 26<sup>d</sup>. Perhaps the word range, considering its scope, is as good as any.

<sup>6</sup> The Artocarpus integrifolia or jack-fruit: see Roxburgh, p. 633. For pictures, see Century Dic'y, s.v. bread-fruit; or H. W. Cave's Picturesque Ceylon, volume "Colombo," p. 52, and plate xxx, a beautiful one. In Ceylon, Cave has counted as many as 80 fruits on one tree, some weighing 40-50 pounds each. They are pale green with granulated surfaces. Other species of Artocarpus, the hirsuta and the echinata, have, as their names imply, very spinous fruits.

<sup>8</sup> The kamala is the blossom of the Nelumbium speciosum. "Flowers large, and beautiful beyond description," says Roxburgh, p. 450. There are two varieties, one with rose-colored flowers, and one with perfectly white flowers. Danda here evidently means the peduncles. These "are armed with small inoffensive prickles." Cp. Sprüche, 2988, 6432, 2250. — Beautiful pictures of lotuses, Griffiths, figs. 61-63.

9 'I suspect in thy body [this] collection

BHĀIRAVĀNANDA. Is there anything else that you would wish done? KING. Is there anything I could wish better even than this? For

The Queen, although she now has a rival in my affections, is not angry; I have obtained a maiden who has a face like the full moon's orb and who awakens my passion to new life; and I have attained to the rank of Emperor! What else could one ask for? By thy favor I have gained all that men think worth the having. 3

Yet for this would I pray:

[Words of Bharata.4]

May the forest-fire of Poverty, which day after day gleams far and wide, which brings to naught all the excellences of men of learning,<sup>5</sup> be quenched by the rain of the sidelong glances of Fortune!

[Thereupon, exeunt omnes.]

of qualities [to have been] attained by force; such horripilations, under the semblance of evident and touched prickles, are coming out, continually appearing.'—

Phuda, 'open, manifest, clear to the senses, palpable.' I take it as coördinate with puttha.—Mellanti, 'are let loose, shoot out,' equivalent to mucyante.—Perhaps niccullasā is 'uninterruptedly arising.'

The whole verse repeats the substance of iii. 24 and iv. 21—see the notes.

- <sup>1</sup> 'The Queen, in the position of rival wife, is not angry.'
- 2 'The rank of Emperor has come to pass.'

- <sup>3</sup> 'All that which is obtained among mankind.'
- <sup>4</sup> The author of the famous Nāṭya-çāstra: see Lévi, Théâtre, p. 297 etc. Cp. the close of the Çakuntalā, of the Mālavikā (2d ed. Pandit, p. 162<sup>12</sup>), of the Urvaçī (ed. Kale, 1898, p. 146<sup>9</sup>), and of the Ratnāvalī (ed. Cappeller, p. 329<sup>5</sup>).
- <sup>5</sup> Sanskrit books make frequent allusion to the poverty of men of learning. Fortuna has no fondness for them—Sprüche, 2570. See also 6432, 2081. The enmity (vāira, virodha) between the Goddess of Fortune (Çrī) and the Goddess of Learning (Sarasvatī) is proverbial: Sprüche, 4086, 3941.

Additional Notes.

ii. 623.—Swing festival of Gāurī: see Hemādri (1260 a.d.), ed. Bibl. Ind., ii. 2, p. 453, quoting Devī-purāṇa, āndole dolayet (Devīm); Nirṇaya-sindhu, Benares, 1875, ii., folio 2a, 6 (ibidem, 5a, 1, swinging of Lakshmī); Vratārka, Benares, 1875, folio 15a, 11; Dharma-sindhu, Bombay, 1888, p. 31 end (the festival lasts to the end of the month, māsa-paryanta). For āndolana-vidhi, Hemādri, l.c., p. 745 f.

ii. 419, 502. - The "appointment" here mentioned would seem to have been arranged by Vichakshanā with the Jester during or before the scene between King and Porteress, ii. 01. The interval is "long" to the King, ii. 62: cp. ii. 615. To this arrangement, perhaps, the saccam edam of ii. 64 refers. At ii. 412 the Jester gives the King to understand, if only in the vaguest way, that he is to meet the Heroine. I think the clandestine meeting which results from this appointment must take place in the night of the evening with which act ii. closes, since the meeting was then "at hand." It cannot be the meeting of act iii., which is some 40 days later. And the açoka scene involves no "meeting." -In this clandestine meeting, finally, we may see the occasion of the culmination of the Queen's jealousy and of her imprisoning the Heroine.

iii. 26. — Dr. Konow writes me that he now renders this stanza as follows: Als ein Schmuck für die Weltgegendfrauen, ohne (d.h. verschieden von) Safran und ohne Sandel, als eine Zierde für den Erdenrund, ohne Arm- und Ohren-ringe, als eine Waffe des Liebesgottes, die von Sosana und Mohana verschieden ist (die nicht versiegt und nicht bethört), werden die Mondstrahlen angehäuft. — That is, he takes the three nouns substantive at the end of a, b, c, as in apposition with -āvali.

iii. 27.—"Some reference should be made to the profusion of jewelled ornaments of goldsmiths' work everywhere displayed. Strings of pearls and precious stones are hung on houses, doorways, and canopypillars, and worn by men and women. Hindu poetry constantly speaks of them as festive decorations of towns and houses, till it is not surprising that conventionalized jewelry should come to be a regular element of painted and carved architectural ornament (plates 6, 10, and 13)."—Griffiths, i., p. 16 a.

iv. 1964,66. — Konow writes me that these two passages seem to have been originally metrical [such was my own opinion], but that he has not been able to restore the verses.

iv. 20. — Since my note on rehā was written, I find that Dr. Konow has altered the electroplate of p. 158 and set up two articles rehā. — He doubts my interpretation of vicitte

iv. 20<sup>12</sup>. — A symbolical tying together of the ends of the sari-like garments of bride and groom is doubtless here intended. Dr. Konow refers me to Winternitz, das altindische Hochzeits-rituell, Vienna, 1892, where similar customs are cited: see pages 60, 64, 49. The like still obtain in Southern India: see J. F. Kearns, Marriage Ceremonies, etc., Madras, 1868, p. 40, 57. Cp. also G. A. Grierson, Bihar Peasant Life, § 1331, 1337.

Whitney's Sanskrit Grammar.

A Sanskrit Grammar, including both the classical language, and the older dialects, of Veda and Brahmana. By William Dwight Whitney, [late] Professor of Sanskrit and Comparative Philology in Yale University. Third (reprinted from the second, revised and extended) edition. 1896. 8vo. xxvi + 552 pages. Cloth: Mailing price, $3.20. Paper: $2.90.

Of the original edition of this work no description need be given. This new edition embodies new material, gathered by the author and by others during the past ten years, so far as it fitted into the plan of the work. In particular, the author has been able to correct and repair certain errors and omissions in the first edition, and to speak with more definiteness on very many points relating to the material and usages of the language. The paragraphing of the first edition has been retained throughout, though subdivisions have been more thoroughly marked.

Supplement to Whitney's Sanskrit Grammar.

The Roots, Verb-forms, and primary Derivatives of the Sanskrit Language. A Supplement to his Sanskrit Grammar, by WILLIAM DWIGHT WHITNEY. 1885. 8vo. xiv+250 pages. Paper: Mailing price, $2.00.

The fact that the roots are briefly and clearly defined, and the forms conveniently given, makes this work useful even in the early stages of Sanskrit study. Each formation and derivative is dated according to the period of its appearance in the literary reco. its of the language.

Cappeller's Sanskrit-English Dictionary.

A Sanskrit-English Dictionary. Based upon the St. Petersburg Lexicons. By Carl Cappeller, Professor at the University of Jena. Royal 8vo. Cloth. viii + 672 pages. By mail, $6.25.

This dictionary covers a wide range of Sanskrit texts. It is accurate, sufficient, and brief. Typography, paper, and binding are excellent. The size is truly handy; the price, small. The author had already published a Sanskrit-German Dictionary. This Sanskrit-English one, therefore, has practically the advantage of being a second edition, and is an improvement upon its German original in many ways.

Lanman's Sanskrit Reader.

A Sanskrit Reader: with Vocabulary and Notes. By Charles Rock-well Lanman, Professor of Sanskrit in Harvard University. For use in colleges and for private study. Royal 8vo. Complete: Text, Notes, and Vocabulary, xxiv + 405 pages. Cloth: Mailing price, $2.00. Text alone, for use in examinations, 106 pages. Cloth: Mailing price, 85 cents. Notes alone, viii + 109 pages. Cloth: Mailing price, 85 cents.

This Reader is constructed with especial reference to the needs of those who have to use it without a teacher. The text is in Oriental characters. The selections are from the Mahā-bhārata, Hitopadeça, Kathā-sarit-sāgara, Laws of Manu, the Rigveda, the Brahmanas, and the Sūtras. The Sanskrit words of the Notes and Vocabulary are in English letters. In the Vocabulary great pains have been taken to show how secondary, tertiary, and later meanings have grown out of the original meaning, and to illustrate these transitions of meaning by analogies from the English and other familiar tongues, and to enable the student to trace every form back to its root by means of references to Whitney's chapters on word-formation, and by giving the root itself and the intermediate forms. Etymologically kindred words from the Greek, Latin, Anglo-Saxon, and English are given along with their meanings. The Notes render ample assistance in the interpretation of difficult passages, and in the explanation of allusions to the antiquities of India. With them are given concise literary-historical introductions to a number of the most important branchès of the literature.

Sanskrit Text in English Letters.

Parts of Nala and Hitopadeça in English Letters. Prepared by Charles R. Lanman. Royal 8vo. Paper. vi + 44 pages. Mailing price, 30 cents.

The Sanskrit text of the first forty-four pages of Lanman's Reader, reprinted in English characters. The Vocabulary and Notes of the Reader apply exactly also to this reprint, inasmuch as the reprint corresponds page for page and line for line with its original. With the help of the Grammar and of the Reader and of this reprint, the student will be able to acquire a knowledge of the forms and structure of the Sanskrit language and to do some reading, without first troubling himself to learn the Nāgarī alphabet.

Perry's Sanskrit Primer.

A Sanskrit Primer: based on the Leitfaden für den Elementar-cursus des Sanskrit of Prof. Georg Bühler of Vienna. By EDWARD DELAVAN PERRY, Ph.D., Professor of Greek in Columbia College, New York. 1885. 8vo. xii + 230 pages. Mailing price, $1.60.

This book is an attempt to combine Professor Bühler's admirable practical exercises in translating from Sanskrit into English and from English into Sanskrit, with the systematic exposition of the Grammar as given by Professor Whitney. To this end, the Leitfaden has really been rewritten. An introduction has been added, giving a general view of the structure of the language; and the exercises have been somewhat abbreviated. Care has been taken to retain nothing but what would meet the real needs of a beginner; and regard has been had for those who may take up the study without a teacher. The book has sufficient vocabularies.

Kaegi's Rigveda.

The Rigueda: the oldest literature of the Indians. By Adolf Kaegi, Professor in the University of Zürich. Authorized translation [from the German], with additions to the notes, by Robert Arrowsmith, Ph.D. 1886. 8vo. Cloth. viii + 198 pages. Mailing price, $1.65.

This work treats of Vedic literature and exegesis, of the Vedic people, and of Vedic civilization; of the language and form of the hymns of the Veda; of their contents; and of the Vedic religious thought; of the Vedic divinities; of the Vedic beliefs, especially the belief in immortality; of Vedic secular poetry; etc. The notes (pages 95-180) comprise a very full explanatory, justificative, and bibliographical comment upon the main body of the book.

Hopkins's Religions of India.

The Religions of India. By Edward Washburn Hopkins, Professor of Sanskrit in Yale University. 1895. 12mo. Cloth. xvi + 612 pages. Mailing price, $2.00.

This is the first of Professor Morris Jastrow's Series of Handbooks on the History of Religions. The book gives an account of the religions of India in the chronological order of their development. The point of view is chiefly historical and descriptive, but the causes leading to the successive phases of religious belief are kept prominently before the reader. A new feature of this book, as compared with the one work that has preceded it on the same lines, Barth's Religions of India, is the constant employment of illustrative material, drawn from the original sources. Copious extracts are given from Vedic, Brahmanic, Jain, Buddhistic, and later sectarian literatures. The volume contains also a full description of the modern sects of to-day, a chapter on the religions of the wild tribes, and one on the relations between the religions of India and those of the West. The book is supplied with index, map, and a substantial bibliography.

Harvard Oriental Series.

Edited, with the coöperation of various scholars, by

Charles Rockwell Lanman,
Professor of Sanskrit in Harvard University.

Published by Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts, United States of America.

*** A copy of any one of these volumes, postage paid, may be obtained directly anywhere within the limits of the Universal Postal Union by sending a Postal Order for the price as given below, to Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts, United States of America.

Volume I. — The Jātaka-mālā: or Bodhisattvāvadāna-mālā, by Āryaçūra; edited by Dr. Hendrik Kern, Professor in the University of Leiden, Netherlands. 1891. Royal 8vo. Cloth. xiv + 254 pages.

This is the editio princeps of a collection of Buddhist stories in Sanskrit. The text is printed in Nāgarī characters. An English translation of this work, by Professor Speyer of the Netherlandish University of Groningen, has been published in the Bijdragen tot de taal-, land-, en volkenkunde van Nederlandsch Indië. The same version has also appeared in revised form in Professor Max Müller's Sacred Books of the Buddhists, London, Henry Frowde, 1895.

The price of volume I. is one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) = 6 shillings and 2 pence = 6 marks and 25 pfennigs = 7 francs or lire and 70 centimes = 5 kroner and 55 öre = 3 florins and 65 cents Netherlandish.

Volume II. — The Sāmkhya-pravacana-bhāsya: or Commentary on the exposition of the Sānkhya philosophy; by Vijñānabhiksu; edited by Richard Garbe, Professor in the University of Königsberg, Prussia. 1895. Royal 8vo. Cloth. xiv + 196 pages.

This volume contains the original Sanskrit text of the Sānkhya Aphorisms and of Vijñāna's Commentary, all printed in Roman letters. A German translation of the whole work was published by Professor Garbe in the Abhandlungen für die Kunde des Morgenlandes, vol. ix., Leipzig, Brockhaus, 1889. "In spite of all the false assumptions and the errors of which Vijñānabhiksu is undoubtedly guilty, his Commentary . . . is after all the one and only work which instructs us concerning many particulars of the doctrines of what is, in my estimation, the most significant system of philosophy that India has produced."—Editor's Preface.

The price of volume II. is the same as that of volume I.

Volume III. — Buddhism in Translations. By Henry Clarke Warren. 1896. 8vo. xx + 520 pages.

This is a series of extracts from Pāli writings, done into English, and so arranged as to give a general idea of Ceylonese Buddhism. The work consists of over a hundred selections, comprised in five chapters of about one hundred pages each. Of these, chapters ii., iii., and iv. are on Buddhist doctrine, and concern themselves respectively with the philosophical conceptions that underlie the Buddhist religious system, with the doctrine of Karma and rebirth, and with the scheme of salvation from misery. Chapter i. gives the account of the previous existences of Gotama Buddha and of his life in the last existence up to the attainment of Buddhaship; while the sections of chapter v. are about Buddhist monastic life.

The price of volume III. is one dollar and twenty cents ($1.20) = 4 shillings and 11 pence = 5 marks = 6 francs or lire and 20 centimes = 4 kroner and 44 öre = 2 florins and 91 cents Netherlandish.

Volume IV. — Rāja-çekhara's Karpūra-mañjarī, a drama by the Indian poet Rāja-çekhara (about 900 A.D.): critically edited in the original Prākrit, with a glossarial index and an essay on the life and writings of the poet, by Dr. Sten Konow, of the University of Christiania, Norway; and translated into English with notes by Professor Lanman. 1901. Royal 8vo. Cloth. xxviii + 289 pages.

Here for the first time in the history of Indian philology we have the text of a Prakrit play presented to us in strictly correct Prakrit. Dr. Konow is a pupil of Professor Pischel of Halle, whose preliminary studies for his forthcoming Prakrit grammar have already made his authority upon this subject of the very highest. The proofs have had the benefit of Professor Pischel's revision. The importance of the play is primarily linguistic rather than literary.

The price of volume IV. is the same as that of volume I.

In preparation.

The Atharva Veda Sanhita, translated into English, with a full critical and exegetical commentary, by the late William Dwight Whitney, Professor of Sanskrit in Yale University. Edited by Charles Rockwell Lanman, Professor of Sanskrit in Harvard University. Royal 8vo. Cloth.

An announcement as to this great work, with a full statement (from which this is taken) of its plan, scope, and contents, was made by the author in the Journal of the American Oriental Society, volume 15, page clxxi, April, 1892. The plan includes, in the first place, critical notes upon the text, giving the various readings of the manuscripts, and not alone of those collated by Whitney in Europe, but also of those of the apparatus used by S. P. Pandit in the great Bombay edition. Second, the readings of the Paippalada or Cashmere version, furnished by the late Professor Roth. Further, notice of the corresponding passages in all the other Vedic texts, with report of the various readings. Further, the data of the Hindu scholiast respecting authorship, divinity, and meter of each verse. Also, references to the ancillary literature, especially to the well-edited Kauçika and Vaitana Sutras, with account of the ritualistic use therein made of the hymns or parts of hymns, so far as this appears to cast any light upon their meaning. Also, extracts from the printed commentary. And, finally, a simple literal translation, with introduction and indices.

We may perhaps add that the critical commentary has been made the most important feature of the work. No account, at once so systematic, extensive, and complete, of the critical status of any Vedic text has ever been undertaken before; and the material is here presented in just such thoroughly lucid, orderly, and well-digested form as the previous works of its lamented author would lead us to expect. Its publication will — as we hope — mark a new epoch in the history of Vedic criticism. To the student of folk-lore, and of primitive religions, the translation itself will offer abundant, interesting, and important material.

Buddha-ghosa's Way of Purity (Visuddhi-magga), a systematic treatise of Buddhist doctrine by Buddha-ghosa (about 400 A.D.): critically edited in the original Pali by Henry Clarke Warren, of Cambridge, Massachusetts. Brought out after his death by Charles Rockwell Lanman.

The "Way of Purity," which has been for fifteen centuries one of the "books of power" in the East, is, as Childers says, "a truly great work, written in terse and lucid language, and showing a marvelous grasp of the subject." Mr. Warren's plan was to publish a scholarly edition of the Pali text of the book, with full but well-sifted critical apparatus, a complete English translation, an index of names, and other useful appendices, and to trace back to their sources all the quotations which Buddha-ghosa constantly makes from the writings of his predecessors. The text, it is hoped, may be published without too much more labor. Of the translation about one-third is made; and it has been determined to complete the version and publish it as soon as is feasible.

Mr. Warren died in January, 1899, in the forty-fifth year of his age. Accounts of his life and work may be found in the (New York) Nation for Jan. 12, 1899; in the Harvard Graduates' Magazine for March, 1899; in the Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society for April, 1899 (with a list of his writings); in the (Chicago) Open Court for June, 1899; or in the Journal of the American Oriental Society, vol. xx., second half.
